Hellyer Stakes Post On Row with Admirals

Will Quit If Cabinet Retreats

EDMONTON (CP) — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Friday he has no intention of letting anyone, "even if he's an admiral," tell the government how to run the armed forces.

After making the statement at a press conference, the minister backed it up in a conversation later with local Liberal party officials when he said he would resign if his cabinet colleagues didn't give him full support in his battle with some top brass over integration of the armed forces.

If the federal government weakens in its support for integration—something Mr. Hellyer said he doesn't expect will happen—"they'll have to find a new minister."

Mr. Hellyer told an airport press conference on his arrival to speak to the Royal Canadian Air Force Association that the central issue in his public disagreement with four rear admirals over armed forces integration is civil control of the military.

And it's not only admirals who are giving him trouble, he added. Some top officers in the air force and army also were bucking integration.

Mr. Hellyer said in his conversation with local Liberal officials that he expects there will be further resignations from the armed forces over the issue.

According to law, he said, the armed forces are subject to civil control and "this is the way it will work, for a change."

"I don't pretend that support for my integration policy has been unanimous. I never expected that it would be. The

'NAVY BEFORE COUNTRY'

MONTREAL (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Jean V. Allard, who assumed duties today as chief of the defence staff, said Friday admirals who are dissatisfied with integration of Canada's armed forces "put navy before country."

"I knew it was coming," he said. "The admirals have never been able to accept integration. They were only in favor of it as long as it didn't touch them."

DON'T TRY U.S. AIRMEN, THANT APPEALS TO HANOI

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant made a public appeal to North Viet Nam today not to try American prisoners. He said any such trial would "generate still more intense escalation" of a war he said already threatens to become a third world war.

In a statement that a spokesman read to correspondents, Thant also appealed to all parties in the Viet Nam war to comply with the 1949 Geneva convention against mistreatment of war prisoners.

Finally, he repeated his three-point proposal for cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of all military operations in South Viet Nam and a willingness on all sides to negotiate with the Viet Cong rebels.

North Viet Nam has been talking about trying U.S. pilots shot down in bombing and reconnaissance missions over its territory.

Hanoi radio has promised a special announcement tonight, and there was speculation here it would deal with this subject.

Trial to Loose Dogs of War?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator George D. Aiken said today that if Hanoi carries out its threat to execute U.S. airmen "the American people will demand the complete destruction of North Viet Nam."

Aiken, who has criticized acceleration of the war, thus put into blunter words the carefully phrased warning Friday of 18 self-styled Democratic "doves" that such action by Hanoi "would provoke the greatest reprisals and further blacken the hope for peace."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who endorsed the statement by the 18, agreed generally with Aiken's appraisal of prospective public demands for retaliation.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey, in a speech Friday at Fort Worth, Tex., also warned that the staging of trials would "set loose emotions very hard to control in this country."

BLAMES MOSCOW

In an interview, Aiken, a Vermont Republican, blamed Moscow for encouraging the North Vietnamese to step up their resistance.

"No person in the world wants to establish peace more than President Johnson," Aiken said. "The Soviets could help bring this matter to the conference table. But I fear they want to bog us down to the fullest extent in Viet Nam and put them-

Bombers Strike 121 Times

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. planes pounded North Viet Nam Friday with a record 121 missions, the U.S. military command said today.

They struck at three oil depots to keep up the intensified drive against the Hanoi government's fuel reserves and also attacked six missile sites.

U.S. Navy planes evaded 10 Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles 45 miles southeast of Hanoi, but a navy A-4 Skyhawk jet was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, U.S. military headquarters said. The pilot bailed out and is listed as missing.

North Viet Nam meanwhile claimed seven U.S. planes were shot down over Viet Nam Friday, three of them in the vicinity of Hanoi. A number of Americans were captured, said the North Viet Nam news agency.

Peace Journey By Wilson 'Sure to Fail'

Wilson arrived today ostensibly to visit a $5,000,000 British trade fair, but the main purpose of his three-day visit is to convince the Soviet Union that the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina should be reconvened in an effort to end the Viet Nam war. Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the conference.

But even before his scheduled Monday talks with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, the U.S.S.R. made it clear that it has no intention of initiating such a move.

'DANGEROUS'

Wilson, prior to his departure from London, was asked whether he had genuine hopes for a rousing Moscow's interest in a negotiated peace. He replied:

"This is something we can only discover when we get to Moscow."

Wilson added: "The situation in Viet Nam is dangerous. Even if there were not the danger of escalation and the cloud it is casting over world affairs generally, the fact is it is a cruel war, every day of which means casualties which we all deplore.

"I hope there is going to be a change in that attitude."

SOVIET POLICY

Hanoi Must Request Peace Talks

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union will refuse to make any effort to arrange Vietnamese peace talks unless Hanoi asks it to, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India said today.

And North Viet Nam has not yet commented on her efforts to open the way to peace talks, Mrs. Gandhi said. She had appealed to the Soviet Union to call a Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

At a press conference before flying home after four days of talks with Soviet leaders, Mrs. Gandhi said she thought a precondition for peace talks "would be the stopping of bombing of North Viet Nam."

Talking separately to reporters, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said he had explained to Mrs. Gandhi "our position—that American aggression should be stopped and all foreign troops withdrawn.

"That is the only possible solution" in Viet Nam, Kosygin said.

DANGEROUS SITUATION

In a communique issued at the close of Mrs. Gandhi's visit, both India and the Soviet Union expressed their "particular concern" at what they called the dangerous situation that had arisen in Southeast Asia as a result of the intensification of hostilities in Viet Nam and the U.S. bombings in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Viet Nam.

"The two governments state once again that the bombing of the Democratic Republic of (north) Viet Nam should be stopped immediately," the communique said.

Suspected Nurse Slayer Linked by Fingerprints

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police Supt. O. W. Wilson announced today a suspect in the killing of eight student nurses had been identified through fingerprints. He identified the man as Richard B. Speck, 25. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

CHICAGO (AP)—An artist's sketch of the demented killer who slaughtered eight student nurses has brought a flood of new leads—and a burst of new confidence—to detectives determined to hunt the man down.

"We've been inundated with phone calls, tips and leads since we added the sketch to our description," said Michael Spiotto, deputy chief of detectives.

A police artist sketched the killer's face after closely questioning the only survivor of the massacre, who was roused from heavy sedation Friday after the long night of horror.

Detective Spiotto said the two-hour interview was more fruitful.

"Number one, we're confident we're going to get this guy," he said. "Number two, we know the girl can identify him."

The girl, 23-year-old Corazon Amurao, filled in details missing from her first, hysterical account blurted out to police when she finally fled the blood-splattered house of death at dawn Thursday.

Spiotto said he believed the killer was no stranger to the area.

BUT KEEP THEM COMING

Babies Get That All Shot Up Feeling

Babies and children — warm, winning and unpredictable before a camera — are the favorite subjects of many amateur photographers.

And because of this, pictures of them have been coming in thick and fast to the People of the World category of the Times Photo Contest.

But there's always room for more. That snapshot of baby splashing in his bath, or junior up to bat, might be the one that wins you some of the $30,000 available in prizes.

Backgrounds: It's important to remember your camera always looks beyond a picture subject, and so should you. A cluttered, "busy" background is distracting and will make most pictures look unattractive. When you see an unpleasant background in your viewfinder, usually it's only necessary to shift your position to acquire a less distracting one.

Distance: When taking pictures of babies or children, get as close to them as possible. However, it is desirable to have some reliable guide as to how close you can get. The distance for box cameras with a standard close-up attachment is about 3½ feet; for adjustable focus cameras it will be marked on the focusing ring. If your camera has no range-finder, you might want to cut a string the exact length of the closest focusing distance and fasten it to the bottom of the camera. It makes a handy device whenever you get into close-up range.

Sequence Shooting: When taking pictures of babies or children, it is often best to take a series of photos in rapid sequence. With a series, your chances of getting a really good action shot or expression are considerably increased.

Pictures most likely to win prizes are those in which children are caught in the act of being themselves. So keep your camera ready for that special shot.

Color snapshots are not eligible, but black-and-white prints made from color snaps or negatives will be accepted.

All entries should be sent to the Photo Contest Editor, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

ROUND-A-BOUT

LCB employee Bill Leggett and Victoria detective Lorne Johnson are among ex-navy types who probably smiled recently at news that Commodore Ralph "Spike" Hennessy was jumped over four rear-admirals to become a vice-admiral with a good chance of being next chief of staff for Canada's combined forces.

Aug. 13, 1942, the three were in the same ship, the destroyer HMCS Assiniboine. That day they tangled with a German sub in a surface battle. The U-boat's guns ignited the ship's motorboat gasoline and Assiniboine's starboard side was soon like a blast furnace.

AB Johnson

While Lieut. Cdr. John H. Stubbs (who later died in another ship in another action and whose name is commemorated in the school at Belmont Park) fought the sub at point blank range, his first lieutenant, Hennessy, led a party fighting the flames.

Despite being under heavy fire, Hennessy's men doused the blaze and Assiniboine twice rammed the sub, sinking her. It was a dicy time for Assiniboine's wounded who had been carried below decks. Had the fire got out of hand, their chance of survival would have been small.

And among the wounded that day, were Leading Seaman Leggett and Able Seaman Johnson.

Martin

Brown was the first director of Canada's National Gallery and a great influence in the life of the famous B.C. artist, Miss Carr. But there was scant background information to show Martin how the part should be played.

All that is solved now. A letter has come from Ottawa offering an intimate character study to assist the actor. It was written by Mrs. F. Maud Brown, widow of the man to be portrayed.

Nona F. Butts, 3001 Glen Lake Road, saw our recent article on Victoria's famed town crier of 100 years ago and thinks she might be a relative.

John was a bootlegger and a chicken stealer but he was a likeable rascal as the community realized after he was shipped out. His descendants needn't be ashamed, many of our pioneers probably were rascals.

A further note on John Butts tells how he enjoyed an expense-paid stay in jail, but he hated the chain gang, to which he often was assigned.

Once, when the weather was unruly, he feigned paralysis in order to stay in jail beyond his term. The community lamented when they took him to hospital. But the doctors were suspicious and sent John back. He remained "paralyzed," however, until a guard dumped a pot of ice water on him unexpectely. He took off like a rocket. And they tossed John Butts out of jail.

Some of the patients at Royal Jubilee have had patience enough to develop a scheme to make one rented television set do the work of four.

You may have noticed the sets, which rent for $1.50 per day, suspended from the ceiling. In a four bed ward two patients can share one, but the other side of the ward can't see the picture.

Then came the day when some schemer arranged his wheeled dining tray, which has a mirror built in, so that a reflection of the picture was cast across the ward. In a quiet ward with the volume on the individual speakers turned up, everyone can enjoy the show.

Incidentally, the rented TV's can be misery for a sick patient lying alongside one who is almost well. One patient suggests the large sets should be changed for the little eleven-inchers which can be viewed more privately.

Or perhaps the hospital should examine the system at North Vancouver's Lion's Gate Hospital. There every patient has an individual low-toned radio speaker, at no extra cost. And at the end of each floor is a TV viewing room, with no cost to the patient.

selves in a position to attack us. The situation never looked worse in our efforts to head off a nuclear war."

Meanwhile, Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman publicly warned Hannoi today that mistreatment of U.S. captives "will change the whole feeling of the war" which, he said, up to now has not been aimed against the people of North Viet Nam.

In the strongest words yet issued by a Washington official concerning threats to try American prisoners as war criminals, Harriman said:

"North Viet Nam still indicates that they believe that the United States will give up, just as France did some years ago, if they hold out.

"Now, if they think there is anything in this at all, one of the surest ways for it to assure that the American public will stick to this thing to the end, no matter how long it takes, would be their mistreatment of our airmen. . . .

problems are from the very senior people only. The ones in the medium ranks are most enthusiastic and anxious for me to get on with it."

Mr. Hellyer said no leadership problems will be caused by resignations. There was a "wealth of talent" in the lower and medium ranks.

"I have met with the commanders several times and have told them if they cannot support my policy to let me know and they can retire gracefully."

Mr. Hellyer said Rear - Admiral William Landymore, chief of sea operations, has been asked for his resignation. He said Admiral Landymore's conduct in opposing integration has been "an obvious violation of regulations."

In addition, there had been "discussions as to the future employment" of three other senior naval officers, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, 51, of Esquimalt, B.C., commander of the Pacific fleet; Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, 59, deputy chief of operations; and Rear-Admiral H. C. Burchell, 45, of Ottawa.

Admiral Landymore, 50, said in Lawrencetown, N.S., Friday that he has been fired after refusing to resign.

The admirals and other high-ranking officers are after his head, Mr. Hellyer admitted candidly during his conversation with local party officials. He said the officers had moved only lately because earlier they didn't really believe integration would succeed.

DENIES CHARGE

At his press conference, Mr. Hellyer denied a statement by Douglas Harkness, former Progressive Conservative defence minister, that he had demanded a pledge of personal loyalty from senior officers of the forces.

"I have never in my life asked an officer for a loyalty oath," the ministers aid.

He also denied Mr. Harkness' allegations of discontent in the armed forces. He said his integration policy was suported by the majority of the staff of the armed forces and "I feel we have made wonderful progress and have moved farther and faster than any other country in the world."

In Edmonton, Air Marshal E. M. Reyno, chief of personnel for the armed forces, supported Mr. Hellyer's integration policy in an address to the RCAF association, which is holding its annual meeting here.

In his own address to the RCAF association, Mr. Hellyer reviewed the progress made so far in integration.

He said integration has highlighted but not caused inequities among the three services, and decisions will be made between now and Oct. 1 to correct these inequities.

"I think it is obvious to all of us that we could not undertake a reorganization of such magnitude without some problems arising regarding our personnel."

To date, integration had resulted in savings of more than $145,000,000 and for the first time in 10 years "we have reversed the curve of the amount of money spent for new equipment compared to the amount of money for operation and maintenance," he said.

Twice he had given senior officers who felt they could not support his policy the chance to "retire in honor" with full pension.

"No one took advantage of the offer. One or two elected to remain in the force and engage in passive resistance. In my opinion, this was reprehensible.

"I will continue to do my responsibility to see government policy is implemented," Mr. Hellyer said.

DID RIGHT THING

Ex-Admiral Supports Landymore

A retired admiral has come out in support of Rear-Admiral W. H. Landymore, who was fired Friday in a hassle over integration.

Former rear-admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes, now living in Victoria, said he would have taken the same stand as Admiral Landymore to maintain the navy's identity.

Admiral Landymore said he was fired when he refused to resign from the service in a dispute over defence department integration policy.

"I agree with Admiral Landymore entirely so if I had been in command I would have been fired too," said Admiral Finch-Noyes, a former flag officer, Pacific Coast.

"There is a lack of humanity in the way this is being carried out.

"I have the greatest admiration for Admiral Landymore. He had done more than anyone else to keep the navy together during the last three years."

Retired Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, another former Pacific Fleet commander, said "Admiral Landymore explained it very well. The loss is Canada's."

One of three other admirals involved in the shakeup, Pacific Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, will enter Naden Hospital Monday for surgery to a foot injury. He is expected to be in hospital two weeks.

Polio Victim Plans Swim Across Strait

Memories of the Juan de Fuca swimming craze 10 years ago will be recalled next month if a Quebec resident fulfils plans to make the cross-strait swim.

Robert Cossette, 35, whose right arm is paralyzed from a childhood attack of polio, said Friday night he is determined to make the swim from Victoria to Port Angeles.

He plans to make the 20-mile swim Aug. 10 or Aug. 12.

Cossette isn't a stranger to distance swimming.

He swam the English Channel in 1964 and has also made the 2[illegible] mile swim across Lake St. John near his home in Chicoutimi, north of Quebec City.

Cossette said he thinks he has an excellent chance of making it across the strait because he is used to swimming in cold waters.

Fall Campaign For Burn Unit

The local share of a planned $90,000 burns treatment unit at St. Joseph's Hospital must be raised before federal and provincial grants will be available.

"The project is contingent on us having the $40,000 local share," Pat Blewett, hospital administrator, said Friday.

The procedure, he added, is the same as any other hospital expansion where local shares of the cost must be raised.

The Victoria Labour Council has approved as its Centennial project the raising of as much of the local share as it can through affiliated unions.

SUPPORTS CAMPAIGN

The Victoria branch, Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., will support the labor campaign and encourage individual contractors to contribute.

Because federal and provincial money is available to the project, it isn't eligible for Centennial grants.

Mr. Blewett said he is "extremely pleased" at labor's Centennial project because a burns unit will provide a service not available at the moment.

The five-bed unit, with elaborate sterilization and other equipment to keep it germ-free, would be built in a renovated wing of St. Joseph's.

Prisoners Protest

STONY MOUNTAIN, Man. (CP)—A protest about food service saw 133 prisoners refuse to return to their cells at Stony Mountain penitentiary Friday night.

A spokesman said the men spent 10 hours in the exercise yard in the maximum security section of the penitentiary 15 miles north of Winnipeg.

All Peninsula Faces $23.5M Challenge

By JIM HUME

Municipalities in Greater Victoria and along the Saanich Peninsula are now facing their greatest challenge in years.

Presented with the $23.5 million sewerage project Wednesday, they now have to decide whether they can tackle a common problem with a united front.

Hume

It will not be easy for them.

History, unfortunately, reveals all too clearly that the residents of Greater Victoria eye their municipal boundaries with a great deal of jealousy. They may sleep in the same dormitory but when it comes to municipal affairs they do not exactly exude fellowship and brotherly love.

And the very word amalgamation is anathema.

Amalgamate

But amalgamate they must if they are to solve the problem now confronting them.

They could, of course, divided by petty squabbles and local pride, that each district should go it alone, building the sewerage requirements for their own taxpayers and devil take the hindmost.

* * *

There are precedents for such a decision.

In the 1890s with a population of around 20,000, Victoria financed and built its own sewerage system. Not too many years later Oak Bay did the same. And at present Saanich is battling its own sewerage disposal problem.

It may be understandable for these communities to now take an "I'm all right Jack" attitude. But it wouldn't be right.

Precedent

Some years ago in one of their wiser moves the municipalities making up Greater Victoria, tired of squabbles, formed the Greater Victoria Water District.

It has problems, true, but nothing like those of the past. (If you can remember when Esquimalt Water Works sued the city and won only to go bankrupt shortly after, you're getting old.)

* * *

The answer to the sewerage disposal problem isn't going to be easy, but the formation of a sewerage board, whether as a separate body or as part of the Regional District Board, could be the solution.

When the water district was established it purchased all existing trunk lines and then sold water to the various municipalities on a gallon-use basis. It's fair, it's equitable and it works.

Something similar could be worked out if a sewerage board is established.

$17 a Year

The board would purchase outright existing trunks and then charge the various municipalities on a per capita basis. It has been estimated that a charge of $17 a year for every residence in the sewerage survey area would provide the funds to complete the $23.5 million project.

It is realized that this is a tremendous over-simplification of an obviously delicate and complicated problem. But it is the solution to which, eventually, the municipalities will have to come.

* * *

Following Wednesday's meeting in the Saanich council chamber (and what a relief that was after the sweat-box sessions down at planning headquarters on Government Street) all municipal representatives got two copies of the 237-page report.

Victoria has already ordered a batch more of the reports for distribution to aldermen and senior staffers.

Now begins the detailed study.

Many Meetings

Mayor A. W. Toone says he intends to give his aldermen and city hall officials a couple of weeks to study the massive tome. After that a series of full council committee meetings will commence to find the flaws — if there be any in what can only be described as a magnificently detailed study — and come up with the answers.

On Aug. 10 the regional board meets again for a joint study session. Between now and then other councils will be staying up late at night to try and digest statistics on tides and wind, shoreline curves and outfall problems.

* * *

When they reconvene in August all board members should have at least an inkling of the reports contents and the preliminary thinking of their respective councils.

The word preliminary needs emphasis. Nobody expects a quick decision, nor should they.

But neither should any elected official approach the problem with complacency. The $23.5 million price tag will not grow less as the months march by.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS REASONS FOR RIOTING

CHICAGO (AP)—"I don't get it," said the Negro cab driver as he threaded his taxi among shards of glass littering streets in the west side district torn by three nights of rioting.

And that just about summed up the statements of residents there. Most seem puzzled by the violence.

Dozens of interviews during hours of walking the streets Friday night as heavily armed National Guardsmen restored order, produced no pattern beyond this:

Most agree that the young Negro rioters are angry. They disagree as to why. And virtually all feel that the appearance of the guard prevented another night of violence Friday.

Unlike the Los Angeles racial riots of 1965, cries of "get whitey" or "burn, baby, burn" were scarce during the Thursday-Friday peak outburst here.

There was no indication that one cause—alleged police brutality, hate of white merchants, for instance—was the spark.

DENIES RACIAL MOTIVE

"You can't tell me it was racial," said Frank Banton, an aging white merchant who kept plate glass windows in two stores intact despite shattered glass in stores all around him.

"This Negro guy I know helped me put up plywood to protect my windows," he said. "I didn't ask him. He volunteered. Then later I saw him running down the street bustin' that window and the one over there."

"They didn't have no purpose," said a Negro gasoline station attendant present throughout Thursday night's violence.

"Nobody organized it. One group would go through and smash windows and not take anything, and another group would come along and loot. One group started up on Roosevelt Road. Then word spread and another group got started on 16th Street, and another near 18th Street. It was both kids and adults."

Witnesses agreed that teen-agers were involved. Many believed adults goaded the youths into the spree of violence.

In contrast to the pattern in other riots, some Negroes laughed and joked with police as officers cruised by, five to a car, rifles and shotguns pointing skyward out windows.

AVOID GUARDSMEN

"Better quit that, man," said a Negro teen-ager to a friend who walked toward a patrolling guardsman. "They'll fill you full of holes."

In a crowded cafe two Negro men got into an argument. "The kids are doing it just for the hell of it," said one. No, countered another. The whole thing was organized by people who want to see the black man go under. Something was funny about the whole thing, he said, but he didn't say what it was.

A lone youth, who swaggered down a street which guardsmen had at one time sealed off, said: "You ain't seen nothing yet. Wait till the guard gets outa here."

Reimplanted Arms Show Signs of Life

OTTAWA (CP)—Hospital officials reported improvement today in the condition of four-year-old Myrna Blair whose arms were severed by a hay-mower Wednesday.

They said the right arm is "definitely" alive and the left arm, considered a "question mark" until today, is improving. The girl's condition is reported satisfactory.

Medical Director Dr. J. J. Laurier of Ottawa General Hospital said firm results of the history-making operation would not be known for several days.

Hospital officials say they know of no previous operation where doctors had tried to restore both limbs to a person.

The arms were severed above the elbow when Myrna was run over by a mower operated by a neighbor. She was lying in tall, dense hay on her parents' farm at Pakenham, 40 miles west of here.

Dr. Laurier said the right arm was reimplanted first because it was in better condition. 9The left arm had been nearly severed in two places, above the elbow and below, before doctors at Arnprior Hospital removed it at the upper injury.

Hotel Spending 'Helps Others'

The Empress Hotel is spending $56,000 to advertise itself to prospective tourists, hotel manager Leslie Parkinson revealed Friday.

Speaking to a noon gathering of Victoria Lions Mr. Parkinson said the advertisements would be widely circulated throughout the U.S.

Tough National Guards Bring Calm to Chicago

By JAMES E. DWYER

CHICAGO (AP) — Flying squads of armed national guardsmen and police today patrolled the scarred streets of an area ripped since Tuesday by racial violence.

Youthful gangs who had looted, burned and fired sniper-style from rooftops faded away Friday night as guardsmen — told to shoot to kill if fired upon —went on patrol.

Through the streets of a 140-square-block area rolled trucks loaded with soldiers, rifles at the ready, bayonets fixed; jeeps with machine - guns mounted; police cars with shotguns poked out windows.

Knots of Negroes lined curbs in some areas, jeering occasionally, but there were only scattered incidents: one report of sniper shooting, with police returning fire but finding no one; a fire bomb thrown into a street outside a home; a few store windows broken; several fires in houses and stores.

By midnight, police reported, streets were virtually deserted.

CALM IS CONTRAST

The calm contrasted dramatically with Thursday night, when an estimated 5,000 were abroad and two Negroes were killed by gunshot and 30 were injured amid widespread shooting, looting and burning that continued into the day Friday.

Governor Otto Kerner called up the guard, 3,000 strong, Friday at the request of Mayor Richard J. Daley. The mayor said he felt police alone could not cope with the rioting.

Maj.-Gen. Francis P. Kane held 1,500 troops in reserve and sent 1,500 into the action, operating from a base in a parking lot. They teamed with 1,000 police.

"If anybody shoots at my men," Gen. Kane said, "my orders are to shoot back—shoot to kill."

CAN'T COPE

"We can't cope with the stuff they got on those guard trucks," a youth told a reporter. "But we can cope with the police. As soon as those (soldiers) go back, these cops are gonna make a mistake (by being lax)."

The trouble began Tuesday night when police turned off a fire hydrant spraying children with water during a hot spell. A crowd gathered. Rocks flew. Violence began. There was more Wednesday night. Then the climax Thursday night and Friday during the day, with police reporting at one point they were unable to control the mobs.

Mayor Daley said Friday that he blames the outbreak "in large measure" on aides of Dr. Martin Luther King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Dr. King and his staff have been conducting a civil-rights drive in Chicago.

Too Valuable to Pigeon-Hole

THE PEOPLE OF GREATER Victoria and the Saanich peninsula now have before them comprehensive — and expensive — sewer plans calculated to protect health and preserve amenities in the area for the next half century, when the population is expected to reach 420,000.

The report of the Associated Engineering Services Limited is impressive. The proposals to overcome present deficiencies and meet future needs involve the heavy cost of $23.5 millions. But estimates, as the engineers have pointed out, could escalate far beyond the sums represented in 1966 dollars.

Disposal of waste at sea is the only method favored by the experts, except for relatively minor and temporary treatment proposals that would eventually yield to marine discharge when localized population becomes sufficient to pay for the sewer lines involved.

Several considerations persuade the engineers to recommend this method. While noting that almost all present outfalls are inadequate —some wrongly placed, most permitting discharge too close to shore or in enclosed waters— and admitting that required extensions at selected points will be very costly, they believe upkeep will be so much less than with any other system that it will save money over the long haul.

If the sewage is piped far enough from the low water mark and is dissipated in deep water, tidal currents will sweep most of it away from shore, they explain. Where some returns it will be so diffused and so long subjected to the antiseptic action of the salt water that it will neither be a serious health hazard nor objectionable to recreationists and others using the beaches.

The trouble spots in the area—Victoria harbor-the Gorge-Portage Inlet, Esquimalt Harbor and Saanich Inlet—could be eliminated largely by removing outfalls now entering the former and extending or relocating, if necessary, those in the latter two. This suggests a cure for one of the conditions which raise perpetual protest in the region.

Some of the work recommended is inescapable. Some, notably in the city, is already authorized in general form. Eventually the whole region will have to be adequately sewered.

Of course costs are heavy, perhaps daunting, although the work would be phased to avoid a crushing burden all at once. They can hardly be expected to go down.

The engineers emphasize the point that providing sewers for the whole region should be undertaken on a planned, regional basis for general efficiency. This involves some give and take on everybody's part. But it is interesting to note that the area is divided into six project regions which, following natural drainage contours, also happen to establish separate projects in such a way that each muncipality, or region, has before it an undertaking of direct value to itself. In other words, none would be required to build for the benefit of a neighbor without receiving benefits itself.

The plan appears excellent. Its prospects of meeting present and foreseeable problems depends, ultimately, on the action taken by the authorities who can implement it. It is too valuable a study to be left pigeon-holed after polite official conversation.

The White Paper and CBC

WHILE THE GOVERNMENT'S white paper on broadcasting took in the whole spectrum of public electronic communications, a section also dealt specifically with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and set out a number of proposed changes in its operation.

The white paper rejected the Fowler Commission recommendation that the CBC should be managed as well as regulated by a Board of Broadcast Governors or similar body on the sensible grounds that regulation and management policy are too complex a mixture. Instead the CBC is to retain its own management group.

Logically following from this is the proposal that the corporation's headquarters in Ottawa should be kept to the minimum size compatible with effective general direction while operational activities, including programming control, should be moved to the main operational centres. If internal communications channels are kept clear so that policy decisions flow down the line effectively from CBC headquarters to production centres, this set-up should do away with the monolithic rigidity which has characterized the corporation in recent years.

The government's opinion that the CBC will have to go slow on color TV is one that will be challenged both within the corporation and without. It ignores the reality of the situation for the white paper to say that color must take a lower priority to other improvements. The CBC cannot carry out its task of contributing to "the essential goal of Canadian unity" without an audience. Color has proved to be a potent force in attracting TV audiences in American experience and if the private Canadian broadcasters are allowed to get too far ahead of the CBC in this technique, it could prove extremely difficult to close the gap in the future. Though it may be costly, the CBC should be encouraged to compete with the private stations in technical advances.

As a footnote to the highly-publicized troubles between CBC management and its public affairs department, the white paper affirms what common sense has long dictated: "The recent difficulties . . . forcefully underline the necessity for significant improvements in internal communications. The government, therefore, expects that action to effect the necessary organizational changes will be given high priority by the corporation."

It seems hardly necessary to add that if the CBC management is unwilling, or unable, to come to grips with this all-important problem, then the management will have to be revamped. Success in management in most businesses — and particularly those in which creative arts play a significant role — is to a large extent a matter of dealing candidly and fairly with people. Failure of CBC management to carry out this essential function would render next to worthless the best plans for reorganization.

Advance in Safety

LEGISLATION TO IMPOSE higher safety standards on automobile manufacturers is progressing through the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States. Inevitably comparable legislation will be enacted in Canada.

The shocking toll of life on the highway and public reaction to it leave little leeway to manufacturers in this respect.

But when a much safer car than today's conventional model is in general production, only one element in highway safety will have advanced —though an important one.

Still of primary significance will be a means to improve the safety element in the driver. This is the breakthrough, when it comes, which will be the most vital in highway safety. Enforcement of regulations on the road, education on the results of drinking and speed in accidents will help. But the ultimate factor will be an individual and personal recognition of responsibility. That may occur when drivers realize that crashes are not something that happens to other people — they can happen to them, and it's up to them to take precautions.

". . . Ralph's always deeply moved when he thinks of all the thousands of city folk saying: 'Well maybe this crummy rain will keep the farmers happy' . . ."

Road to the Sea

Ottawa Journal

Canadians have to keep reminding Americans about their irritation over the Alaska Panhandle, that 500-mile projection of U,S. territory down the Pacific Coast which bars the Yukon and northern British Columbia from the sea.

Canadians felt they were badly used by the 1903 commission which decided, in the face of an uncompromising U.S. attitude, that the Panhandle would run from Prince of Wales Island northwards. Since then there have been mineral discoveries in the far northwest of Canada which would be the more profitable if there were a corridor to the sea.

It is the corridor that is talked about nowadays; no one expects the Americans to give up the Panhandle. A group of Canadian parliamentarians in Washington recently mentioned the possibility of a corridor being considered in relation to paving of the Alaska Highway, which is a corridor through Canadian territory to link American territories. Paving 1,500 miles of highway would cost about $84,000,000 and Canada, with most of the highway on her territory, does not place this work high on her list of priorities. An analysis of benefits to Canada from highway improvements, tabled recently, did not increase Canadian enthusiasm.

The Americans feel more keenly about it and Canadians want to know whether they are prepared to make Panhandle concessions in return for highway development.

It is not as if the Canadians wanted to grab a piece of sacred American soil. They speak of leasing a Panhandle corridor and seaport through which Canadian traffic could move unimpeded by U.S. tariffs and immigration regulations. Ownership would stay American.

The U.S. seems to be increasingly eager for co-operation with Canada in the development and conservation of resources including water. Sympathetic attention to Canadian ambitions, in areas such as the Panhandle, would make united action on larger questions easier.

A Little Sense in the Medicare Debate

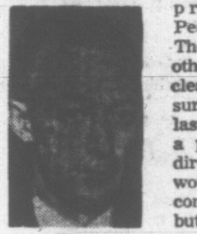
ON the evidence of Hansard, the Conservative party is at sixes and sevens about the scheme of medicare proposed by the Pearson government. The positions of the other parties are clear and in no sense surprising. Mr. Douglas has always been a proponent of state directed schemes. He would prefer a more comprehensive plan but will accept this as a beginning. The NDP felt that there had already been enough debate on the matter and tried to pressure the government into pushing the measure through all its stages before the summer adjournment.



Western

In contrast, the Social Crediters are opposed to the plan. Mr. Thompson is, in effect, the spokesman in Parliament of the Alberta government which strongly objects to the compulsory features of medicare. He was also apprehensive about the official cost estimates.

Obscure

But Conservative policy on medicare remains obscure. Mr. Fulton remarked at one point that there would be universal support for the objective that prepaid medical services should be available to all Canadians. But, as he also insisted, this did not relieve members from the responsibility of examining specific proposals in the light of certain appropriate criteria.

This is certainly valid. The trouble is that in recent years the parties have developed a style of non-debate in matters of social legislation. The central issues have gone undebated while speakers concentrated on marginal matters.

Mr. Walter Dinsdale, though offering some criticisms of detail said flatly: "We heartily endorse this scheme."

Mr. Fulton, far more critical, termed the plan "not economically realistic" and found "very serious objections" to it on the score of constitutional propriety.

"What is involved here," he said at another point, "when a scheme such as the minister has in mind is in full flower, will present a major distortion of the economy and of any realistic scheme of priorities."

When there are so obviously two Conservative policies warring on the front bench, it is not surprising that variants are to be found elsewhere in the opposition ranks. One of the most sensible speeches of the debate was delivered by Mr. Baldwin of Peace River who often takes an independent line but seems on this occasion to have reflected the views of a responsible minority in the party.

Debate Needed

Mr. Baldwin made short work of the argument that since medicare has been the subject of a royal commission report, no more discussion is necessary. It is impossible to judge a bill at the resolution stage because the terms are not known. Many interests were involved, above all those of the general public, and it was desirable that when the contents of the measure were public, there should be debate on a national scale.

It was important to consider the measure, not simply on its own merits but also in relation to the over-all economy. In this context, Mr. Baldwin had various misgivings. To begin with, he doubted the validity of the cost figures which had been used, noting that in most great projects original estimates had been greatly exceeded. This was also true of maintenance and carrying charges. Experience with most social welfare schemes had been similar, higher costs being reflected in taxes which were borne by the small consumer in two forms.

"It is an inescapable fact that, as a result of the proven extravagance, waste and bad management in government, the taxpayer's dollar, when returned to him in the form of benefits has decreased when passing through the government establishment. Conversely, the cost is further increased because that portion of the public which has the opportunity to pass on the increased taxes paid always manages to do so in such a way, and with such an increment, that the aggregate of the amount passed on, in higher costs of goods and services, invariably exceeds what has been contributed in the form of taxes and so there is a loss at both ends."

Mr. Baldwin directed his main arugument, however, to the possible impact of medicare on an inflationary situation. It was his contention that social programs should be financed out of increased national productivity although, in fact, the three levels of government had been dispensing social welfare and wage increments with little regard for productivity.

Report Sought

What he sought prior to the coming into force of the medicare legislation, was a report from the Economic Council of Canada as to the relative priorities of present and proposed social welfare programs and other measures required to develop productive capacity.

"We pass these various measures I have mentioned and thereby set a bad example in our extravagance in government. We provide, even initiate, wage increases without regard to sound basic guidelines. We shirk our duty to increase productivity. As a result of these factors or at least in large part because of them, when prices go up we complain in this House and elsewhere and we mumble about price control.

"Even if imposed price controls ever make political and economic sense, we have absolutely no jurisdiction to tamper directly with these controls. We are limited to the indirect method of fiscal and monetary steps. We set in motion inflationary forces; we inject their pressure into our economic system and then we whine and whimper about the results. For this reason, it seems to me that such an unbiased non-political report should be available before we proceed."

Fulton Figures

Mr. Baldwin's amendment in this sense was ruled out as procedurally "irrelevant," an objection which it would be difficult to sustain against his argument. In essence it was endorsed by Mr. Fulton in his subsequent speech. The former minister referring to the Canada Pension Plan, medicare and the Bladen report on education, calculated that in the space of 18 months something between $1.5 and $2 billion per annum had been more or less committed to be raised by federal taxes and paid out of the federal treasury.

The government despite the evident misgivings of Mr. MacEachen, has now decided against pressing the measure through all stages, as the NDP has been demanding, before the summer recess. There will thus be time for searching discussion in the country of this most significant legislation. It is helpful that at least some members of the official opposition have recognized a responsibility to define some of the important issues involved. To this extent at least there has been a departure from the lattetr-day, opportunist tactic of non-debate on social measures. What seems still to be lacking is an official Conservative position on medicare.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Good Schools—No Cheap Escape From Ghetto

A SIMPLE anecdote pointedly indicates how those who know and truly feel the urgency of America's urban problems are all but cut off from those who do not. Briefly, one of the more left-wing White House staff members was meeting with former CIA director John A. McCone, a deep-dyed conservative in the true sense of the phrase.

Alsop

Right-winger McCone was describing the hideous situation he had uncovered while preparing his Watts report and was urging instantaneous, massive corrective action. The left-wing staff member blankly said there was no way to pay for such a program, whereat McCone replied, almost with fury:

"It doesn't matter what it costs. It doesn't matter if it costs $100 billion or even more. This country's future is at stake, and the money has to be found somehow!"

To this McCone added a piece of sage advice. Finding the money would be almost impossible, he remarked, if the needed program were merely demanded at civil rights meetings, like the White House rally at which a $100 billion program was actually put forward by some Negro leaders.

Moneyed Pressure

Congress, he said realistically, would never respond to demands from the left; but Congress would respond soon enough if a massive program — even a $100 billion program — were being insistently demanded by the vast majority of leading financial, commercial and industrial institutions of this country. And these institutions, he wound up, are precisely those that have the most to lose if they only knew it by the transformation of most of the American great cities into super-Watts.

This transformation is already rather well advanced in many great cities, as far as one can judge from the quite inadequate available data already published in this space. The question is how to halt and to reverse the transformation. This really means halting and reversing the trend toward mainly Negro city centres decaying within rings of almost purely white suburbs.

All sorts of expedients are being tried to this end, some of them pretty repellent. St. Louis, for instance, has simply been bulldozing many of its poor Negro quarters and replacing them with apartments too expensive for average Negro occupancy, thereby driving many Negroes, almost by main force, to try to wedge themselves into the poorer suburbs.

The trick has not worked, either, as is indicated by the fact that the proportion of Negro children in the St. Louis elementary schools has risen above 60 per cent. Meanwhile, the promise of another device, infinitely more beneficial to everyone, is also indicated by John McCone's carefully studied and absolutely hair-raising report on Watts.

Methodical analysis revealed to the Watts report researchers that the schools were the heart of the problem of white emigration from Negro or incipiently Negro neighborhoods. They found, further, that race prejudice, though of course it plays its tragic role in this emigration, nonetheless plays a subordinate role.

The prime difficulty is, rather, what happens to the neighborhood school when it begins to be invaded by great numbers of deeply disadvantaged children. Whether the disadvantaged children are Negro or Mexican-American or whatever, the standards of the school automatically plummet downward when its proportion of disadvantaged pupils passes 25 per cent.

The reason for this is highly practical and has nothing to do with race. Being disdavantaged, the new pupils are educationally handicapped. Being inflexible, the school system does not respond to the resulting challenge by sending in more teachers and better teachers. Thus, all the children in the school are held back by the educationally handicapped children. And white parents thereupon emigrate from that school's neighborhood to find a better school somewhere else.

More Per Pupil

If these findings are correct, the right way for St. Louis to avoid ghettoization is not to bulldoze Negro quarters. The right way is to reverse the existing relationship between the city schools, which cost $489 per pupil, and the local suburban schools, with their average of $539 per pupil. Raise the St. Louis school system's outlay to $1,000 per pupil and the population flow would almost certainly be halted and reversed.

Nor is this all. While halting the white outflow that threatens the city with ghettoization, this kind of expenditure per pupil would also ensure urban schools that are good enough to open the door out of the poverty trap for the city's disadvantaged children. Then the only remaining necessary step would be to find a lot more money to spend on police, parks, playgrounds and the like and thus to ensure really safe streets.

The trouble, of course, is that almost no great city in America can any longer afford to pay for truly superior schools and really safe streets. And that was why John A. McCone was talking to the White House staff member.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

GO down to some stream and find some of the little creatures that live in the water.

Clambering over the stones you will see the Caddis fly larvae. There are a number of these animals and each one seems to take on a different "house." Some will be covered with tiny sticks, others with minute particles of stone or sand, while those that live where there is plant life will be covered with particles cut from the leaves. All these are a form of protection against their enemies.

If you look under stones, where the water is flowing fairly quickly, you will find the nymphs of the Stonefly. They will be recognized by the two long tail appendages. They move very slowly and are often called "creepers."

Burrowing in the mud you may find the nymph of the dragon fly. They have wedge-shaped heads and are called "water tigers." They are cannibals and will eat any other small creature that comes within reach.

Turn over some of the stones. Clinging to the under side you will find tiny leeches. You will be able to recognize them by the sucker at each end of the body. These creatures have several shapes. They live on the fluid of other tiny animals that inhabit the stream.

If you see what appears to be a small pebble moving along, it may be one of the crayfish darting under a stone. This little animal looks like a miniature lobster. It is armed with a pair of conspicuous nippers. The female carries her eggs attached to her swimmerets.

Heresy In The Schools

An Editorial
In The Globe and Mail

"Can't you see that a teacher could say: "Today let's pretend you're China and you're the United States. Now you work up a position paper from the Chinese point of view. Let's take Viet Nam and look at it from all points of view.' Today, this is heretical enough to have a teacher thrown out of school."

That's Barry Lowes, the 38-year-old chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, looking at the future of elementary and secondary education. The technique he describes is called role-playing, only one of many developments rising on the educational horizon.

Heresy? Perhaps, but 10, even five, years ago it would have been equally heretical for the chairman of the board of education to speak so forthrightly about the future. Particularly with an election in the offing.

Attitudes Changing

But public attitudes toward education are changing. And well they should, for as Education Minister William Davis told the Ontario Education Association in April, technological advances and shifting social and cultural patterns make vast changes in the educational system in the next 20 years inevitable. We stand on the threshold of an entirely new world of learning.

What sort of world? Mr. Lowes sees the schools of the future as the centres of communities in which education is recognized as a lifelong process beginning at age three, in some cases at one. As automation continues to add hours to our leisure, the centres will become places where children and adults alike can pursue and enjoy music, art, literature, science and sports.

Classrooms, as such, will be replaced by resource centres housing television, movies, radios, tape recorders and other information-storing devices, thus enabling the child to forego the tedium of fact memorization — any facts he needs or wants will be virtually at his fingertips — for more stimulating and rewarding exercises in fact assimilation and analysis. Curriculums will lay more stress on self-understanding and human relations.

No Homework

Homework will be abandoned. So will final examinations. ". . . my claim is that any school staff worth its salt can assess the intellectual capacity and all the intangibles . . . that make for success at university as well as today's system does. If this staff doesn't know this student, then damn it, it shouldn't be teaching school."

Strong words and great expectations. But Mr. Lowes has proven himself to be a man capable of supporting his words with action.

SOAKED FROM A SWIM in the Arabian Sea, Indian boys crowd around a passerby to ask for candy. In the part of India where they live—along the Arabian seacoast—the future looks brighter than in the villages of the interior. But still there is the hunger and disease that scar India's children for life.

House of Lords Reform Stalled

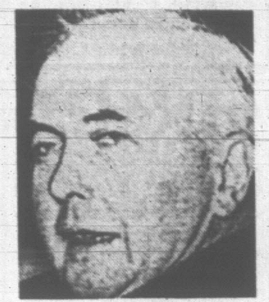
By IVAN YATES



WILSON

LONDON — Politicians in Britain are always willing to talk about the House of Lords.

The pound may be shaky on the exchanges, Mr. Cousins may have resigned from the cabinet to lead the fight against the government's incomes policy, Rhodesia and Viet Nam may be perplexing and dividing both government and opposition: no matter, there is no time like the present for debating House of Lords reform.

Did not the preamble to the Parliament Act of 1911, which substituted two years' delay for the peers' right of veto on Commons legislation, say that reform "brooked no delay?"

Since then, of course, there have been some further reforms. The power of delay has been clipped back to one year. The composition of the Lords — until 1958 exclusively male and hereditary — is now diluted by the appointment of life peers enhanced by the presence of peeresses, both hereditary and life.

But, in spite of these concessions to the egalitarian spirit of the age, fundamentally the Upper House remains one of those British institutions of which it is fashionable to say that, though wildly illogical (so much so as to be practically indefensible) yet it works. Sentimentality is thus married to efficiency, with the former very much the dominant partner.

Bland Reply

So it is not surprising that when the prime minister was asked on July 5 what consideration the government was giving to the reform of the House of Lords, he should say blandly that he had no evidence that there was any general desire for a reform in its composition.

Complacent

He later admitted that it was Labor policy to remove the remaining power of the Lords to block or delay legislation, though he gave no indication when the policy might be implemented.

Mr. Wilson's answers faithfully reflected the Labor Party's complacent view that so long as the House of Lords remains indefensible in its composition it will hardly dare to exercise its remaining powers at the expense of the Commons.

Paradoxically, therefore, pressure for reform today comes largely from Conservatives: and it was, indeed, a Conservative who had asked him the question.

World Court Ruling to Spark Race Tension at United Nations

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

Frye

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — A long, hot summer of racial tension seems about to burst forth at the United Nations.

The UN's equivalent of a civil rights movement — the militant African bloc — has long been demanding "black power" in southern Africa.

Its campaign against the extreme white supremacists of South Africa and Rhodesia has been more intense, more emotional, and more prolonged than the American civil rights struggle. And there is no non-violent faction in the UN.

Now the UN civil rights movement is about to obtain what its American counterpart has had since 1954, when the United States Supreme Court handed down its first school-desegregation decision. It is about to obtain the formal sanction of law.

After nearly six years of litigation, the World Court in The Hague is due to rule Monday on a demand by Black Africa that South Africa abandon white supremacy in the territory of South-West Africa, which Pretoria administers under a disputed League of Nations mandate.

No one, of course, knows what the ruling will be. But to Black Africa, it is unthinkable that it will be anything other than a directive for the elimination of apartheid (Ku Klux Klan rule) with all due deliberate speed.

World Court verdicts of this kind are enforceable by the UN Security Council, which has the power to impose economic sanctions and even, in theory, to mobilize and dispatch a fighting army.

If the verdict is clear, and if South Africa defies it, the Africans will want the Security Council to use every power it has. They will begin clamoring almost immediately for a crunch on South Africa.

The Soviet Union long ago said it was willing. Few are likely to disagree seriously except the United States, Britain and France — which, together with one or two other countries such as Japan and West Germany, have the economic and military power to render pressure on South Africa meaningful.

No doubt the day of decision can be stalled off for a time. South Africa may not directly defy the court; it may seek "clarification" or amplification of the ruling. It may offer partial compliance.

Fish or Cut Bait

But sooner or later, the Africans will be able to force a clear-cut confrontation, and then Washington and London will have to fish or cut bait.

No available option will be attractive. If they side with South Africa, they not only will set themselves against the court — and hence against the development of world order under law — but will risk delivering the rest of Africa to Communism.

United States citizens have invested some $750,000,000 in Africa north of the "white redoubt." The United States has a missile and satellite tracking station in Nigeria, and a highly important military communications facility, perhaps the largest of its kind in the world, in Ethiopia.

Africa is a real and potential market for American exports running at least into the hundreds of millions. It has 36 UN votes out of 117, or 30 per cent — a significant number in a General Assembly which operates by two-thirds majority.

Incinerated

All these interests would be quickly incinerated in African fury if the United States and Britain set out to block pressure on South Africa in a showdown.

But if they agreed to cut all trade with Pretoria, it has been estimated that the United States would suffer a $300 million injury to its balance of payments in the first year, and Britain $840 million. Together, British and American citizens have invested at least $3 billion in the South African economy.

To stand aloof and do nothing would not work. If Russia co-operated with the UN, for example by volunteering a few naval vessels for a blockade of South Africa, she would be credited with having "forced" a break between the hated South African Prime Minister H. F. Verwoerd and his "Western friends." No Black African leader would thereafter wish or dare to be considered a friend of the West.

Exert Pressure

The only thing Washington and London can do is to begin visibly exerting major pressure on Verwoerd to accept the court verdict — and more importantly, to begin moderating white supremacy in South Africa as well.

This pressure may or may not take effect. It is long overdue. But if it is genuine enough and tough enough, it may succeed in disengaging the United States and Britain from their costly entanglement with the despised Verwoerd regime.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Israel touched off a new war scare in the Middle East with a bombing raid on Syrian territory.

The attack was the most serious in a series of skirmishes between the two nations over control of the River Jordan.

The Syrians have been threatening to divert the river after Israel began to tap it to irrigate the Negev dessert. The river rises in Syria and then forms a disputed border between the two countries before flowing into the Dead Sea in Jordan.

Thursday's air raid was directed at a Syrian military engineering unit working on the headwaters of the river near the border just north of the Sea of Galilee.

The Israelis claimed to have destroyed eight tractors and a gun battery, and to have shot down a Syrian MiG fighter plane.

Syria said two Israeli jets were downed in the raid, which wounded 10 persons, mostly civilians.

Israel said the attack was in retaliation for previous Syrian acts of sabotage.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi continued her Viet Nam peace-seeking mission with a five-day visit to Moscow.

She completed shorter trips to Cairo and Belgrade and won the support of both President Nasser and President Tito for her plan to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference on Indo-China.

Her reception was friendly in the Soviet Union but the Indian prime minister was not expected to gain full backing from the Russians.

At a Kremlin reception Premier Alexei Kosygin denounced U.S. actions in Viet Nam and pledged increased aid to the North. The Russians have insisted that U.S. raids on the North must be halted and U.S. troops pulled out of South Viet Nam before any peace conference is called.

Mrs. Gandhi also said the bombing raids must be stopped, but she also accused China of blocking steps toward peace in Southeast Asia.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain arrived in Moscow this weekend for talks with Soviet leaders and he is expected to join Mrs. Gandhi's peace pleas.

Zambia made another threat to quit the Commonwealth over the Rhodesia issue.

At a meeting in London of the Commonwealth sanctions committee the Zambian foreign minister claimed the economic boycott of Rhodesia has proved a failure. Simon Kapwepwe called on Britain and other members for increased aid to help his country cut off all commerce with neighboring Rhodesia.

Zambia has asked for $182 million to develop alternate trade routes. Britain has offered $21 million.

Zambia has also been critical of Britain's continuing low-key negotiations with the Smith regime.

Meanwhile plans are going ahead for a full-dress Commonwealth meeting in London Sept. 6-14 to review the Rhodesia situation and assess the value of the sanctions program.

Britain and France held discussions in London on the future of the New Hebrides island chain in the Pacific, about 1,000 miles east of Australia.

The two countries have jointly administered the island since 1914 and Britain has hinted she would like to turn them over to the French.

The islands have little economic value and have a population of only 45,000, almost all natives following tribal customs and owing allegiance to neither of the supervising powers.

PM's Prestige Declined During Past Session

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The performance of the Pearson government in the parliamentary session just ended was an odd mixture of broad legislative accomplishment and deterioration in the morale and cohesion of the Liberal cabinet.

The session began uncertainly, fell quickly into the quagmire of the Munsinger scandal, and ended with an uncharacteristically vigorous drive to get some meaningful statutes on the law books.

Ironically, it was in this latter constructive period that John Diefenbaker managed to put the Liberals on the wrong side of at least three important issues which could draw the combined support of all the opposition parties and threaten the life of the minority Liberal administration.

Newman

When Parliament resumes sitting in the fall, the lifting of the interest rate ceiling in the Bank Act revision; the built-in "means test" factor in the new pensions increase; and the failure of the government to deal effectively with the insurgent forces of inflation—all these issues will generate broadly-based opposition in the Commons.

It's not likely, of course, that the government will fall. But the opposition leader has been given solid fighting ground for rallying public support during the summer months.

Diefenbaker's effectiveness in exploiting these issues will no doubt be colored by the Spence report on the Munsinger affair, to be published shortly. But the guessing here at the moment is that a strong condemnation of the former prime minister's handling of the Sevigny-Munsinger relationship would only serve to rally partisan support behind him, in an angry Conservative rebuttal of Liberal tactics.

Pulled the Rug

On at least three occasions, Lester Pearson figuratively pulled the rug out from under his ministers: when he reversed his stand on the inquiry into the Victor Spencer case and left Justice Minister Cardin exposed; when he wavered in his support of Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's revision of the Bank Act; and when he first consented to and later rejected Welfare Minister Alan MacEachen's determination to carry through second reading of the medicare bill.

"Before this session," says one Liberal backbencher, "the colossal ineptitudes of the cabinet ministers distracted us from getting mad at Mike. He got blamed for picking poor ministers, but their errors took the pressure off him. Now, Pearson himself is getting more and more of the blame for the government's dispirited performance.

"Despite all the legislation that's gone through since the election," he adds, "it would probably be easier for me right now to get re-elected in my riding as an independent, than as a Liberal."

One incident which really infuriated the Liberal backbenchers was Pearson's settlement of the Seaway strike which involved granting the workers a 37 per cent wage hike. It was seen as a typical Pearson ploy. The prime minister mediated a dispute in which he (as the representative of the government) was one of the principals. and settled it by giving his opponents all they were asking for.

As Pearson's prestige declines, the underground race for the Liberal leadership is taking on new, though still discreet vigor. Paul Hellyer remains the man to beat, with John Turner, Allan MacEachen and Joe Greene moving up fast.

Mitchell Sharp hurt his chances (especially within the Liberal caucus) by tying himself to a politically unpopular Bank Act. Robert Winters' leadership hopes are dormant and he's even rumored to be telling intimates that he's so fed up with the government's unbusinesslike attitudes that he may get out of politics altogether.

Gordon Fails

Walter Gordon's hopes for the leadership may be another casualty of the session. Although the discussion his book attracted gave heart to his supporters, the fact is that Gordon has been unable to extend his support for his policies. His failure to rally the Liberal caucus against Mitchell Sharp's Bank Act was a crucial test of strength.

Gordon's unrelieved advocacy of economic nationalism has been interpreted by Liberals in the West and the Maritimes as a cover-up for the old brand of Toronto protectionism. He had failed to link the two great strains of Canadian Liberalism.

Out of Race

The barely suppressed desire for reciprocity of Eastern and Western Liberals has been far stronger than any attraction his policies for social reform might have engendered. The fact that Keith Davey decided to take the job as commissioner of the Canadian Football League, rather than running the leadership campaign for his old friend, Walter Gordon, can be interpreted as a sign that the former minister of finance has virtually taken himself out of the race.

Without a single shot

History records that no battles were fought for the land that, one hundred years ago, became the Province of British Columbia. There were disputes, there were arguments and there was an occasional show of force but, in spite of Spanish, American and Russian claims, the transition from virgin territory to colony to province was made peacefully.

Evidence of early settlement and trading is still with us. Fort Langley on the Fraser River, built in 1827, has been restored for our generation. It serves as a reminder that this great and beautiful province of ours had a humble beginning—humble and peaceful. Victoria's John Dunbar has got a new disc out and there's a good chance that it will become one of Victoria's top sellers within a short while.

Dunbar

The record is a sort of musical version of a Victoria travel folder, describing the sights and sounds of the city.

Dunbar, who recently returned from a highly successful tour of Great Britain, has among his recording releases a collection of songs from his native Scotland. In contrast, his versatility is very evident in his treatment of Follow the Birds.

Recorded in Vancouver a few months ago, the song is written by a local composer, Ken Garland, whose love for Victoria inspired the composition.

So, if you've got a chance to listen to it—you might be surprised.

Gary Wilcox, publisher of the Victoria—Folio of Stars (a book which served the dual role of "directory" for clubs and organizations in need of a band, and "fan publication" for supporters of our local talent) tells me that plans for the second Victoria folio have been scrapped.

Wilcox

Instead, the B.C. Folio of Stars will be published in a few weeks.

Gary originally intended to publish a Vancouver Folio—the reason for his temporary move over there—but a number of Interior groups asked to be included—so he decided to open the book to any musical group in B.C.

Local groups interested in being included in the B.C. Folio should contact Gary's brother Bill at 2080 Allenby Street here in Victoria.

A tentative deadline of Saturday, July 23, has been set so any local bands interested better get cracking.

BITS AND PIECES

Victoria's great "No 1012," now in Hawaii, informs me that she's learning how to surf (would you believe SWIM?) . . . Too bad that the new line of Bente Rehm's mod earnings were forgotten in the rush at last Saturday's Mod Fashion Show and were left in the dressing room at the McPherson—anyway you can see them at Pandora's Box—they're really wild . . . .

The "surfing kings," The Beach Boys will do a show on August 17 at Victoria's Memorial Arena—as yet, no word of who else is on the show . . . The Sound of Music is going into its 18th week at the Odeon—that must be some sort of record for Victoria.

NOONTIME organ concert at Christ Church Cathedral today, featured Lynne Dougan. The young, scholarship-winning organist will appear at the console again next Saturday at 12:15, when she will perform the Bach C Major Prelude and Fugue and Franck's A minor Chorale. The concerts, specially arranged for Victoria visitors, last approximately 40 minutes.

Touch Of Magic In Show

What happens when a witch falls in love?

She loses her magic powers. Her warlock brother despises her. Her feline 'familiar' runs away.

And worst of all, she learns what it's like to shed real tears and feel real emotion. Is love worth it all?

That's what attractive young modern-day witch Gillian Holroyd finds out in Bell, Book and Candle the John van Druten comedy Bastion Theatre is presenting as its straw hat theatre summer special, July 22 to 30 at the McPherson Playhouse.

Ann Purdon, (who was last in Royal Gambit as the ill-fated Jane Seymour) plays the witch.

KOOKY AUNT

John Bergbusch (last in the University of Victoria production of The Changeling) is her younger brother. Gertrude Ball is their kooky Aunt Queenie.

Lawrence Eastick, currently a prince and a magician in Bastion's children's shows at the Butchart Gardens, plays Shep Henderson, the bewitched lover; and Hugh Henderson is Sidney Redlitch, author and self-styled expert on witches and magic.

Pyewacket, most famous of stage cats, is played by Vicki, a talkative Siamese, who has added dialogue of her own to the play.

UP IN FLAMES

A play about witchcraft should have a touch of magic about it, and Bell, Book and Candle has some interesting effects . . . doors which open by themselves, a special paint that goes up in flame, and in addition, some authentic sounding incantations.

Bastion's production is directed by Peter Mannering. Repeating an innovation made with the comedy hit of last summer, Nina, seats are two for the price of one on opening night, Friday.

Curtain time is 8:30.

Workshop Offers Golden Chance

A unique event in Victoria's musical history is coming the week of Aug. 14 to 19.

This is the first Canadian-based workshop of the National Association Teachers of Singing Inc., Northwest region.

The distinguished vocal teachers and internationally noted authorities who will conduct seminars include Hubert Kockritz, chairman of the voice department of the College Conservatory of University of Cincinnati; Gwendolyn Koldofsky, a renowned accompanist; Mario and Ruth Miller Chamlee, former opera stars and noted for their Hollywood voice studio.

Nothing of this kind for singers has been held in Victoria previously and the opportunity is a golden one for city vocalists who take part in the week-long sessions.

Among fringe benefits which all Victoria music lovers may enjoy is a program by Richard Proudman, organist and choral master, and the boys of Christ Church Cathedral on the evening of Aug. 15, at the cathedral.

Then on Aug. 16 at 8:15, a recital will be given by Canadian baritone Harry Mossfield at the McPherson Playhouse.

FIVE YEARS

Mr. Mossfield spent five years in England and Europe where he made an international name with performances in London, West Berlin, Frankfurt, Hamburg, Prague, Vienna, Geneva and Milan.

Before leaving Canada he was principal baritone with the Canadian Opera Company and Stratford Festival Opera Company.

MOSSFIELD
. . . baritone

In 1960 he returned from Italy to join Tyrone Guthrie's Gilbert and Sullivan productions at Stratford, appearing with them in New York and London and at the Vancouver Festival.

His recital at the McPherson, in which he will be accompanied by his wife, while primarily for registrants of the NATS Workshop, will be available to the public.

Registration for the full week of sessions, teaching demonstrations and discussions, is $32.50.

Any single day costs $7.50.

"From Seattle to Mexico, from Vancouver to Ontario, no other place can compete with Victoria," said our California guest.

"I'm not talking about your parliament buildings, your gardens or your pleasant shopping areas either," he told Les Szabo, our maitre d' in our poolside dining room.

"What you have above all else is easy access to the best boating area on the west coast—sheltered, cosy harbors, deserted beaches, quiet islands with shady trails where deer peek at you, bays where porpoises play and you can see a whale or catch a salmon.

"You can enjoy a modern hotel by night and cruise your cares away by day.

"Forget your Little Bit of Olde England bit and advertise your real assets," he said, ". . . or are the natives trying to keep it a secret?"

PETER GARVIE, WIFE MARY, SON MARTIN

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

It is many years now since the first occasion on which a distinguished visitor commented to me that what Victoria needed and deserved most, was a substantial and progressive fine arts program.

Since then the thought has been repeated many times by many different people—resident and non resident, old-timers and new-comers.

To many of us who have pondered the idea at length it seems to be one answer—perhaps the only one—to over-concentration on tourism.

I am fully aware of the importance of the tourist industry to the economic life of a city like ours, but its heavy promotion has dangers that should be obvious.

For example, the erosion of the rights and interests of residents in favor of the ebb-and-flow population; the superficiality expressed in some kinds of instant tourist-eye-appeal and in fact, the actual seasonal nature of the business.

We are fortunate in that there has been exceptional vision at work in Victoria which has produced something of value for everybody in the two delightful "square" developments.

But the dangers of tourism still lurk in the background and Victoria's need to stand for something more constant and substantial will continue to demand attention for a long time to come.

* * *

It seems to me that there is a time and a tide in the affairs of cities as well as of men, and that time and that tide may well be at hand for this city.

The materials have been provided successively.

First the long established Symphony Orchestra, then the School of Music, lastly the Fine Arts Department at the University of Victoria.

And now, in Peter Garvie, we have the man whose job it will be to co-ordinate, to develop and to direct the next sequence of events.

Mr. Garvie will take up his post as head of the Fine Arts Department on August 1.

* * *

We talked this week about his ideas and concept of the role his department must assume, not only in the campus but in the community life.

"The faculty and the students must enrich the community," he commented.

"It is no good for a university to be a world apart, unrelated to the city and surrounding area. There must be integration of one kind and another."

He is in agreement that Victoria is an ideal setting for concentration of the study and practise of the arts.

Yes, it could happen here, he feels—development that would cause the city to be known as an artistic centre of Western Canada.

Mr. Garvie, who first came to Canada in 1948 with a Cambridge University degree in Literature, is particularly happy over the appointment to his staff of Dr. Alan Gowans, distinguished art historian, who will chair the division of art and art history.

One of his chief concerns at the moment is that the music and theatre divisions should be chaired by men of as equal calibre as possible.

Blue-eyed, friendly, athletically youthful looking—he is 39—his manner is quiet and reposed but this only enhances a dynamic positive personality that suggests a get-things-done leadership for the Fine Arts Department.

In other words, putting two and two together, Mr. Garvie and his department promise to be "just what the doctor ordered" for the Greater Victoria area.

* * *

From observations he has already made, he has definite views about the importance of close liaison with the Victoria Symphony and School of Music.

He considers the symphony orchestra vitally important in its relationship to Uvic's fine arts department.

"The symphony must have our fullest possible co-operation," he comments. And with no prompting he added that its annual budget of $100,000 "is certainly not enough to attract muscisians who will continue to develop its quality.

When he has been in the city a little longer he will know that in certain circles music is considered a write-off, a plaything, and that it is still regarded as absurd to PAY musicians for having "fun."

Maybe he, his department and staff will provide the means of breaking down this last bastion of frontier thinking.

* * *

Since coming to Canada Mr. Garvie has been associated with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in news editing, public affairs and production, including seven years in Vancouver. In the past year he has been program director of the English network, stationed in Toronto.

He is also a successful creative writer, having published short stories and poems and written a number of radio plays.

Confidently taking up the challenge of developing the new department, he is keenly appreciative of Uvic president, Dr. Målcolm Taylor's ambition for it—"that it should be absolutely first class."

"Good solid academic content is what we will look for," he says. "The Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees must really mean something wherever our graduates may go subsequently.

Mr. Garvie considers what has already been done in the Theatre Division under Carl Hare, excellent. "Mr. Hare is a man of exceptional talent, energy and ideas," he comments.

There may be many phases of the arts in the future, he feels, which would come under consideration in their own good time.

"We will certainly be aware of, and watch attentively, the enormous expansion in interest in films, for one thing," he notes.

Will there eventually be a CBC outlet in Victoria?

Mr. Garvie can't say, naturally. But he promises a close contact between his department and CBC.

"And of course, there is a possibility of an outlet in this city—the thought has been there for some time. It's the financing that is the problem."

What else?

The money tree from which all goodies must be plucked growgs, paradoxically, from the root all evil.

Vancouver Contribution in 1967

A portion of the $51,000 grant made by the Centennial Commission to the Vancouver Opera Association will cover the fee of world-famous soprano Joan Sutherland for an appearance in one of her most famous roles, the tragic heroine of Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor.

In addition to Lucia, the association will present Traviata with Virginia Zeani, and Rigoletto.

These projects will be the contribution of the Vancouver Opera Association to Festival Canada as part of the Centennial celebrations.

HALF-WAY TO FAITH by Lord Eccles. Collins, 1966. $3.00.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

In Half-Way to Faith, Lord Eccles, a former member of the British Cabinet, in private life a successful businessman and art collector, examines his own faith. In the process, he makes a number of interesting and provocative statements concerning Christianity in the modern world.

He begins his examination of religion by approaching the Bible as a work of art, the product of conscious artists. As art, the Bible "changes and grows in response to the imagination of every man who loves it."

Traditionalists who view the scriptures as unalterable and divinely inspired and hence not subject to the same analysis and criticism as other works of men, may be outraged by this approach.

If one can accept the approach, examination of the central problem of the New Testament is exceedingly interesting.

They Were Faced With a Problem

Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, as artists, were faced with the problem of reconciling in their portraits of Christ his humanity with his divinity.

All four attempted to explain Christ and make his doctrines acceptable to their Jewish contemporaries by means of the Old Testament; it is the employment of this means that makes it difficult for modern man, with his scientifically oriented education, to accept the Bible.

The authoritarian nature of the Old Testament, its insistence on an anthropomorphic God transcendent rather than immanent in the life of man, and its statement of faith in divine favoritism towards the Jews runs counter to modern thought.

Thus, if one sees the Old Testament as a means to an end in terms of Christian teaching, and recognizes the validity of the artistic principle involved, it is not difficult to accept the next step in Half-Way to Faith: the discarding of the Old Testament in attempt to arrive at an authentic picture of Christ and an accurate assessment of his philosophy.

Lord Eccles believes that the need for the Christian ideal is as great today as it ever was, and that science, far from depriving man of his need for religion, is increasing that need.

"As science advances the human mystery deepens. Life becomes more comfortable for the body and more confusing for the spirit."

This pressing need can be met only by stripping and cleaning the scriptures of the accretions of centuries.

Freed from the forms and symbols used by the original authors, the true historic facts and accurate teachings of Jesus should emerge. Then the original gospel may be reinterpreted in terms and images drawn from the world we live in.

Man Needs a Personal God

Modern man needs the revival of the concept of a personal God; hence Lord Eccles is in opposition to Dr. Robinson, the Bishop of Woolwich, whose book, Honest to God, suggests that the updating of Christianity will necessitate the abandonment of the personal God in favor of God as "ultimate reality."

Lord Eccles suggests this restatement of Christian teachings, the modernization of the scriptures is possible in terms, not of God, but of "glorious freedom, freedom for ourselves as individuals, for our country, and for men everywhere in the world . . . The political and social freedom for which we rightly care so much, reconciled with that 'service which is perfect freedom' which is the heart of the gospels."

This reconciliation of Christian freedom with secular freedom is essential for the salvation of modern man, who has concentrated on his rights and forgotten his obligations, has broken the tie between liberty and virtue. Lord Eccles does not give the detailed means by which the modernization of the scriptures may be accomplished, nor does he resolve the problems such a modernization might pose for ecclesiastical organizations.

But Lord Eccles writes not as a theologian or a philosopher but as a troubled layman, sincerely searching for answers in Christian teachings. He asks many questions that show a profound insight into the problems of modern man.

As an amateur in religion, he suggests methods by which the problems of Christianity may be solved rather than indicating the nature of the solution to be found.

ANTI-SEMITISM ON BOTH SIDES

THE MISSION, by Hans Habe. Clarke, Irwin and Co. 316 pages. $5.50. (Translated from the German by Michael Bullock.)

Reviewed by Glen Allen

Back when Hitler's dagger was poised over Europe and the thirties were moving from one kind of dirtiness to another, a man was given a mission.

It was a sordid, disgraceful mission. It failed. It would have failed even if it had not been doomed.

But the story of its failure, as told in The Mission, makes a compelling book about the failure of the collective human spirit.

Heinrich Von Benda, a Jewish professor of medicine from Vienna and a highly-respected member of the world academic community, was sent by the Nazi rulers of Austria — it was 1938, year of the Anschluss — to a conference at Evian-les-Bains.

HELP JEWS

Representatives of 32 nations had gathered at this French watering place at the request of President Roosevelt, to discuss ways and means of helping Jews in Germany and Austria, clearly imperilled under the Nazi regimes.

Von Benda's desperate wish and his overlords' proposal was that foreign nations buy the release of the Jews for $250 per head.

The conference, actually held July 6-15, 1938 — at which author Habe, as League of Nations correspondent for the German language Prague "Prager Tagblatt," was present — was no more than nine days of prevarication, cowardice and bluff.

The book is an acute account of how men are intoxicated by their own vocabularies, by the style, not the truths, with which they define the gravest of moral and political questions.

DID NOTHING

The diplomats and the countries they represented did nothing at all. The dark insane plans of Germany, though clear enough, were unheeded.

None of the delegates offered to accommodate the Jews (which they couldn't have done anyway — evidence was that Germany wouldn't have sold the Jews for $25,000 a head).

Their reasons went undeclared — perhaps a muted xenophobia, in some cases anti-semitism little better camouflaged than Germany's own.

For them the conference was most successful when, having heard and rejected Von Benda's plea, it broke up into sub-committees and thence into high-flown but already attentuated intentions.

REAL STORY

The Mission is a real story — six million dead European Jews go to testify how real. There was a Von Benda — but he had another name.

That same little town in Haute-Savoie was the site of the epilogue to the story of the Von-Benda mission.

Over 20 years later France and Algeria met there to decide on a truce in their eight-year war, a horrible war of attrition in which one million Algerians died.

It was also a war in which torture, and summary trial and execution were common. Other wars like it continue.

Mr. Habe's acute book makes this terrible truth all too clear: As he warns, men will be meeting at Evian and at places like Evian and telling lies and excusing what they have done to each other until finally and for good it can be said that the human spirit will go forever unsupervised and hate forever bankrupt.

World Heard Shot ...It Was No Secret

Reviewed by Frederick Kriege University of Victoria

Nowadays the name of Archduke Franz Ferdinand will be familiar to a very few people only and even they may, paradoxically, know something about his death but hardly anything about his life. The Secret of Sarajevo by Herta Pauli tells about this life and makes a half-hearted attempt to show how its events and circumstances led. almost with the necessity of fate, to its tragic end.

This tragic end was Franz Ferdinand's assassination in Sarajevo on the portentous 28th of June, 1914. A month later, the First World War had officially begun; not only because of the fear of losing prestige and power, but also because of misjudgment and ineptitude, the rulers and diplomats of Europe, mostly against their better intentions, had failed to prevent its outbreak.

The title Herta Pauli gave her book—The Secret of Sarajevo—is a twofold misnomer. She tells far more than the preliminaries and facts of Franz Ferdinand's assassination, since her book contains a full biography of the archduke.

After the suicide of Crown Prince Rudolf in the year 1889, Franz Ferdinand had become the successor to the crown of Emperor Franz Joseph. He was suffering from tuberculosis and nobody expected him to live long enough to ascend to the throne.

To restore his health, he undertook in 1892 and 1893 a travel around the world. Coming from Japan, he disembarked in Vancouver and journeyed through the United States.

The fact that people of so many and different national backgrounds lived harmoniously together in the U.S., all contributing their share to make "e pluribus unum", left a deep impression on his mind.

Why then should it be impossible to stop the fruitless strife of Austria's many nationalities?

Why should shortsighted and greedy politicians be permitted to incite the centrifugal forces of a mad nationalism that threatened to tear asunder an empire which the centuries had put together?

Thus, the reforming of Austria-Hungary into the "United States of Austria" became the purpose and aim of his entire life. But he was only the successor to the throne, and he lacked real power.

NO INFLUENCE

He complained, like so many heirs to a throne had done before him, that he had no influence on the decisions that would determine the future of the state. But Franz Ferdinand was too energetic a man just to give in and wait. Besides, in his opinion, the reforms he advocated could not be put off without serious risk for the existence of the state. The emperor, however, old and perhaps tired—had reigned since 1848—was afraid of changes that might bring about violent conflicts, especially with the Hungarians.

Half a century of experience had led him to believe that the remedy Franz Ferdinand prescribed could perhaps prove more dangerous than the illness it meant to cure.

Thus a natural antagonism between two generations and a difference of characters was sharpened by a conflict of irreconcilable ideas; a clash between the emperor and the heir to the throne had become inevitable and it lasted to the archduke's tragic end.

Herta Pauli tells all this in her book and it is obvious from the many references to source material that she has made a thorough study of the period and its personalities. Thus, the book gives much more than its title promises. If, however, the title is meant to indicate that there was a "secret" about the assassination of the archduke, there is still a misnomer, since the authoress has failed to unveil this alleged secret.

She cannot prove conclusively that the many enemies of Franz Ferdinand put him into a situation where an assassination attempt was, so to say, a risk they knowingly calculated.

COWARDICE

Even if there were some forewarnings about the murderous intent of the Serbian nationalists, how could a great power yield to threats of such a nature without being accused of cowardice and without suffering an irreparable damage of its prestige?

The authorities in question were certainly not free of guilt and Herta Pauli's book shows this very clearly. They were guilty of overconfidence and a corresponding lack of sufficient precautionary measures, but there is not a trace of proof that these officials were motivated by malice of forethought.

Herta Pauli's book is not a scholarly work. It is neither brilliantly written nor does it betray a special perspicacity in presenting the forces and characters that shaped the period before 1914. Nevertheless, it has the merit of rectifying widely held errors, of being unpretentious, factual and very readable. The professional historian as well as the lover of biography will profit by its perusal.

Highway Safety

A timely publication, in view of the current clamor over road safety and automobile insurance, is a book from the Musson Company. Unsafe at Any Speed by Ralph Nader, discusses the designed-in danger of the automobile.

A Washington, D. C. attorney, Mr. Nader has written a startling and challenging book, fearlessly indicting the manufacturers who have been consistent only in their obsession with speed and style to the exclusion of crashproof features that have long been within easy reach.

Every Delivery Exciting for Wop

WOP MAY by Iris Allan, Clarke Irwin & Company Limited, $3.75.

Reviewed by A. F. Greenwood

Even before his brother read to him, from the Edmonton Bulletin, the story of the successful flight at Kitty Hawk, Wop May had dreamed of flying. His dream came true. In World War I he became one of Canada's great fighter pilots with thirteen enemy aircraft to his credit.

After the war he continued to fly and took a major part in the development of air transportation in Canada's North-West.

Few flights were routine. Unreliable aircraft, non-existant navigational or weather aids and sketchy maps made every delivery an adventure.

PUBLIC EYE

On many occasions Wop May was in the public eye, notably for the part he and his airplane played in tracking the Mountie-slaying Mad Trapper of the North in the thirties, and again on New Year's Day 1929 when he took off from Edmonton in an open cockpit airplane at forty below and flew diptheria antitoxin which successfully quelled an epidemic at Fort Vermillion.

One of our great bush pilots. Wop May won the McKee trophy in 1929 and went on to become an executive of one of Canada's Airlines.

He died in 1952 at 56 years of age.

Iris Allen has touched the highlights of May's adventurous career in Wop May, a book written for the young—too young methinks to read.

DICK AND JANE

"The game little aircraft" and "Wop skipped, hopped, dived" (flying yet!) belongs to Dick and Jane.

It is a mistake to write down to children. Our nippers are a pretty sophisticated bunch and understand the technicalities of science and modern aircraft better than some people think.

Give the youngster a book with some meat in it, a quiet corner, and a dictionary. He'll make out.

While I'm at it I would like to chide the publishers. By assiduous reading of the fine print, 34 line blurb on the inner jacket, one can find the words "Young readers" on the 31st line. Nowhere else is it mentioned that this is not an adult book.

This smacks of Caveat Emptor. I forsee many a disappointed ex-flyboy dear old Dad or Grandad diving avidly into Wop May, a gift lovingly presented by a hasty young purchaser.

"Game little aircraft" indeed!

Retire? That's Filthy Word —Hemingway

PERSONAL MEMOIR, by A. E. Hotchner. Random House of Canada, $6.95.

Reviewed by R. J. Bishop, Department of English, University of Victoria

"Sure, I've got six books I declare to win with. I can stand on that. But unlike your baseball player and your prize fighter and your matador, how does a writer retire? No one accepts that his legs are shot or the whiplash gone from his reflexes. Everywhere he goes, he hears the same goddamn question — what are you working on?"

●

In July, 1961 when the news broke that Ernest Hemingway had killed himself at his home in Ketchum, Idaho, while cleaning a gun, the entire literary world was shocked.

Later when it became apparent that Hemingway had deliberately killed himself his admirers were left asking "Why?"

Why had the most successful author of twentieth century America, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, a man notable for his conviviality and his eager joy in day to day living — why had he put an end to it all?

A. E. Hotchner, an intimate of Hemingway's last fourteen years, has given us in his book Papa Hemingway, A Personal Memoir, the fullest answer we have yet received. Based as it is on what happened during visits to the Hemingways during the years 1948-1961, on tape-recordings of conversations with Hemingway, it is a most moving book:

"Am always bored when am hit or smashed up. Never like to be in bed without a woman or a good book or the Morning Telegraph . . . I can tell you I am getting tired of being smacked on the head."

So spoke Hemingway of an almost fatal accident he had in 1951 on his boat Pilar, while he was out fishing off Havana.

But once he recovered, Hemingway was buoyant, ready to enjoy life once more. Then on safari in Kenya, in 1954 a plane crash left him with internal injuries from which he never recovered.

"The doctor on the boat was very good. Gave me some stuff for the kidneys and scissored away all the dead flesh from the burns — very classy doctor — but, listen, Hotch. . . ."

One sees Hemingway trying to put his illness behind him, trying to continue his writing, trying to live as hugely as he had always done. Increasingly however he was nagged by ill health, unable to eat, unable to drink, pursued by an ever increasing series of pills for this and that.

Increasingly too he came to worry about his writing. Now, the man who, 20 years before, had been content to go for a decade without writing a book drove himself relentlessly to his desk in attempts to write, and more and more frequently came away with a sense of failure.

"The worst death for anyone is to lose the centre of his being, the thing he really is. Retirement is the filthiest word in the language. Whether by choice or by fate to retire from what you do — and what you do makes you what you are — is to back up into the grave."

As Hemingway saw it he had nothing to lose when he pulled the trigger. The sea was finally too much for the old man. "It is tragic but like all tragedy, preordained."

Repeated Diet Tedious

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

This is a collection of 14 short stories. It has the appearance of a small book. Only when one begins to read it does it seem to become extremely long.

Perhaps the reason for this tedium arises from the fact that the stories are written according to a formula. While a recipe used once may create a good cake, or a formula a good story, a repeated diet of the same cake or story tends to destroy the consumer's enthusiasm.

However, for readers who may be interested, Mr. Sansom's story formula follows:

DELICIOUS IRONY

Take a folksey, lonely but gallant character and blend him with the dry ingredients of large or small misfortune, then with the wet ones of pathos dampened by tears. The combination is baked slowly in an oven warmed only slightly by too many words. The finished product is topped by a thin layer of what might be termed "delicious irony."

Readers who find themselves interested in this confection by the recipe just given will certainly get their fill in The Ulcerated Milkman.

Those less than enthusiastic about the combination of ingredients will probably find the most delicious sample to be the shortest story in the collection, "The Little Sailor."

Handy Atlas For School Children

This is a very handy and quite valuable atlas to have about the house, especially if you have children of school age. Most of the maps deal with Canada and its provinces, but there are many others covering other nations in somewhat less detail.

The well-illustrated maps cover such items as political divisions, landforms, farming, mining, industries, temperatures, waterfalls, and so forth.

There are a good number of maps illustrating the routes of the famous explorers. The introductory pages are very well done.

Strabismus

Strabismus or squint is the condition where the eyes are turned from their normal position either inwards or outwards.
When the eyes are not in their normal position two greatly different images are presented—one from each eye. This is very confusing to the brain and the person will see double for a time and then one image will be ignored, and only one eye is used in seeing. The result is a lowering of vision in the unused eye.
This condition is particularly serious in children because if one eye goes unused for even a short time, then there will be little or no vision in that eye in later life.
Squint can very often be overcome with glasses or visual training or both but sometimes an operation is required to straighten the eyes. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least every two years.

FULL SPEED AHEAD is attitude of small-boat builder Tom Fee, who stands near two of the 40 boats his Canoe Cove firm will turn out this year. His sales are mainly in U.S.

BOAT COSTS LOWER IN CANADA

He Thinks Small in Big Way

By TERRY IZZARD

Think small!

It's more profitable that way.

This seems to be the case when it comes to boat building.

BUSINESS BOOMS

While the larger shipyards in Victoria and Vancouver experience increasing difficulties competing with eastern yards, Tom Fee's business is booming.

What was just a glorified potting shed back in 1930 is now a highly streamlined workshop, capable of turning some 40 boats off the assembly line this year.

While others have mourned rising wages and sinking profits, the 41-year-old Sidney man has kept up with the times.

The 30 employees in the boat works operate under similar conditions to factory workers in a car assembly plant.

Instead of one or two men looking after every operation in the building of a boat, each man is responsible for his own section.

And it has paid high dividends.

FLORIDA BOATS

Only this year, Mr. Fee was granted the first licence in Canada to build the well-established line of Bertram Boats, which in the past have been manufactured exclusively in Florida.

This has brought increased trade, including orders for eight of the 25-foot Bertram cruisers by the Canadian Hydrographic Survey service.

In addition, 12 of the vessels have been built for private owners and more orders are on the books.

Costing from $7,500 for a 20-foot to $75,000 for a 38-foot, the boats can be built here for 30 per cent less than in the U.S.

Although most of the parts are imported from the U.S., Mr. Fee's chief market lies in the Pacific Northwest states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and even Kansas, Montana and Alaska.

Renowned for high performance and quality, the deep-V type vessels are of fibreglass construction and powered by either inboard or inboard-outboard engines.

Said Mr. Fee: "The demand for pleasure craft has been increasing steadily over the years.

"And it's going to go on increasing.

"While B.C. wages are among the highest in North America, it's still possible to market these boats at competitive prices—if the right approach is taken.

CHIEF FACTORS

"Modernization of facilities and equipment are the two chief factors in keeping ahead of the problem."

Fish Year 'Good' Despite Low Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will likely have an average fishing year despite below-average salmon runs in southern B.C. waters, cannery officials say.

The officials said large catches along the northern and central B.C. coast should offset the poor fishing in the south, particularly in the Fraser River.

Heavy pre-spawning mortality of Horsefly River sockeye salmon in recent years has resulted in a $15,000,000 loss to the salmon canning industry.

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, alarmed by the situation, has recommended a full biological and engineering study to find means to combat the losses.

An estimated $8,000,000 has been lost by fishermen because of the mortality.

Ford Dividend Declared

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. board of directors declared a 60-cent quarterly dividend this week. It is payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record July 28.

Ford has paid the 60-cent dividend since it was increased from 50 cents in the fourth quarter last year.

URANIUM COOLS

Investors Take July Holiday

By LARRY DWORKIN

Trading was quiet on Canada's stock exchange this week as the recent boom in uranium issues faded and investors headed for their summer resorts.

At Toronto, a total of 16,466,000 shares changed hands compared with 14,212,000 last week.

One analyst said that market activity is usually quieter in the summer because "many investors turn their thoughts to vacations instead of the stock market."

Uraniums cooled when rumors were denied that a West Germany delegation was carrying an order form for a large quantity of the precious metal.

SALES UNLIKELY

However, a spokesman for Eldorado Mining and Refining, the Crown corporation for marketing uranium, emphasized that no immediate sales are likely. And besides, such visits aren't unusual.

Other rumors that have helped push the price of the stocks higher include the lifting of the United States embargo on imports of uranium by 1970. The present embargo isn't due to expire until 1975.

At Toronto, Denison climbed 1c to 61⅞ although it reached a high of 65 before falling back. Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison shares, added ¼ to 15¼. Rio Algom, the country's second largest producer, dipped ¼ to 27.

Among other base-metal issues, Inco was up 2⅛ to 98¼. Falconbridge ⅞ to 97 while Cominco dropped ⅝ to 40¾ and Noranda ⅛ to 53½.

Quebec Natural Gas, which was fifth in this week's most actively traded industrials, fell 1c to 13½ when discussions were broken off with Northern and Central Gas concerning the possibility of a takeover of the Quebec firm. Northern was up ⅛ to 13⅛.

Pipeline Work

CALGARY (CP)—A $2,500,000 contract has been awarded to Banister Construction Ltd. to build gas pipeline laterals from Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd., it was announced Friday.

Company President J. C. Mahaffy said the contract includes 30 miles of lateral line from the Provost, Alta., area to the Saskatchewan border.

He said construction is dependent upon Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. receiving approval from the National Energy Board to export gas.

CHILE HIKES COPPER PRICE

SANTIAGA (AP)—The Chilean government has raised the price of export copper to 70 cents a pound. Industry sources predicted the move would drive customers to cheaper substitutes.

The government copper corporation, which had raised the price to 62 cents in April, said Friday's eight-cent increase would go into effect immediately.

There were indications, however, the price increase might not last.

Profit Declines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Company president William R. Foster said Ocean Cement and Supplies Ltd. profits for the six months ended June 30 were $778,842, down from $807,463 in Jan.-June, 1965.

to avoid the storms that risk loss of investment capital. A mortgage investment already provides a substantial hedge against loss.

For example: The $5,000 Mortgage on a $10,000 property . . . it would take quite a drop in values to effect even one dollar's loss on the investment.

Think about it . . . and you could decide that an investment in a mortgage, or a mortgage company, will provide the worry-free investment you are looking for.

If so, get a booklet on Victoria Mortgage Corporation and learn about the security they offer on a 7½% investment. Interest paid or compounded quarterly. No acquisition cost. Phone EV 4-7128 to receive your booklet by mail.

Wilson Cabinet Divided

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson's cabinet was sharply divided today over emergency measures designed to rescue Britain's shaky economy and strengthen the pound.

The "tough, comprehensive measures" Wilson promised to announce in about 10 days would be in addition to the Bank of England's one per cent rate increase and its freezing of about $280 million in lending money. Both were announced late this week.

The bank rate, which was increased to seven per cent, determines interest rates throughout the nation. The rate increase and the freezing of lending money were designed to make money harder to get and force a reduction of domestic spending.

NO RELIEF

However, they failed to relieve pressure on the beleaguered pound Friday in foreign exchange markets. And the Bank of England again was forced to draw on gold reserves to bolster it.

During the afternoon Friday the rate weakened progressively and finished ⅛ of a cent lower against the U.S. dollar and share prices fell heavily on the London Stock Market.

The division in the cabinet reportedly involved the treasury and economic ministers, who favor drastic action to cut spending, and also ministers whose departments would be affected by major cuts.

There was talk of possible cabinet resignations over the disagreement. Former Conservative prime minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said, "The general and inescapable conclusion is that the government is incapable of giving leadership because the cabinet is completely divided as to what to do."

He said Britain now was under a "seige economy."

The cabinet was expected to make final decisions on the extent of the credit squeeze on Thursday, and they would be announced the following week.

U.S. ROLE ATTACKED

OTTAWA (CP )— Members of the New Democratic party this week talked out a bill in the Commons to incorporate an insurance company, giving as their main reason the fact that the firm would be American-controlled.

The bill, introduced Jan. 25, would incorporate Aetna Casualty Company of Canada. The company would have initial capital stock of $5,000,000 with its head office in Toronto.

It came up for second reading during the private members' hour. The NDP blockade means the bill likely won't be considered again until October, after the Commons' summer recess.

Arnold Peters (Timiskaming), Frank Howard (Skeena) and Colin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), all NDP members, were the only MPs to speak on the bill.

Mr. Cameron said such foreign-controlled firms contributed to Canada's balance of payments deficit.

ONE OF THREE pontoons-and-legs for new offshore oil drilling rig is being constructed at Victoria Machinery Depot. The support was moved recently into the water off Dallas Road, where it will be completed. Pontoon is 25 feet high and leg, now about 40 feet high, will rise to 140 feet between pontoon and decking. Rig is being built for a Calgary company which will lease it to Shell Oil for work off Vancouver Island. About 300 workers are employed on $9 million project.

KITIMAT MEN VOTE STRIKE

KITIMAT (CP)—More than 1,800 employees of the big Aluminum Co. of Canada smelter here voted 93 per cent in favor of strike action following breakdown of wage-benefit negotiations, it was announced Friday.

The United Steelworkers of America, bargaining agent for the employees, claimed job security is being undermined by technological changes and contracting out of certain projects by the company.

The union is asking a $1.10 hourly increase in a two-year contract. The company has offered a 61-cent-an-hour raise over three years.

Alcan Eyes Smelter

TORONTO (CP)—Alcan Aluminium Ltd. said Friday it is prepared to consider building a smelter in Guyana, South America, where it obtains most of its raw materials for making aluminum.

The company made the statement after Prime Minister Forbes Burnham of Guyana said no alumina or bauxite would be taken out of the country in raw form when power has been developed there.

Aluminum Co. of Canada-Alcan is its parent company takes most of Guyana's alumina and bauxite, refining it at Kitimat and Arvida, Que.

FOR HEAVY WATER PROGRAM

Firm Wins Extension

OTTAWA (CP) — Deuterium of Canada Ltd. has been given another extension to decide whether it will be able to increase its heavy water facilities at Glace Bay, N.S., Mines Minister Pepin said Friday.

Friday was the deadline for the company to show proof of financial ability for the expansion and accompanying new contract from Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

But the deadline was extended to Aug. 15 when the company was unable to get a second bid covering construction for the proposed plant extension.

The present plant at Glace Bay was scheduled to start production of 200 pounds of heavy water a year at the end of this month. But informants say construction problems will delay the start of production until late in the year, probably October or November.

The heavy water, a rare form of normal water used to control the fission of uranium in nuclear reactors as well as to transfer heat to steam turbines, will be the first produced in Canada.

HAS CONTRACT

Deuterium of Canada now has a five-year contract with AECL calling for 1,000 tons of heavy water at $20.50 a pound. The company has aked for a larger contract, bringing it into line with one recently negotiated with Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. for 5,000 tons over 12½ years at an average price of $18.15.

Canadian General Electric announced June 15 its plant — scheduled to go into production by August, 1969 — would be built near Port Hawkesbury, N.S., on the south coast of Cape Breton Island about 80 miles southwest of Glace Bay.

An enlarged Glace Bay plant and the Canadian General Electric installation would make Canada a world leader in heavy water production.

Mine Suspended

IN TANKER SHIPS

Japan Will Receive U.S. Natural Gas

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Five oil companies have announced plans to supply Tokyo, Japan, with natural gas, through a new procedure permitting the gas to be hauled in tanker ships.

Marathon Oil Co., which will supply 30 per cent of the gas, announced that it and four other companies had reached agreement to supply 50,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas per year to Tokyo Gas Co. Ltd. and Tokyo Electric Power Co. Ltd.

All the gas will come from Alaskan Natural Gas Production of Marathon, Phillips Petroleum Co., Skelly Oil Co., Sinclair Oil and Gas Co. and Pan American Petroleum Co.

ISN'T EXACTLY NEW

It will be converted into a liquid at a plant Phillips will build and operate on Alaska's Kenai Peninsula. Marathon will furnish transportation to Japan in special refrigerated tankers.

The relatively new procedure of converting natural gas to liquid by refrigeration at minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit has been used by some foreign firms, but never by North American companies to supply overseas gas commitments, Marathon said.

The liquid natural gas will be similar to such liquified gases as butane and propane, but these are produced from the refining of crude oil and not by converting natural gas.

The liquified natural gas will be reconverted from its liquid stage after arrival at Negishi, near Yokahama.

No figures were announced for sale of the gas, expected to begin in 1969 and continue for 15 years. But Marathon said more than $100,000,000 would be required to build the processing plant, tankers and other facilities.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

COURTENAY—Around the B.C. Lions' body-building and character-strengthening camp for boys there's a dining room joke that goes thusly: "If you don't ask the coaches what's new you won't know; if you do, you won't know either."

This is not to say that Dave Skrien and his cast are unco-operative, unsmiling or unconcerned with the welfare of the news media.

They are. They wouldn't drive over one of them if they could help it. Some days, after some stories, they would have to think about it though.

The nature of the beast he operates makes it difficult for Skrien to live in constant harmony with the press.

Skrien brings 51 physical culturists to camp. In 13 days he has to decide which 32 to retain. If he goofs he wears the donkey's tail.

He is reluctant to discuss individuals until he can assess them against other folks. There's a vast difference in hitting when you go outside the lodge.

This means you can't walk up and ask him about 51 people every day . . . "Applebaum? Hmmm. Puts his shoes on his right feet. Had trouble with his face-guard at first. Kept digging into his neck. He's a prospect."

Champion Was Wine With Dry Facts

So what do you do?

You wish Jim Champion was around. Champion never went to bed (seemingly), never ran out of stories, was a master of dialect. When he left to go to St. Louis Cardinals as an assistant aide, I was so upset I destroyed my autographed Lions' team picture.

Billy Hildebrand, Champion's successor, and Frank Johnston, offensive tactician, are genial, efficient, polite chaps. But Champion was the wine to wash it down.

So you sit down with Senor Skrien and away we go . . .

Q: You say you have three positions open but you bring in 51 men or 19 more than you can carry when the season starts. Can you properly assess that many?

A: "I don't look at the situation that way. I have to carry 18 Canadians. I've got 21. Suppose one drops out and one or two get injured. That leaves me with 18. This is terrible. There should be competition for these spots. At tight end, our biggest problem last year, we have three men. If I had only two and one was hurt, I'd have to go with the survivor not because he was the best perhaps but because he was all there was left.

"Ideally I would like to have candidate-job ratio of three-to-one. Atlanta which has yet to play its first National Football League game has 114 players at camp."

Execution, Not System Caused Fall

Q. Why are you changing your defence and offence?

A: "We haven't changed in three years; the others are catching on to us. In two of those years Tom Brown played the finest football any man could. But he was injured severely last year and suffered a recurrence here. We're not expecting he will be unavailable. But we have to set up a defence that is not built around one man.

"We are switching our offence—more reverses and pitch-outs—to take adantage of the rule changes. As you know all backs and ends can block anywhere. The fans may have trouble finding out who has the ball." Grinning . . . "I hope our people know who's got the ball."

Q: Last year grandstand quarterbacks cited your offence as unimaginative . . . and, no pun intended, offensive because it was stereotyped. Sir . . . ?

A: If we were unsuccessful because we stayed with a system that had won us a Grey Cup, then every team in the National Football League, including Green Bay Packers, was unsuccessful. There are only so many ways to line up, so many plays to call. The difference between winning and losing is execution. Last year we didn't execute as finely as we did in '64. There wasn't much of a difference but there doesn't have to be."

Mitchell Brightens Kicking Picture

Q: Are you pleased with the trades that brought you Bill Mitchell from Edmonton and Bill Crawford from Calgary?

A: "Very pleased. Mitchell gives us a Canadian centre and an excellent kicker.

"Last year we tried 24 field goals. We made 10. Of those missed we scored only three rouges. That's 11 points missed. A lot of games are decided by a lot less.

"Crawford has come to play. I don't want to say any thing about (Steve) Cotter (traded to Edmonton); he played well for us. But Crawford, on what he's shown us, strengthens the team."

Q: Is this a produce-or-else year for Dave Skrien?

A: I couldn't coach on that premise. I do the best I can. I don't think you can coach to the fullest of your ability if you let yourself get tied up with that kind of ultimatum."

Rotsa ruck, Gabby—er, David.

Putter Carries Cupit To Two-Stroke Lead

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Jacky Cupit's putting helped him to a two-stroke lead at the 36-hole mark Friday in the $100,000 Minnesota golf classic.

Cupit drilled five birdie putts for more than 12 feet, including ones from 22 and 25 feet, for a five-under-par 66 and an 11-under-par 131.

Two strokes behind was Gene Littler, who streaked for five straight birdies on the first nine Friday, then had to settle for an even-par 35 on the second to post a 67 for a 133 total.

PELE

MIGHTY BRAZIL TOPPLED . . . . . . PRICE OF OVER-CONFIDENCE

'Magical Magyars' Come to Life

LONDON (AP)—Brazil's eight-year reign as a giant of world soccer today rests on a single match and one man named Pele.

The world champions, defeated 3-1 Friday by a Hungarian side, next take the field against Portugal Tuesday.

It is a match they have to win and such are the complexities of World Cup soccer that even victory may not be enough to ensure Brazil a place in the quarter-final round.

With three games played in Group Three, Portugal, Brazil and Hungary are tied with two points each. Bulgaria has none.

If the series ends with three teams holding four points, each goal average will be the decider. That means Brazil must beat Portugal.

Perhaps remembering Pele's early injury in the 1962 series and their last bruising battle with the Hungarians in 1954, the Brazilians left their greatest star resting in his hotel room, while his colleagues went down to their first World Cup defeat since 1954.

In other matches Friday Uruguay defeated a demoralized French team 2-1, Spain came from behind to beat Switzerland, also by 2-1, and North Korea snatched a 1-1 draw against Chile with a goal two minutes from time.

Fans and critics were overjoyed, not just by the downfall of the mighty, but also by a thrilling match that raised memories of the days when the Hungarians were the shining lights of European soccer—"the Magical Magyars."

The Hungarians "won themselves the greatest following any foreign team has had on British soil," writes Clive Toye in the Daily Express today.

"Passes, long, short, and nearly always lethal, were stabbed across the soggy turf with such precision that Brazil was exposed as fallible and not soccer invincibles after all."

For that extra touch of drama, the fans saw Mezsoly, who scored Hungary's third goal on a penalty kick, go down with a serious shoulder injury with 10 minutes to go—then rush back on to the field three minutes later to play with his arm in a sling.

While Hungary got the lion's share of attention, it was a full night in the World Cup, with games in each of the four round-robin series that will cut the field of 16 countries to eight for the quarter-finals.

"Uruguay CAN score goals," is the surprised headline in The Express after the team that held England to a scoreless tie Monday in the first game defeated France 2-1 Friday.

The Hungarians, Olympic champions, and Brazil fought out an even first half, each scoring a goal with fierce but scrupulously-fair attacking football.

Then the Hungarians took over. Janos Farkas scored what proved to be the winner and Meszoly then supplied the clincher.

Now, for Brazil, the chips are down and it will need all Pele's genius to bring the champions through to the quarter-finals and beyond.

For Hungary, the summit of world soccer is again within grasp. On Friday's form, no team in the world could stop them. They played with exactly the style of the Hungarians who beat England in the historic Wembley exhibition match of 1953.

Russ Nips Italy

LONDON (CP)—Russia qualified for the World Cup soccer quarter-finals by defeating Italy 1-0 today and Portugal virtually clinched a berth in the round of eight with an easy 3-0 victory over Bulgaria.

In the other day match of the fifth day of competition, Argentina set up a rough defensive wall and held West Germany to a scoreless tie, the second of the tournament, leaving the two countries deadlocked for first place in Group Four with another game each left to play.

England, which played a scoreless tie with Uruguay, had a night match against Mexico on tap at London's Wembley Stadium.

The Russians and Portuguese now have won both their two starts, and the Russians in particular shape up as a real threat for the World Cup now that the starch has been taken out of Brazil's sails following its 3-1 loss Friday night to Hungary.

ON TOP SINCE 1958

Brazil has ruled world soccer since 1958, but the loss to the Hungarians may mean the Brazilians might not be able to reach the quarter-finals next Saturday, even if they win their remaining preliminary game against Portugal Tuesday.

In the powerhouse Group Three, Portugal now has four points and is 6-4 in the scoring column. Both Brazil and Hungary can achieve four points but will need mammoth scores to overtake Portugal on goal average, if the group ends up in a points-tie. Bulgaria, with two losses, is out of the running even if it wins its match against Hungary next Wednesday.

Only the first two teams in each of the four groups enter the quarter-finals.

England, tipped as one of the favorites after Brazil's defeat, the first in World Cup play since 1954, needed a win to keep its chances alive in Group One. Uruguay, with a tie and a win, leads the group with three points.

TIE IN GROUP TWO

West Germany and Argentina lead Group Two, each with a win and a tie for three points. Spain, with a victory and a loss, has an outside chance of reaching the quarter-finals.

At Sunderland, a crowd of 27,000 watched Igor Chislenko, the clever Soviet right winger, bewilder the Italian defence before scoring the vital goal in the 56th minute.

The Italians, at one time rated favorites to win Group Four, looked well beaten by the Russians, who started their star goalie, Lev Yashin, regarded by some experts as the best in the world.

BILL WRIGHT . . . impressive credentials

ONCE FIRED 62

Aussie Lefty Title Threat

By sports standards, Bill Wright was a late starter. He's a likeable Australian who could be the one to beat in the U.S. National Amateur lefthanded golf championships that get under way in Victoria Tuesday.

The 72-hole medal affair, drawing a field of 309 golfers from three countries, will be played at both Uplands and Royal Colwood courses.

His is an impressive record, and it may be of interest to note that Wright didn't take up golf until he was "an old man" of 22. He's 35 now.

It could be that some of Wright's golfing ability was acquired from Bruce Devlin. Or vice-versa. Devlin, the famed Aussie professional, and Wright are close personal friends.

As a southpaw swinger, Wright has enjoyed considerable success. He was the No. 3 qualifier in the Australian Amateur championships last year, losing out after a 23-hole battle in the second round of match play.

In 1962, he was a semi-finalist in the Australian tournament.

TOURNAMENT RECORD

His best-ever score was a seven-under-par 62, scored a few years ago. ("I was a demon putter in those days.")

Wright also holds the tournament recorded on Devlin's Gaulbourn course in New South Wales—a 36-hole total of 142. Gaulborn is rated a "tough" par 71 layout.

So, if records are your dish, watch Wright.

Chances are good that he will became the first Australian to win a U.S. National tournament in Canada.

The southpaws started arriving in force Friday. In addition to Wright, defending champion Fred Blackmar of Norfolk, Va., also checked in Friday.

UPSETS CAMERON

Jim Hassard In Net Final

Steady Jim Hassard, who had upset Pat Skillings in an earlier match, pulled out another surprise Friday night in the city tennis championships.

Hassard outlasted second-seeded Warren Cameron 6-4, 5-7, 6-1 to reach the final round of the men's singles event.

Aldeguer, who also reached the mixed doubles final and was in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles event, could be involved in five matches.

Doubles Final On Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. John Green of Oak Bay will meet Bill Cruickshank and Jessie Burden of Burnside in the final for the Cross Cup mixed doubles lawn bowling competition at the Burnside greens Sunday at 2 p.m.

Competition in the Ashford Trophy mixed triples event will get under way Monday at Burnside starting at 7 p.m.

Ashford Trophy draw:

TUESDAY — D. Green vs. D. Perrin; McArthur vs. D. Russell; J. McDonald vs. E. Atkins; Webster vs. K. Turner; A. Findlay vs. G. Walkey; K. Dickie vs. L. Malcolm.

WEDNESDAY — D. Thirlwell vs. F. Linder; J. Burden vs. E. Keating; all winners of Monday and Tuesday games.

Jerome Again Atop World Sprint Class

EDMONTON (CP) — Counted out by many observers as a factor in world track, Harry Jerome of Vancouver burst back into recognition as one of the world's fatest humans Thursday when he tied a world record in the 100-yard dash.

Jerome, 26, covered the distance in 9.1 seconds to tie a record set by American Bob Hayes in 1963 at St. Louis. Hayes now plays flanker for Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and is ineligible to compete in track.

About 1,200 fans were on hand for the first day of the 1966 Canadian track and field championships and British Empire Games trials and watched Jerome win without stress.

Two watches timed him at 9.1 and the third at nine seconds flat. He has rebounded from several leg injuries and failures at key intervals in his career.

WARMED UP

Jerome cruised through his first heat in 9.8 and a semi-final victory in 9.6, but close friends warned "he wants a good time in the final."

He got what he wanted—in a manner that almost caused observers to forget three Canadian records were set and one other was matched on a day when temperatures passed 80 and performances were almost uniformly good.

Jerome and Hayes now share the world 100-yard mark. They also hold the world record of 10 seconds flat for 100 metres in conjunction with Armin Hary of West Germany and Horacio Esteve of Venezuela

Hary was the first to run the 100 metres in 10 seconds. Jerome matched the time during trials for the 1960 Rome Olympics and Hayes posted his time while winning the event at the 164 Olympics at Tokyo.

TRIP IN DOUBT

Jerome is unsure whether he will travel to Kingston, Jamaica, next month with Canada's BEG team because he may decide to continue summer classes. He said it might be possible for someone to run 100 yards in nine seconds flat but would not commit himself when asked whether he could run any faster.

Jerome will compete today in the 220-yard dash and the 440-yard relay. After the competitions end today, officials will meet to discuss the makeup of the Canadian team to be entered at Kingston Aug. 4-13.

Certain to be highly considered are Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C., Zenon Andrusyshyn of Oakville, Ont., Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver, Marjorie Turner of Winnipeg and Lockport, N.S., and Cathy Chapman and Bill Gairdner of Toronto.

BACK WAS SORE

Steen opened the competition by defying a sore back to record a toss of 62 feet, 8¾ inches in the shot put. He erased his own Canadian standard of 60½. Andrusyshyn, a 19-year-old high school student, heaved the javelin 235 feet 8 inches to wipe out a mark of 231 flat set by Hans Mok of Toronto.

Mrs. Piotrowski won a heat of the 100-yard dash in 10.5 seconds over Diane Plowman of Winnipeg, beating the record she shared with Miss Turner and Yvonne Breedon of Vancouver by two-tenths of a second. However, Miss Turner, who posted a 10.7 in her heat, won the final in 10.5, one-tenth of a second faster than Mrs. Piotrowski.

Cathy Chapman tied the Canadian record for the women's 80-metre hurdles with a time of 10.8 seconds in a heat. She won the final in 10.9, edging Jenny Wingerson of Toronto, who previously held sole possession of the record.

Gairdner matched the Canadian record of 14.2 seconds in the 120-yard hurdles but his mark was nullified because the wind exceeded the allowable limit.

A Victoria broad jumper, Bill Greenough, just missed a first-place ribbon by a quarter of an inch. That was the difference between Greenough and Edmonton's Emmett Smith, who won the event with a leap of 22:11.5.

ELAINE TANNER, GILCHRIST . . . . . . CRACK MORE RECORDS

National Meet Just a Western Show

HAMILTON (CP)—They call them the Canadian amateur swimming championships, but it's a British Columbia show.

Swimmers from B.C. continued to dominate the championships and the British Empire Games trials Friday with Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., taking turns occupying the spotlight.

Miss Tanner, a 15-year-old high school student, broke her fourth Canadian native and open record in three days, clocking 2:33.1 in the 220-yard butterfly, one second better than her previous mark set two weeks ago in Vancouver.

Gilchrist, 20, a third - year business student at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, shattered the Canadian and native open record in the 220-yard individual medley with a time of 2:20.5 in the finals. He also broke the record in his heat earlier in the day with a 2:22.1 clocking.

Two other Canadian and native open marks toppled Friday, both to Vancouver relay teams. The Dolphins Swim Club team covered the 440-yard medley relay distance in 4:57.3, four-tenths of a second better than the previous mark set by the same club two years ago.

On the team were Miss Tanner, backstroke, Pat Gibson, breaststroke, Jane Hughes, butterfly, and Sylvia Bockerill, freestyle. Miss Tanner, Miss Gibson and Miss Hughes also swam on the 1964 team.

The Vancouver YMCA Torpedoes, made up of Bruce Sutherland, backstroke, Bill Mahoney, breaststroke, Brad Jacks, butterfly, and Ron Jacks, freestyle, set a record of 4:21.7 in the men's 440-yard medley relay.

The meet ends today with the selection of the Canadian swimming and diving team for the British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, next month.

Led by Gilchrist, Miss Tanner and Ralph Hutton, an 18-year-old native of Ocean Falls attending high school in Los Altos, Calif., west coast swimmers have won 18 of the 22 finals staged so far.

Miss Tanner has won five of nine women's individual finals—the 110 and 220-yard backstroke, the 220-yard butterfly, 440 freestyle and 440 individual medley.

Including heats, the five-foot-two, 115-pound brunette has won 12 of 13 individual races and been on two winning relay teams. She also set records in the 220 backstroke with a time of 2:34.1, the 440 freestyle in 4:46.4 and the 440 individual medley in 5:27.2

Between them Gilchrist and Hutton have won eight of nine men's individual finals. Gilchrist has won the 110 and 220 freestyle and 220 and 440 individual medleys while Hutton has taken the 110 and 220 backstroke, 220 butterfly and 440 freestyle.

Hutton won the 220 backstroke Friday and has set two records this week—a native mark of 4:19.0 in the 440 freestyle and an open and native record of 1:03.0 in the 110 backstroke. Earlier in the week, Gilchrist broke the 220 freestyle record with a 2:02.1 clocking.

Miss Tanner's only loss was to Marion Lay, another Vancouver resident, in the 110 freestyle Friday night. Miss Tanner finished second.

Victoria Cadet Bisley Standout

BROOKWOOD, England (CP)—A Winnipeg teenager with only a year's experience handling a large-bore competition rifle joins the experienced elite of Commonwealth marksmen today in the final of the annual Bisley rifle competition's premier event.

CUT FIELD

The Queen's is a three-stage event that opened Wednesday at ranges of 200 to 600 yards and cut the field of entries to 300.

Cottick posted the same score as Lt.-Col. William Strachan of Ottawa, a veteran of 13 visits to Bisley and commandant of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team.

LAC Jim Hennock of RCAF Cold Lake, Alta., goes into the Queen's with a 143, one better than Derek Daines and Arne Sorensen, both of Calgary, who shot 142.

Two other Canadian cadets made spectacular showings against strong adult competition Friday.

FINISHES FIFTH

Tom Nelson, 17, of Victoria, finished fifth out of almost 1,200 original entries in competition for the St. George's Challenge Vase, an event rated second only to the Queen's Prize. His final total of 139 out of 150 was the second-highest score, but three Britons with the same tally were placed ahead of him on the basis of better scores in the final of the three-stage contest.

Two Canadians stationed in Germany, Capt. W. V. Hall of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals and Sgt. Alfred O'Brien of the RCAF, won places in the final with 139, lowest score to qualify.

ALL-COMERS BEST

B. H. B. Wrey of the Oxford and Cambridge Rifle Association won the All-Comers Aggregate Trophy, based on six of the week's major events, shooting 314 of a possible 325.

Frank Whittle of Hodgeville, Sask., placed fifth with 306. Beckessy, Sorensen and Sewell each had 303, Brown 300, Rumbold 299, and Cpl R. J. Standen of Calgary, 299.

Canada, the only entry, finished third in a high-scoring match at the long ranges for the MacKinnon Trophy, which was won by England with 1,017 out of a possible 1,200.

Esks Just Miss With Great Rally

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos came up with two spectacular fourth-quarter touchdowns Friday but their rally fell short as Winnipeg Blue Bombers edged them 28-27 in a Western Football Conference exhibition game before a crowd estimated at 10,000.

Until mid-way through the third quarter, Eskimos appeared woefully inept, trailing 28-7 after Winnipeg's Ed Ulmer intercepted a pass and went for a touchdown at 6:26 of the third.

But the Eskimos came dangerously close to pulling the game out with a touchdown at the 15-minute mark of the third, followed by the two sensational plays, each of which covered 61 yards.

The last touchdowns were scored by Gerry Lefebvre and Mike Haffner. Edmonton's other touchdowns were scored by Butch Presley and quarterback Bill Redell. Tommy-Joe Coffeey converted three.

Tom Urbanik scored two touchdowns for Winnipeg. Maury Bibent and Ulmer scored one each. Mike Winton converted three. The Blue Bombers' other point was scored when Ed Turek was rouged on Ulmer's kick.

BIRD HUNTING TALK TOPIC AT GAME CLUB

Cepeda Ripping Rivals But Umpires Different

By Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds weren't having much luck with the big St. Louis slugger Friday night until umpire John Kibler interceded in the seventh inning of the Cardinals' 9-2 victory.

Cepeda was called out on a close play at first base and when he argued over the call, Kibler tossed him out of the ball game.

By then, the damage was done. Cepeda had whacked his 12th and 13th homers of the season and lifted his batting average to .324, fourth best in the National League.

ON A TEAR

The Cardinal first baseman, who came from San Francisco in the trade for Ray Sadecki, is on an 11-for-20 tear at the plate and seems completely recovered from the eye injury which sidelined him for two weeks last month.

Cepeda was struck by a batting practice line drive June 10. He returned to the line-up June 24, and in the three weeks since then he's had 25 hits in 73 at bats—a .342 pace.

Elsewhere in the National League, ex-Met Dick Stuart beat his former team-mates with a pinch single in the 11th inning as Los Angeles Dodgers edged New York Mets 4-3, Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 and San Francisco Giants downed Philadelphia Phillies 8-1 behind Juan Marichal. Houston Astros and Atlanta Braves were rained out.

ORIOLES STUMBLING

Pitcher Earl Wilson, batting as a pinch-hitter, cracked out a three-run homer in the 13th inning to carry Detroit Tigers to an 8-5 victory over Baltimore Orioles in the American League.

It was the fourth straight setback for the front-running Orioles.

In other American League games, Minnesota Twins edged Washington Senators 5-4, Kansas City Athletics came from behind to get New York Yankees 5-4, Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland Indians 4-2 and California Angels nudged Boston Red Sox 4-2.

Stuart, who was released by the Mets last month, beat his old team with a soft single to centre, scoring Ron Fairly from third. Fairly, who had walked, went to third on Jim Lefebvre's double.

Robin Roberts, making his first start for Chicago, dropped the Pirates into second place by scattering eight hits. Ron Santo led the Cubs' attack, with three straight hits, driving in four runs.

Willie Mays and Jim Hart smashed home runs, backing Marichal's five-hit pitching as the Giants whacked the Phillies.

The homers were No. 21 each for Mays and Hart and gave Willie 526, just eight short of Jimmy Foxx and second place on the all-time homer list.

Okanagan Marked By Roostertails

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Okanagan Lake exploded into spray Friday as the business of hydroplane racing got going in preparation for the British Columbia Cup unlimited hydroplane race Sunday.

Eleven giant boats will compete in the race, and seven of them made test trial runs on the lake Friday.

Miss Budweiser, piloted by Bill Brow of Seattle, Wash., was the day's fastest, turning in a test lap of 105.634 miles an hour over a 2.5-mile oval course.

Second fastest time of the day was posted early by Tahoe Miss, driven by Mira Slovak of Los Angeles. He did a lap in 105.386, which until late in the day, was Friday's fastest time.

Today was to be one of furious preparation for the big race, which is sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association and in which boats and drivers can gather points for the world championship.

Junior Rocks Tackle Lions

The two Victoria clubs have clashed twice before this season in the Vancouver Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League. Shamrocks won the first time and the Lions evened the score in the second clash to make tonight's tussle at Memorial Arena a duel for hometown supremacy.

Shamrocks are leading the league with a two-point edge of Nanaimo seniors with Red Lions six points off the pace.

Game time tonight is 8:30.

Colwood Combination New Button-Holders

Victoria's senior golf buttons fell into new hands this week when Colwood's Don Ross and Harry Pike defeated Moke Morgan and Clare Mitchell, a Gorge Vale pairing, on the 17th at Colwood. Next challengers are Eardley Wright and Bill Sanford of Oak Bay.

Gallo in Time To Save Sooke

Starting the bottom half of the seventh inning, McLarens were leading Sooke Forest Products 5-2 and only three outs away from taking over fourth place in the Senior Men's Softball League.

One of these potential outs was Gallo, but Mike touched off a three-run outburst and the game went into an extra inning.

In the eighth, Gallo ignited another outburst and the Forest crew finally nipped McLarens 6-5 and took over sole possession of second place in the six-team league.

Gallo, coming up as a pinch-hitter, opened the seventh frame with a single and moved around to score on singles by Gordie Eve and Jim Kennedy. Two sacrifice flies scored Eve and Kennedy forcing the extra inning.

Gallo came back to the plate in the eighth inning with one out and the bases empty. He lashed another single, scampered to second on a single by Eve and stole third.

Mike was forced at the plate before Sooke loaded the bases. Danny Lajuenesse belted a ground ball, it was bobbled in the McLaren infield and Sooke had a 6-5 triumph.

Faith Key to God

TORONTO (CP) — "There are three acts of faith which it is impossible for me to make," says Rev. Ernest Harrison.

"One, to say there is a God. Two, to say there is not a God. And three, to say there was once a God who died.

"Each one of them is just as much an act of faith as the others. There is no proof for any of them."

These statements typify the radical approach to traditional theology of Mr. Harrison, an Anglican minister for 26 years who plans to resign in September as associate general secretary of the Anglican Church of Canada's board of religious education.

Mr. Harrison was the man who came up with the idea of getting author and broadcaster Pierre Berton to write an agnostic's view of the church — a view which resulted in The Comfortable Pew.

A year ago, Mr. Harrison published Let God Go Free, a radical statement of his views on theology.

Recently he got himself into hot water when he became associated with the "God is dead" controversy. The "God is dead" group says that God, as theology sees Him, once existed but now is dead.

DENOUNCED AS HERETIC

Rev. Thomas Harpur and nine other Wycliffe College Anglican theologians wrote an open letter demanding that Mr. Harrison recant his heresy or be thrown out of the ministry and the church.

The furore reached such proportions that the executive members of the Anglican board of religious education conducted an investigation, backing Mr. Harrison's right to make controversial statements.

The statement said, in part, "In the present state of theological ferment, as indeed in all times, it is one of the functions of an educator to challenge the accepted opinions and formulations and to focus the problems of his day as sharply as he can. . . ."

Mr. Harrison continues to challenge opinions.

He calls for a moratorium on the use of the word God. "Let's put it on the shelf for a few years. I'd rather use my time getting to know some people than trying to define the indefinable.

"I believe that God — not using that word in the traditional sense — is discovered in knowing people, in the sharing of ideas, conviction, pressures, worries, intolerable burdens and intolerable joys."

HANDS TELL STORY of Bible message for deaf and mute persons attending Watchtower convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in Halifax. Similar facilities are planned at Empire Stadium convention in August. (CP Wirephoto)

Stadium Expected To Be Full

More than 500 Jehovah's Witnesses in the Victoria area are planning to attend a district convention in Vancouver's Empire Stadium, Aug. 3-7.

A crowd of 35,000 is expected from all parts of the Pacific Northwest and they are gathering for the purpose of listening to Bible discussions concerning God's will for man on earth.

He said cafeteria and rooming facilities are being provided. Hotels, motels and private homes in the Greater Vancouver area are being contacted for room listings, so all delegates are assured of having accommodation.

"Between sessions a cafeteria, manned by Witness volunteers, will be in operation providing full course meals three times a day, on the convention grounds. Facilities like this allow the delegates to obtain the maximum from the convention program.

HAVING TALKS

"At conventions of this magnitude, we have morning, afternoon and evening sessions designed to provide training in Christian living.

Since the Witnesses consider all members to be ministers, they strongly recommend that each one engage in a continuing schedule of study ad practical Christian service.

"The convention program is designed to take care of this need by having talks, demonstrations and discussions, analyzing Bible prophecy, Bible doctrine and Bible principles on morality and everyday living."

NEW BUILDING

Vatican to Get Daring Design

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — In 1968 the tiny Vatican state will get its first ultra-modern building, a concrete and stone hall of daring design capable of holding up to 24,000 persons for papal audiences.

The architect who designed what some still undoubtedly regard as a controversial structure in these surroundings is Pier Luigi Nervi, known throughout the world for his work in reinforced concrete.

Pope Paul holds a weekly general audience, usually Wednesday mornings, for about 5,000 pilgrims in St. Peter's Basilica. While this is a deeply moving setting, with the Pope sitting above the site of the tomb of his first predecessor, St. Peter, it has its practical drawbacks.

NOT ENOUGH SPACE

Large as it is, St. Peter's cannot always hold as many as would like to attend. Some of those present cannot get a good view, being behind pillars or up side aisles.

The Vatican therefore commissioned Nervi to design a special audience hall. Pope Paul personally studied Nervi's models and approved the plans.

The site has already been cleared on the side of the Vatican state near the Janiculum Hill, close to the Holy Office. It is both near St. Peter's, to which it will be connected by an underground passage, and St. Peter's Square, where cars may be parked.

The new hall will be in the shape of a trapeze, or partly opened fan. It will be 330 feet long, 264 feet wide at the broader end and 165 feet at the narrower end.

Perhaps the most striking feature will be the roof of undulating concrete ribs. It is designed to admit an increasing amount of light toward the base of the fan, where the Pope will sit. The concrete ceiling will be decorated with golden friezes.

Normally, the hall will have seats for 11,000 people. In addition there will be standing room for 2,000 while another 500 special seats will be placed around the Pope's dais.

For special occasions, however, the seats may be removed to provide room for 24,000 people standing.

BIBLE CLASS SCHEDULED

Some 170 girls and boys of Victoria have decided to make Vacation Bible School at Hill Memorial School a must to start the summer holidays, favoring the two-week session which includes new crafts, choral singing and character-building stories.

Closing exercises will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Ron Berry announced today. The program will include demonstration songs, a Bible quiz and numbers by a 100-voice choir. Crafts which have been part of the Vacation Bible School activities during the past two weeks will be displayed along with work-books.

FORMER Associate Director of the Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship for the United States, Rev. Herbert W. Butt, will be guest speaker at Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 3281 Harriet Road this Sunday. Mr. Butt will speak at the 11:15 a.m. and 7 p.m. services on The Sovereignty of God. He has written extensively on the subject. Mr. Butt is a graduate of the University of Washington in the field of history and received his B.D. from Dallas Theological Seminary. He is at present engaged in free-lance Bible teaching work and has just completed a series of Bible conferences in English speaking churches in Montreal.

New Deacon Elected By a Slip of Paper

ELMIRA, Ont. (CP) — Old Order Mennonites "made a deacon" here the other day.

The choice was made by the time-honored custom of choosing a man by lot. The method is based on Acts 1:26: "And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the 11 apostles."

More than 200 horses and buggies were tethered outside the meeting-house in Elmira, 12 miles north of Kitchener. Five were nominaged for the office.

The deacon is in charge of congregation's welfare. He is the one who first interviews backsliders. He must see that enough food, clothing and sustenance is available for less fortunate members of the congregation, the widows, the poor and the needy.

It is an onerous position, held for life, and there is no remuneration.

At the ceremony each of the candidates is given a Bible. The candidates are seated at the front of the church on rough wooden benches. As each is called, he gives his Bible to the bishop in the pulpit.

The Bibles then are taken to an ante-room where a slip of paper is placed in one. They are rearranged and brought back to the pulpit.

The bishop then tells the congregation of the seriousness of the position and each candidate is named. As his name is called, the candidate rises and chooses a Bible from in front of the bishop. The bishop constantly rearranged the Bibles as he speaks.

The candidate who finds the piece of paper in his Bible is the chosen man.

Gun Booms Forced Move Of Historic St. Paul's

St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church in Esquimalt is celebrating its centenary this year.

The foundation stone was laid on Aug. 30, 1866, by the wife of Admiral John Denman, commander of the Royal Navy establishment there.

It took only three months to complete the church and it was consecrated by the Bishop of Columbia on Dec. 12.

SIGNAL HILL

At that time, St. Paul's was situated close to the sea on the far side of Signal Hill. Esquimalt's population was then composed mainly of the residents of the naval village around the dockyard gates.

Frequent damage to the church windows from gales and the firing of heavy guns on Signal Hill resulted in the move to the present premises in 1904.

In 1910 Canada took over her own defence and St. Paul's became the church of the Royal Canadian Navy in Esquimalt. In 1911 it was named garrison church for the soldiers at Work Point Barracks.

Special ceremonies will be held next month.

On Saturday, Aug. 27, there will be a garden party in the grounds of the residence of the Rector's Warden, Commodore R. M. Battles, in HMC Dockyard.

On Sunday, Aug. 28, there will be special services to mark the 100th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the church.

Church and civic dignitaries will be invited to join these celebrations with present and former parishioners.

Producers Defeat CBC Walkout Plan

TORONTO (CP)—In the latest round of an internal dispute in CBC Toronto public affairs programming, CBC - TV producers voted overwhelmingly Friday to reject a motion that they strike the publicly-owned corporation.

More than 50 members of the 76-member Toronto Producers' Association rejected strike action but passed a resolution demanding that their association be recognized by the CBC and a bargaining and grievance procedure set up.

The resolution also urged members of the staff of CBC-TV's controversial program This Hour Has Seven Days to withdraw resignations and resume work if collective bargaining is accepted.

TREE SAW ALL HISTORY

Tax 'Crisis' Ended With Soviet Victory

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP)—A cold war crisis of 13 years' duration ended this week, as the City of Glen Cove granted a real-estate-tax exemption to a 36 - acre Long Island estate owned by the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

But Mayor Joseph Muldoon said there'll be no refund of the more than $300,000 in taxes already paid under protest on the 45-room Soviet mansion, known as Killenworth.

The Russians, it seems, had American law on their side all along.

Each year, Glen Cove presented the Soviet Union with a $28,000 tax bill, and Nassau County added a $14,000 tab. The property has an assessed valuation of $350,000.

Each year, the Russians paid under protest, sometimes waiting until the city was on the point of confiscating the property for taxes.

WANTED PROOF

The Russians contended the estate was tax-free under New York State laws exempting official residences of UN delegations. But Glen Cove said it would not consider a tax exemption because its officials were not given access to the property or other proof of its use.

Recently, Muldoon said, the city was advised by the state attorney - general's office that the Russians have state law on their side.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg then called city officials to UN headquarters. He confirmed the official use of Killenworth by the Russian UN delegation, and said 30 countries are receiving tax exemptions under the law in towns in the New York metropolitan area.

Last week, Nassau County's board of assessors removed Killenworth from its tax rolls and granted an exemption. Following this, Muldoon said, the Glen Cove board of review "reluctantly" followed suit.

Maximum Security For Knife Suspect

A man whose arrest brought an end to two hours of terror in Vancouver's West End May 27 will remain in a provincial mental hospital indefinitely, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

Vojislav Stankovich, 42, was declared mentally ill by magistrate's court July 6 and committed to Riverview Provincial Mental Hospital near Vancouver.

Stankovich was charged with attempted non-capital murder in the stabbing of Thedor Kaczor and his son Teddy May 27. The incident preceded the tense two hours during which a man held a knife to the stomach of four-year-old Debbie Tann on a Vancouver street.

The man finally released the child and plunged the knife into his stomach as police rushed in.

Mr. Bonner said the terms under which Stankovich was committed to hospital could keep him under maximum security guard for the rest of his life.

The attorney-general said doctors treating the Yugoslav immigrant laborer will make any recommendations regarding his possible release.

Compulsory Fingerprinting 'Goes Too Far'

Attorney-General Robert Bonner still thinks fingerprinting every citizen is going too far towards a police state.

But he also thinks the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision forbidding police to interrogate a suspect without giving him full warning about his rights to counsel goes too far the other way.

The fingerprinting suggestion was first proposed a year ago by Vancouver Police chief Ralph Booth, and he repeated it this week in a speech to a service club, arguing that it would help reduce crime.

Mr. Bonner opposed it the first time and again this week.

"Chiefs of police have as much right to express their views on these things as anyone because they are on the front line of most of the sociological problems we have," he said in an interview.

"Notwithstanding that, I can't imagine conditions to exist in this country which would justify fingerprinting every citizen."

Asked if recent "get tough" speeches by both Chief Booth and Victoria Police Chief John Gregory were going against the trend exemplified by the U.S. Supreme Court decision, Mr. Bonner said:

"I think the U.S. courts have gone overboard.

"Provided policemen are not abusing their position, if they are to do their job on behalf of the community, they have to be given a certain amount of latitude."

Money Lack Retarded Early Boom

By GORDON RITCHIE

The Cariboo gold rush of the 1860s literally paved the way to B.C.'s present prosperity, a visiting British historian said Friday.

Professor Gordon Batho, senior lecturer in the department of education of the University of Sheffield, was addressing a gathering at the University of Victoria's student union building.

Professor Batho was delivering the first of three summer lectures by noted historians sponsored jointly by the centennial commission and the university's history department.

A total of some $4,000,000 in gold was reported taken out in the rush.

PASSED THROUGH

And the horde of fortune-seekers had to pass through Victoria to get to the gold fields.

"On the morning of Sunday, the 25th of April, 1858, the sleepy little town of 800 people awoke to the arrival of the Commodore bringing the first load of prospectors," he graphically recounted, noting that whereas 300 passengers boarded the Commodore when she set out, some 450 debarked in Victoria.

By July, over 13,000 hopefuls had descended on the city. But the fields were a long way away.

The resourceful and far-sighted James Douglas, in his dual capacity of governor of the colony and Hudson Bay Company factor, had a road built right in the heart of the gold field at Barkerville.

By the time the road reached its destination, the rush was almost over. Barker, the man after whom the town was named had cleared $600,000 which he promptly squandered on a Victoria widow. And adverse conditions arising from the difficult nature of the gold had caused many to proclaim the rush "a great humbug."

"If it had taken labor, rugged labor, or sheer tenacity to get the gold out the miners of the Cariboo would have succeeded," Professor Batho said. But it required capital which was not forthcoming.

So the boom collapsed.

Cash Wanted, Not Controls

EDMONTON (CP)—After 45 years the Canadian Teachers' Federation still is not sure how much it wants the federal government to dabble in education.

The dilemma, as one executive member of the federation saw it Friday, boils down to the fact that the CTF wants federal money without federal control.

The most controversial discussion of the three-day CTF annual meeting this week erupted over the CTF board's proposal for a federal bureau of education "to co-ordinate federal government activities in the education field."

Over the combined opposition of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia delegates, the annual meeting voted to work for establishment of a federal bureau.

URGED FEDERAL AID

Soon after its formation in the 1920s the CTF was pressing for a federal education office. In 1962 it urged the federal government to give aid to elementary and secondary education.

This year it carefully did not mention financial aid.

Yet members of the finance committee, who have studied the resources available for education across the country, say privately that educational opportunity will never be equal until somehow there is as much money, comparatively, to spend in the Maritimes as in the rest of Canada.

"A child in the Maritimes today doesn't begin to have the same educational opportunity as one in the rest of Canada," Elizabeth Redmond of Winnipeg, head of the CTF finance committee, said in an interview.

Another committee member remarked that even if the Maritimes collected all their own provincial taxes, as they are empowered to under the British North America Act, they still wouldn't have enough money to provide the same standard of education for their prople.

Clearly, the only answer the finance committee can see for the Maritimes is federal assistance.

The federation finance committee still must set out the areas of provincial and federal responsibility in education, as it sees them, and suggest "adequate federal - provincial fiscal arrangements" to enable the provinces to carry out their responsibilities.

Although a spokesman for La Corporation des Instituteurs Catholique du Quebec, the French teachers' organization which is not yet a CTF member, warned that to approve a federal education bureau would probably delay his group's entrance into the CTF, delegates voted to make the federation a "bilingual and bicultural organization."

FORGET HOFFA IN ONE YEAR IF JAILED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Teamsters' president James R. Hoffa will be forgotten in one year if sent to jail, the head of the union in British Columbia said Thursday.

Hoffa is appealing an eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

Ed Lawson, president of the Teamsters' joint council here, said it would be impossible for Hoffa to run the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America (Ind.) from behind bars.

"If he goes to jail, he will be like other fallen angels—forgotten within a year," Mr. Lawson said.

Youth 'Kicked Wrong Boy'

A youth who kicked and knocked out a 15-year-old boy was fined $50 and put on probation for six months when he appeared in court for sentence Friday.

Kenneth Stewart, 18, of 478 Grafton, had previously pleaded guilty to the assualt charge. He admitted he had been drinking June 25 when he attacked the wrong boy outside the Memorial Arena after hearing someone was spreading rumors about his girl friend.

'Older Drivers Know Limitations'

A coroner's jury here this week recommended that elderly persons be subjected to stricter examinations for driving licences, but just how much of a problem is the old driver?

"Not very much when you look at it objectively," says Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles.

"Our opinion is that they are not a menace when it comes to accident potential."

They are closely watched by the branch and every driver who reaches 70 has to have a medical each time he has a driver licence re-examination, usually every two years.

"The old drivers also know their limitations and act accordingly. On the other hand, you can have a young driver who is physically perfect and a wizard at handling a wheel but lacks the maturity needed," pointed out Mr. Hadfield.

There are several 95-year-old drivers in B.C. and about 600 over 85 years and, as a group, do not have a disproportionate accident record.

"I was sorry to see the coroner's jury make that particular recommendation because accidents do happen to all age groups and they are accidental whether they involve some 25, 45 or 85.

"You just can't predict accidents."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner agreed that sufficient watch is kept on elderly drivers.

"Our requirements now are so strict as to be the cause of considerable irritation with the frequency of examinations and the insistence on medicals," he said.

VICTORIA'S FOUNTAIN . . . . . . A TECHNICIAN'S PRIDE

Next to Thunderbird Park and the Parliament Buildings the most popular photographic model in Victoria these days is the Centennial fountain in sparkling Centennial Square.

Built as a gift from the municipalities of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt to mark Victoria's centenary as an incorporated city, the fountain is a masterpiece of architectural design.

Daily it attracts dozens of shutter-bugs armed with both still and movie cameras.

Old people doze on nearby benches lulled by the splash of cooling waters, dreaming of days gone by.

But few, if any, pause to think what it is that gives the fountain its glory.

View it someday when the water is shut off while temporary repairs are carried out. The fountain then is just an empty basin, dejected and without life.

Like a city without water it becomes a meaningless derelict, empty and dead.

But with the water bursting forth into high or low spray the fountain becomes what it was designed to be. A living symbol of a city's heart.

The Journeymen Mechanics who tapped the city's water mains, designed the nozzles through which the water spouts; who control its flow to just the right height, just the right amount of spray, are proud men with the pride of craftsmanship deeply instilled.

Gilbey's discover amazingly tall mixed gin drinks in Kenya

IN KENYA the sun scorches all year round. So wise Kenyans mix amazingly tall mixed gin drinks with Gilbey's London Dry. They choose this gin because its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink. And perfect balance is what you need when you're sipping a Gilbey's Treetop Special perched atop a giant fig tree.

Gilbey's Treetop Special

In the Kenyan jungle near a waterhole there is a miniature hotel perched atop a giant fig tree. Guests are able to sip a Gilbey's Treetop Special while observing wild game drinking at the waterhole. The drink is a mixture of orange, lime and lemon juices along with Gilbey's London Dry Gin, sugar and soda water.

Khotso's Spell

Another long and very tall Kenyan cooler is named after an African witchdoctor. The reasons for this are somewhat obscure since the witchdoctor, Khotso Sethunza lives in Pondoland. But he is a millionaire which may have helped his case somewhat. The drink is a simple mixture of fresh orange juice and Gilbey's London Dry topped up with ginger ale.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

LYNBURN

This is one of the largest and finest subdivisions in the Nanaimo area. As Agents for this development, we consider that further development indicates continued successful returns. Every year the Company is responsible for a very large percentage of new homes in this city.

COUNTRY CLUB ESTATES LTD.

This lovely 303-lot development on the Golf Course, adjacent to Lynburn, is becoming more popular every year. The Company expects this to develop into one of the finer residential areas of Nanaimo.

C.I.L. SUBDIVISION

This 210-lot subdivision is now under development, with sewer, water, underground wiring and blacktop to be completed. The Company expects to have lots available to the public by August. This particular development has every indication of being an extremely successful project and one of the choice waterfront developments on Vancouver Island.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND INSURANCE

RESORT DEVELOPMENT

NANAIMO INDUSTRIAL PARKS

Pictured above is one of the few properly integrated industrial parks in B.C. As developers of this complex, we have assisted new industry to settle in Nanaimo. The Company has already started the development of two other industrial parks close by. With the expansion of plywood, pulp, newsprint, mining and tourism on the island, we anticipate further industrial development as Nanaimo strengthens its position as a service and distribution centre.

APARTMENTS

Pictured above is another of Nanaimo Realty Company's apartment developments. This and other apartments in the area, with which we are associated, are showing successful and rewarding returns. This type of property also acts as an inflation hedge, and a continual source of earnings. Historically, mortgage companies have found apartment blocks one of the primest types of investments.

Miss Universe 1966 will be selected on the basis of competition in evening gown, swimsuit, and personality categories from among 80 beautiful girls representing a like number of countries and locales.

Tangled World

In this age of frank sexual freedom "Tangled World's" host Roger Shinn of New York's Union Theological Seminary turns to the Bible for a fresh approach to the meaning of sex on "Sex and the Family," to be shown Sunday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 5. In the second of the series of well-documented reports on the great social issues of our time, modern dance is used to illustrate the Biblical passages.

Dr. Mary Steichen Calderone, former medical director of planned parenthood, is interviewed during this thought-provoking program.

Mississippi

"Our Man on Mississippi," a personal look at the famous American river by David Brinkley, will be colorcast on NBC News'"Encore" Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The program gives a hard, colorful picture of what the Mississippi River is like today, with appropriate and characteristic comments by Brinkley. The people he talks to include Leander Perez, political figure in Louisiana's Placquemines Parish who reconstructed a Spanish fort to hold integration demonstrators; Richard Bissell, author of the Broadway musicals "Pajama Game" and "Say, Darling" who lives on a houseboat near Dubuque, Iowa; J. Kahlke, whose boatyard in Rock Island, Ill., produced hundreds of Mississippi River steamboats; and Ralph Richman, a self-styled "river rat" who cathces grasshoppers for a living.

The program, according to co-producer Ted Yates, "shatters some of the Mississippi River fantasy we hold for fact, but it also introduces a new river, not a commonplace one, but in all ways a remarkable river."

The background musical score for "Our Man on the Mississippi" was arranged by guitarist Charlie Byrd. It includes excerpts from a rare 1920 Fletcher Henderson jazz recording and solos by New Orleans clarinetist George Lewis.

Meet the Press

Admiral William F. Raborn (USN, ret.), who recently resigned as director of the Central Intelligence Agency, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 1 p.m. on Channel 5.

Admiral Raborn was best known during his long naval career as developer of the Polaris fleet ballistic missile system. He became head of the CIA in April, 1965.

Interviewing Admiral Raborn will be John Steele, of Time-Life; Max Frankel, of the New York Times; Robert Goralski, NBC News Pentagon correspondent, and Lawrence E. Spival, producer and permanent panel member of "Meet the Press."

Neil Boggs, NBC News Chicago correspondent, will be the moderator.

Situation Ethics

A new moral concept calling for a decision to be made on the basis of what the moment demands is the topic of discussion in "Is Right Always Right?," on "CHALLENGE," Sunday, at 6 p.m. over Channel 4.

Panel members include: Rabbi Raphael Levine, Dr. Lynn Corson, and Father William Treacy. Don McCune is host.

Followers of this concept, entitled "Situation Ethics," argue that it is more correct to decide what course of action should be taken once the situation presents itself than simply to obey pre-fabricated rules of behavior. This new concept, which in actuality holds that acts are only good or bad in context, had come under fire from many leading theologians, and in 1965 was condemned by the Holy Office as an illicit brand of subjectivism for Roman Catholics.

An example of "situation ethics" is as follows: Most Christians believe that abortion is morally wrong, with certain rare exceptions. But since there are these exceptions, then there are some instances when the absolute principle would be put aside. By refusing, then, to acknowledge any absolutes, the situationist can defend, for example, The World War Two concentration-camp doctor who saved the lives of 3,000 women by performing abortions on them.

Ed Sullivan

Dinah Shore, Sgt. Barry Sadler, Jackie Vernon, the Italina Mouse, Simon and Garfunkel and the Four Tops headline "The Ed Sullivan Show" in color Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Simon and Garfunkel sing "I Am a Rock" in a new segment of the show; the balance of the program is made up of rebroadcast sequences.

Dinah Shore sings "Chim Chim Cheree," "Something Wonderful" and "Blues Medley."

Sgt. Barry Sadler performs his own tune, "The Ballad of the Green Berets," which became the nation's No. 1 record after he intorduced it on the Sullivan show last winter.

Sportsman Holiday

Williams also discusses with program host Curt Gowdy the type of rod and reel equipment he used for his spectacular catch and his plans for the fishing trip.

"Sportsman's Holiday" turns to Ireland in another color film sequence showing Jim Dee, of the National Shooting Sports Foundation, hunting for game birds such as woodcock, pheasant and snipe. The action takes place in Ennis, the seat of County Clare.

For its sports vignette, the program will show the scenic splendor of the Northern regions of Quebec, Canada, during scenes of trout fishing in James Bay and the tundra area of the Ungava Peninsula.

ROBERT CULP

Travelling Video Star Loves Home

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Robert Culp, co-star of the "I Spy" series, is a man on the move, travelling to Mexico, the Orient and Europe for his show, more like a movie star than a television performer.

Most video stars can depend on 36 weeks or more in one spot, reporting to work at the studio every morning and spending the evening with the family.

Not so Culp. To make up for his long absences Bob is an extraordinarily good husband and father when the NBC;TV show remains at its Desilu home base.

Bob and his wife Nancy — not the Nancy Culp of the "Berverly Hillbillies" series — have been married 10 years. They are the parents of Joshua 8; Jason, 5; Joe, 3 and Rachael, 1½.

For the sake of the youngsters the Culps live way to heck and gone in Woodland Hills, a community on the far reaches of the San Fernando Valley.

If Bob gets on the freeway by 6:30 it's only a 20-minute drive to Hollywood. But if he lolls in the sack until 7.o'clock it might take him an hour to make it to the studio in his fancy English sports roadster. Nancy, too, drives an English sports car in addition to a large American station wagon.

LARGE HOME

The Culp home is one of the largest in the area, covering more than 6,000 square feet. Bob describes it as living in two big barns.

It is an old wooden structure with seven bedrooms, five baths and numerous other rooms. His favorite is a third floor office equipped with typewriter — on which he has written several scripts — file cabinet, an ancient Wells Fargo safe and western furniture. The office is off-limits to the rest of the family except by special invitation from Papa Culp.

Jason's room is the most unusual of all. His bed is suspended from the ceiling and includes a real tree house perched in the trunk of a tree which Bob admits was stolen from Beverly Hills.

For safety's sake the Culps do not have a swimming pool on the acre plot. Instead, one 60 x 120-foot grassy play area has been set aside for the younger generation, with swings and slides and toys.

On weekends and days off Bob frequently frolics with his brood in the play yard. He also must feed a Doberman, Sabra, several guinea pigs, rabbits, lizards and fish.

Nancy is a painter, working in oils and water colors. She and Bob have also taken up surfing. Bob remains trim by playing tennis almost every weekend when he is in town.

SOCIAL LIFE LIMITED

Bob's schedule limits the Culp's social life. He usually arrives home at 8 in the evening, after the children have been tucked away for the night. Nancy makes it a point to prepare dinner for him, although they have a couple in-help who live in a guest house.

Siberia Iron Curtain Opens

NBC Crew Peeks Inside Hinterland Of Russian Country

Siberia: A Day in Irkutsk, a one-hour NBC News Special on life deep in the Siberian interior, will be telecast Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

"The Siberians we meet in this program may look wistfully toward the relative glitter of Moscow," says NBC News Moscow bureau chief Kenneth Bernstein, "but they think they're on the way to a good thing 3,000 miles away."

Bernstein made his first trip to Siberia to be reporter on the program.

"We have made this film with the co-operation — and the surveillance — of the Soviet authorities," Bernstein says. "Most of the people we meet in the program we didn't pick, but we are convinced they are not just pretty examples, but rather typical Irkutsk citizens."

In Irkutsk, a sprawling city of 480,000 people, TV viewers will visit the homes of Dimitri Siltsov, an aluminum-factory worker; Tamara Pansiuk, a young actress; Dr. Yelena Litasova, a surgeon; Oleg Nikiforenko, a hunter; Ivan Strizhak, an engineer on the Trans-Siberian Railroad. They also will pay a call on Zinaida Bainova, a university student living in a four-in-a-room dormitory.

"What they all have in common is this," says Bernstein. "They live here voluntarily. They like it here. They are living better than they ever did. And it shows the easier life that Siberia now has within its grasp.

"In the Soviet Union the centre of the ring has always been Moscow. Traditionally, Moscow has extracted great wealth from the rest of the country. At great human and economic expense the Soviets have tamed much of Siberia. The climate, the housing, the transportation, the bureaucracy are still serious problems, but there is no doubt that here lies Russia's future."

Inside Quebec

The people, places, moods and mores of present-day Quebec Province are the subjects of the new CBC-TV public affairs series Eight Stories Inside Quebec. The eight-part summer series of half-hour programs, produced at CBC Montreal, will be telecast Wednesdays at 10:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Peter Desbarats, editor of the monthly literary magazine Parallel, is host of Eight Stories Inside Quebec. Executive producer is Paul Wright.

The series will scrutinize contemporary Quebec and Quebecers. In scope it will encompass individual programs on such diverse topics as: profiles of such prominent personalities as intellectual writer Jean-Paul Desbiens and Quebec strongman Louis Cyr; an examination of the problems — and solutions — of bilingualism in Montreal; studeis of the Jewish community in Montreal, and the English-speaking residents of Quebec City.

The series premiere, this Wednesday, is a close-up of Jean-Paul Desbiens, a 39-year-old Marist brother whose writings have achieved for him a sort of hero image in his native province.

"Desbiens . . . represents the type of individual that has gone to the forefront in recent years in Quebec," says executive producer Wright. "He is a vibrant, hard-hitting person — an intellectual, but an intellectual who can speak to the masses and by understood."

The program traces Desbien's life and career from his childhood in an impoverished rural community to the time he was "exiled" to the Marist mother house at Rome, following publication of a series of letters in Le Devoir in 1960. Using the pseudonym Frere Untel (Brother Anonymous), Desbiens attacked Quebec's "bastardized language," school system, rigid ecclesiastical authority, fear of freedom, and the rule to which teaching brothers and nuns must conform. The letters were later published as a book — Les Insolences du Frere Untel (The Impertinences of Brother Anonymous) — and soon sold more than 100,000 copies. An English-language version entitled For Pity's Sake was published this year.

Desbiens has returned to Quebec and, although still a member of the Marist order, now works on curriculum revision for the department of education in Quebec.

Woman's Emotions

A woman waits, torn with anguish, alone in her apartment. Will her lover come? Or has he decided to make the break final? As she waits, she passes through an emotional parabola of nervousness, anxiety and finally despair. And as she waits, an unseen visitor enters her apartment . . . and watches her.

The watcher is a camera, coldly and objectively recording what it sees. It is L'Indiscret (the indiscreet one), and its secrets will be shared with viewers on Wednesday at 9:30 p.m on Channels 2 and 6.

Originally presented on the CBC-TV French network in 1963, L'Indiscret was written, produced and directed by Louis-Georges Carrier.

Carrier, who was born in Detroit, but has lived in Montreal since he was five, joined the CBC as a radio producer in 1953, and the following year was made a television producer.

He has also written many plays for radio, television and stage.

The networks plan to go on the air Monday between 12 and 1 p.m., pre-empting regular programming, with the pre-launch preparations for the lift-off of the Agena target vehicle in the Gemini X project. Rendezvous and docking attempts between the capsule and its target vehicle will be covered as they happen. Progress reports will be broadcast intermittently until scheduled splashdown on Thursday afternoon at approximately 1:30 p.m.

IT'S LIKE THIS says Fred MacMurray (left), who tries to explain to his boss, John Howard, why he's helping his son with his paper route, on My Three Sons, Tuesday at 9:30 p.m., in color on Channel 12.

The technique he uses in L'Indiscret is uniquely suited to film and television, since it is almost purely visual. There is no dialogue, and only a few words are uttered by the woman. Occasionally there are spoken observations by the "camera", but no more.

Miss Miller is well known to viewers of the CBC-TV French Network, and last season was seen as the heroine of the popular weekly series, Septieme-Nord, which will be returning to the network this coming season in color.

In the version of L'Indiscret to be seen on Wednesday the voices of the woman and "the camera" have been dubbed in English by Melody Greer and Peter Donat.

Nature of Things

When bees want to ventilate their hives, they stand outside and fan like mad. Spacemen carry a "briefcase" which is the latest scientific guarantee of temperature, pressure and humidity control. Of course, Adam and Eve had the cheapest and least complicated idea of all for making dog-days liveable. But since neither nudity nor even figleaves are de rigeur these days, the best we can do is to find a happy compromise between the bees' and the astronauts' system of keeping their environments liveable.

On Monday at 7:30 p.m. Channels 2 and 6 summer edition of The Nature of Things presents a program about some of the natural and man-made systems of controlling temperature, humidity and air pressure. It was produced by James Murray, written by Lister Sinclair, and edited by Moe Weingarten. The executive producer is John Livingston.

Consumer's Guide Has Word For It

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whatever's on your mind — from "Absorption area, waste disposal" through "Zippers, replacing" — there's pretty sure to be some word on it in "The Official Consumer's Guide."

This is not a new book. It was published officially last year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as "Consumers All," the 1965 Yearbook of Agriculture.

You may have missed it the first time around. All too few of us are aware of th fascinating wealth of published material available by he U.S. Government through its many departments and bureaus — a veritable gold mine of information on, just about any topic you could imagine. (For information about available government publications write to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.)

If you did miss it, be sure not to pass up the newly issued pocket book form now appearing in bookstores and on newstands.

FULL COVERAGE

In his preface, Editor Alfred Stefferud says the book "tells us — consumers all — many things about buying, using or making food, clothing, household furnishings and equipment; managing money; caring for yards, gardens and houses; bettering communities; using leisure time; and staying healthy." He says it is a volume "long on facts," and the good editor is exaggerating not a bit.

Just run through the table of contents which lists 19 articles on Houses, their planning, building and maintenance; 10 on Furnishings; 9 on Equipment. There are 9 topics under Family Finances — discussions as varied as saving on cars and children and money — another 10 in the section headed Safeguards. There are 15 chapters under Plants; 5 under Outdoors; 11 headings under Activities, from a discussion of educational toys to camping, outdoor comfort and "Curiosity: Learning." Clothing — its choice and care — accounts for 15 articles and Food calls for 25 chapters.

Random pin-sticking in the most thorough index of the 480-page volume — a fascinating way to while away idle moments — turns up such entries as Adoption; Backpacking; Cutting boards; Dryers, clothes; Encyclopedia, buying; Fleas; Gila Monster; Hiking trails; Information services; Juvenile books; Knitting; Lemon cooler; Medical resources; Nail hoops; Ornamentals; Posture; Quaternary; Retirement communities; Sleeping bags; Termites; USDA grades; Vacations; Women, body measurement standards; Yards, improving.

Rain Protection

NEW YORK (UPI)—Position the runners and downspouts on the outside of your home so as to carry rain water away from the house. The foundation can be damaged if water accumulates and seeps down too close to the house.

FOR THOSE CARPETS

Exciting Tints Coming

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pastel era in carpeting?

The year 1966 just might be the start of one, according to a color research report by a paint company.

The report by Benjamin Moore & Co. on paint and home furnishings color trends and combinations says the important carpet colors still are in the olive green and gold families.

But, it says, watch for excitingly new tints like orange ice, chiffon green, azalea pink or sky blue.

The report says that individuality has been the keynote in home furnishings color trends and styling during the last five years.

"It has led to the greatest color co-ordination in history. Colors of walls, furnishings and accessories are selected with infinite precision and chosen because they work best together in a given location. Even an exact shade of off white or the proportion and placement of an accessory color is an integral part of the new "total look."

WALL COLORS

Off whites and pastel tints still are heading the list of best-selling wall colors, according to the report, which says outstanding in popularity are tints and tones from the yellow-green family, including the delicate celery tints, bronze golds and summery shades of green.

In fabrics, say the Moore researchers, color runs rampant from the muted tones of the traditional to the bouncy brights of the contemporary.

Rounded lines, plump cushions and generous use of fabric with very little, if any wood showing give an effect of comfort and reflect a throwback to the 30s.

"New and interesting," says the report, "are the 'addables,' accent pieces of furniture, some of bamboo and reed, some painted in solid colors or with antiqued or marble finishes."

ROUGH TIME FOR BUYERS

By JOHN PIERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It isn't just the interest rate that's going up.

With the current squeeze on mortgage funds, most of the talk has centred on interest rates, or what a home-buyer has to pay for a loan. The Federal Home Band Board reports that people paid an average of 5.9 per cent in April to borrow money to buy a house.

That compares with 5.90 per cent in March and 5.74 per cent a year ago in April.

But most other characteristics of mortgages have been getting less liberal, too. That goes for the initial fees and the term to maturity. Home purchase prices are also up.

PURCHASE PRICE

In short, things are rough all over for the home-buyers. Here's a rundown on what has happened to home-buying terms in the past year.

—Purchase price: In April, the average new home sold for $25,100 compared to $24,900 a year ago. Land, labor, materials — most items — cost more than they did 12 months ago. And builders are putting more luxury into houses.

—Down payments: In April, the average mortgage required a down payment of $6,551, slightly more than the $6,549 that a home-buyer had to pay in cash a year ago.

—Mortgage size: Two months ago, the average mortgage was $18,549, nearly $200 more than in April, 1965, when it averaged $18,351.

—Term to maturity: In April, a home-buyer getting an average mortgage was given 24.6 years to pay it off in. A year ago the average term was 24.9 years. The sooner a mortgage has to be paid off, the bigger the monthly payments.

—Initial fees and charges: These averaged 0.57 per cent in April, up from last year's 0.51 per cent.

—Interest rate: And, of course, the homeowner had to pay substantially more to get his loan — 5.99 per cent on the average, compared to 5.74 per cent a year ago.

Commercial Belt Asked By Residents

A solid commercial belt on Highway 1A from Colwood Golf Club to Langford Lake was requested by some residents at a meeting Wednesday discussing zoning regulations for the district.

The land use zoning plan for Langford, Colwood, Glen Lake, Metchosin and Happy Valley proposes commercialization of only certain sections of the highway.

The meeting was called by the district advisory planning committee and the Capital Region Planning Board to explain to residents details of the plan.

It was chaired by Stan Hiscock.

The plan includes an industrial zone to be located on Jacklin Road near the E and N railway track, south of Highway 1A.

Another meeting to discuss the plan will be held at Luxton Hall on Monday, July 25.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Vegetable Deadline Near

By JACK BEASTALL

Kipling warned us about the mad dogs and Englishmen who go out in the noonday sun but he never mentioned the Victorians who start a vegetable garden in mid-July.

Jack

You would be surprised how many do this and do it regularly every year, in order to have fresh young vegetables through the fall and a few extras for Christmas dinner and into January and February.

The target date for sowing is mid-July but the actual day is not critical for we have been making successional sowings ever since spring and the well-ordered vegetable garden will continue to mature early sown crops and receive fresh sowings for the weeks ahead.

This mid-July date is more important to newcomers who have recently moved into the area and bought a new home and our permanent residents who have just acquired a new home on a bare lot or moved to a property which has not yet been developed.

HAVE CRAVING

In either of these instances, if you have a craving for some fresh, home-grown vegetables, you can have them very soon, and the sooner you get the seed into the soil the sooner there will be supplies for the table.

Counting from mid-July to the end of September we have 75 days more or less of weather we can count on as being suitable for vegetable growing. Any crop that will mature in 70 to 75 days should give satisfactory results.

When selecting your seeds from a catalogue it is wise to add about 15 per cent to the time given for maturity because catalogue times are for ideal conditions which rarely seem to coincide with the actual conditions we experience. In other words, consider a 60-day catalogue time as 70 days for here.

EXTRA CARE

Weather conditions in July and in the weeks ahead are just the opposite of spring conditions. The soil is dry and warm, so extra care in watering and shading will be needed for the first few weeks but the crops will mature in temperatures nearly the same as they would be in late spring and early summer.

When the time limit and the kind of weather are taken into consideration, it seems reasonable to assume that the same dwarf, early maturing varieties of vegetables sown in the early spring should do well for the fall garden and that is quite true.

We can use exactly the same seeds as we used for the first sowing in spring and if any seeds were left over from that sowing, they can be used now. If not, we shall have to visit a year-around dealer in seeds to obtain the ones we need now.

We can start with a fairly thick sowing of beets, the small round Egyptian strains. The first few thinnings can be used as beet greens in place of spinach; a little later they will provide tops and small roots for salads and bottling, and finally — if any are left — beets for the hot meals of fall.

Carrots, a short stumpy quick maturing variety, will soon produce small-rooted thinnings for salads, followed by fresh young roots with that delicious flavor only found in freshly gathered carrots.

Spinach, the same kinds used in spring and summer and the Swiss chard or spinach beet, will provide some much-needed cooked greens, while raw greens can be supplied with lettuce.

The large-headed lettuce, the so-called Iceberg types, take quite a while to mature but can be used as leaf lettuce from the earliest thinnings until the planted-out heads develop.

BUTTERHEAD

Other salad vegetables will include radish and the green bunching or spring onions, the extra seed of which can be sown in the coldframe and in the greenhouse to extend the supply until Christmas.

In areas immediately adjacent to Victoria we can sow an early dwarf pea with every expectation of picking a good crop before frost and quite often we can catch a few meals of dwarf beans.

And there are some gardeners who sow a few tubers of their early potatoes and enjoy a real feed of new potatoes around Thanksgiving.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Potted plants outdoors, tubs, planters and hanging baskets all need one feeding now and ample watering.

Permanent plants in patio areas, surrounded by brick, concrete or tile will require deep soakings occasionally for most of these materials take moisture from the soil and evaporate it into the air at night.

Bedding plants at this time may be fed weak solution of balanced fertilizer.

Spikes of lavender flowers will likely be ready this week for picking. Wait until bottom flowers open and choose a sunny day for best perfume.

Thin out the raspberry suckers to those needed for next year. When old canes have finished fruiting, cut them out at the base.

Tomatoes should be setting fruit now nights are warmer and further growth should be restricted when a few trusses are set. Do not give fertilizer to bush varieties until fruit is seen.

Make complete sowing of all hot-season crops as recommended in today's feature article.

If the plants of fall and winter cabbage, kale and sprouts are large enough, transplant as soon as possible into a piece of firm ground easily accessible in winter.

Women Yearn For Fireplace

CHICAGO (UPI)—By promoting directly to the smoke dream of fulfillment American women have about fireplaces, three times as many of the latter could be sold to the former.

The mass market—50 per cent of the nation's population and 52 per cent of its home owners—has been neglected by the fireplace industry, marketing consultant A. A. Imberman told a conclave of fireplace and hearth accessories manufacturers recently.

"Our consumer surveys indicate that women think of a fireplace as a symbol of a happy home, security and status, not merely as a decorative feature or a place to toast marshmallows," Imberman, president of Imberman and DeForest, said.

"The blue or white collar wife needs only to have her motivations catered to. Show her that a cozy hearth satisfies a deep, emotional need and she'll start and keep the home fires burning," he said.

Clampdown on Power Boats Eyed

CHEMAINUS — Local RCMP will make regular patrols of the Kinsmen Beach area following complaints about operators of powerboats.

Reeve Donald Morton said Friday: "There have been several incidents of swimmers being hurt, and also complete disregard for Indian canoes.

"Some powerboat operators seem to have no consideration for anyone else and should be punished to the full extent of the law."

Mr. Guildbride said he is prepared to prosecute boat owners who are a nuisance and danger because of excessive speed, or being too close to the beach.

NORTH COWICHAN — There will be a contest for the municipal council seat vacated by Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn.

This was assured Friday when Mrs. Stan Robertson filed her nomination.

Polling will be Saturday, Aug. 20.

Mrs. Robertson, who lives on Maple Bay Road, has been active for several years in such organizations as the PTA, scouting and the Cowichan Music Festival.

A Sidney woman, Mrs. Kathleen Olive Lee, 48, of 2208 Harbour Road, was killed Thursday in a car accident on the mainland near Langley.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Brian Frampton Lee, 49, who suffered a heart attack following the accident in which he received only minor injuries.

The couple, married just two years ago, was returning from an Alberta holiday.

Mrs. Lee was well-known as an aviatrix who took up flying as a teen-ager and later ferried bombers in the RCAF Women's Auxiliary.

After the Second World War she became an airline hostess and travelled throughout the world.

Mr. Lee, a former deep sea sailor, is now an engineer with Island Tug and Barge.

NANAIMO — A $980,000 building permit for a shopping mall complex in downtown Nanaimo was issued Friday to Dominion Construction Ltd.

The mall is part of a $5,000,000 CPR development in the downtown area.

CHEMAINUS — The Chemainus Chamber of Commerce thinks the town has been forgotten by the provincial centennial committee.

Stafford Andrews, chamber president, said Friday: "We are going to make a presentation to Laurie Wallace, B.C. Centennial chairman, about this."

Mr. Andrews said Chemainus will organize an old-time welcome for historic Ss. Beaver when it visits the port Aug. 1 to 3.

But he said: "We are wondering if we have been left off the list of centennial events otherwise.

"Chemainus did not get one of the Haidi route totem poles, there was no visit by the vintage car cavalcade last week, and even the stagecoach on its run from Barkerville to Victoria may not call at Chemainus."

Mr. Andrews said: "We would be very disappointed if the stagecoach does not call at Chemainus.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A town plan for Campbell River will be presented at the municipality's second town planning workshop Sunday.

Plans and maps are already under consideration by council.

At the first workshop, last February, residents were told by a town planner that their business district was "blah."

Land use proposals in the business district and industrial area are expected to be presented by municipal planner Dieter Naumann.

Arthur Mayse

If you live in Fairfield-Beacon Hill and have a pooch in need of an airing, help is no farther away than your telephone. Call EV 2-9363 and ask for Beverley Flint, a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl who has established what may well be Victoria's first dog-walking service.

Your pet will be taken in charge at his home by a future veterinarian. He will then be escorted at his own pace along a route of doggy interest.

The fee, 75 cents an hour, is based on Beverley's rate for baby-sitting, an occupation which consumes much less shoe-leather. Matter of fact, it was one of the mothers on her list who suggested dog-walking as a summer occupation.

A student at Central Junior Secondary, she went job-hunting among the vets when vacation started. They didn't need her services (at her age, regular jobs are very hard to find) and a dog-grooming establishment had no spot for her either.

Beverley lives with her parents, brothers and sister at 1051 Pendergast. She is 15 years old today, and her gifts included sandals, a bathing suit, a long-play Paul Revere record and a dollar. To this list I hope will be added her first assignment as a dog-walker.

At 908 Alexander lives a one-woman whirlwind who is doing her best to puff away the sawmill smoke that, all too often, casts its dirty pall over her district.

Her name is Mrs. William R. Walters. She has protested, she has written letters, and will not cease her efforts, she insists, until those belching stacks are muzzled.

"They did it in England," says Mrs. Walters, "they've done it in Pittsburgh, and there isn't a reason in the world why they can't get rid of the smoke here!

"The Indians," she continued after the merest pause for breath, "have a perfectly beautiful reserve down there, and I think they could have something on it that would help them a lot more than a sawmill. Couldn't some interested group help them establish a marina? I'm sure they'd get far more benefit from it, what with renting boats and guiding, and perhaps providing waterfront cruises."

Somehow or other, we switched at this point to sewage disposal. Mrs. Walters had some notions for this field, too.

"When you take sawdust," she said, "and mix it with sewage sludge, you get a wonderful nitrogen-high soil dressing. I found that out by trying it. They reduce their sewage to sludge in Milwaukee, and there isn't a reason in the world why. . . .

". . . We can't do it here," I finished for her, making a mental note to suggest that this woman of vigorous ideas seek municipal office at the first opportunity.

If she does, by golly, I'll be tempted to whip over to her bailiwick and vote twice for her!

Highways minister Gaglardi has loosed several wild swings since his department's aircraft expenditure has been questioned. The latest of these is aimed at our British Columbia bush pilots, a group of men who have bravely, faithfully and effectively pioneered provincial frontiers these many years.

There are any number of us on this Island and in this province who would be only too willing to speak up for the pilots who fly those aircraft.

As one of that group, I have flown my share of miles with them in weather both fair and foul.

They are skilled and conscientious. For the air-miles they fly and the country in which they operate, their accident-rate is amazingly low.

Their licenses are not earned easily, and like all other commercial pilots, they remain under searching Department of Transport scrutiny.

There is danger in flying, just as there is on any highway. But aloft in a float plane with a B.C. bush pilot at the controls, you can be assured that your safety is not being neglected.

No Bells in the Belfry . . . Just a Loudspeaker

The newly-installed carillon in the University School chapel in recent days has been dinged, donged and chimed through its first trial run.

Everything from dirges to Christmas carol, the full range of a musical apparatus that does everything but a tap dance, has been pealing across the school's green playing fields and into neighboring districts.

The carillon, donated by Old Boy and member of the board of governors R. H. B. Ker, will put bellringers out of business once and for all.

Although the two-octave, 50-bell carillon sounds, at its loudest and richest like Westminster Abbey, it uses transistors, tape recorders and amplifiers to gain that effect.

Those aren't bells in the belfry, but loudspeakers, wired to a cabinet of tiny teacup-sized bells in the chapel's vestry.

The machine, insured for $6,000, is fully automatic, although it can be played by hand on a keyboard attached to the chapel organ.

Weekday and Sunday services are all timed by a clock in the console. The music can be played inside, outside or both.

It even knows when Sunday is coming. The timing device, if properly set, switches from a weekday chimes to Sunday call-to-worship automatically.

School headmaster J. J. Timmis, who says the bells will be a "delightful addition to the school and the district," said they could even find use as timetable bells.

IWA 'Impatient' With Pact Talks

Another Walkout Feared by Officials

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Coast negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America pressed today for weekend meetings with management to forestall possible walkouts by loggers.

A brief statement by the 10-man negotiating committee said in part:

"The committee has been meeting continually with Forest Industrial Relations all week and is aware that IWA members are becoming impatient."

It was learned that the impatience is coming mainly from the 10,000 loggers in the coast industry. Many of them went on strike for a week before a mediator's report was ready, saying they were dissatisfied with delays.

One source said there is reason to believe that if the report isn't signed this weekend there will be "job action"—in other words, a walkout.

NO GUARANTEE

"We couldn't guarantee there would not be some action," added the source.

Key to the loggers' complaint is travel time.

The report recommended the existing 10-hour travel time period be reduced to 9½ hours "effective the Monday following the signing of a new collective agreement."

Union negotiators hope to have the new two-year contract signed today or Sunday so the benefit for loggers will start Monday.

The report also recommended reduction of travel time period to nine hours next June. At that time, employees away from designated marshalling points for more than 10 hours shall get time and a half.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

The mediator in the contract dispute, Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, said of travel time in his report:

"It was one of the most difficult and contentious problems put before me and I found no common ground between the parties."

He concluded that "immediate and substantial relief must be given the loggers at this time."

A hitch in implementation of the Nemetz report concerns the complicated system of giving specific points measurement to the content of jobs in the plywood industry.

Both sides have drawn up their interpretations of the judge's recommendations and they don't tally.

The short union statement accused employers of "haggling over every penny, but the committee is determined that the contents of the Nemetz report will be implemented in its entirety."

The report of Mr. Justice Nemetz was made public three weeks ago and accepted by the IWA, representing 26,000 workers in the coast wood industry, and Forest Industrial Relatons, bargainer for 120 companies.

It recommended a wage increase of 40 cents an hour over two years and a number of other items covering plywood workers, loggers and technological change.

YOUTHS FLEE AFTER CAR HITS MAN

A 72-year-old man received minor injuries Friday afternoon when he was knocked down by a car at Rose and Finlayson.

The car had previously been reported stolen. Three youths fled from it after the accident and have not been caught.

The pedestrian, George Wright of 3122 Rutledge St., was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for abrasions to his nose and a cut on his arm and released.

Police said the driver of the car was described as about five feet nine inches tall, with short blonde hair, wearing a white shirt and tan trousers.

Heated Mains Douse Marina Fire

A fat fire in the deep fryer of the Oak Bay Marina coffee shop at 8 this morning practically put itself out as the intense heat melted the copper water mains and flooded the area.

Firemen arrived in time to stamp out the last flickers of flame and assist in the mop-up operation.

Damage was mostly due to smoke and water and actual fire damage was confined to the coffee shop itself. Marina president Bob Wright placed the damage at "less than $5,000."

The coffee shop was back in operation by noon and the restaurant will be open as usual tonight.

ARCHIE KITTO

'THATCH' MUSEUM

Old Craftsman Offers To Install New Roof

A retired Saanich resident has offered to replace the thatch roof of the Maltwood Museum, formerly known as the "Thatch," at Royal Oak.

Eighty-four-year-old Cornish-born Archie Kitto, 1485 Mount Douglas Cross Road, who built the original thatch roof on the building in 1937, said he is prepared to do it again.

The thatch roof must come down sometime this fall because it leaks.

SHINGLE ROOF

It may be replaced by a shingle roof by the University of Victoria which received the building and its art treasures from the owner John Maltwood.

"I would do it," said Mr. Kitto, "if they would get the material. Most of that would have to come from England."

He learned the craft as a youth in England.

When the original roof was put on, the contractor had difficulty getting suitable straw, he recalled.

Wheat straw was first imported from England but the federal customs department in Montreal stopped its shipment because of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Britain.

'TOO BRITTLE'

"English straw, or reeds as we call it, should be used for thatching," he explained. "The straw grown here is too brittle, while the English material is pliable and bends without breaking."

Straw was finally imported from the eastern United States and the job took about six months.

"The straw arrived in bales wrapped in burlap," he said. "I made more money selling the burlap than on the roof."

OLD CORNISH FAMILY

Mr. Kitto comes from an old Cornish family. He was born in Porthleven, a fishing village, and graduated from the University of Cambridge.

But like many of his fellow Cornishmen, he preferred an outdoor life to being chained to a sedentary occupation. He has sailed in sailing ships and lived for a time on the Prairies when life there was less sophisticated.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the Criminal Code of Canada and how did it come into being? T. A.

A. The Criminal Code of this country is that body of legislation containing prohibitions and punishments, reflecting basically the accepted moral standards of the day. According to Crime and its Treatment in Canada (McGratin), the Code is British common-law ratified and restated by Parliament. The first Code was submitted to and enacted by Parliament in 1892. Amendments were constantly being introduced, until in 1955, a revised Code came into force. Oddly enough, the United Kingdom, does not have such a Code, but has set down its criminal law in more than 150 separate statutes.

SEWAGE STUDY APPROVED

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A detailed study on the construction of a sewage project at an estimated cost of $450,000 was approved at a council meeting.

The figure includes $250,000 for a treatment plant and $200,000 for sewer lines.

$65 A YEAR

Cost to the average homeowner would be about $65 a year, plus a $200 connection fee to be paid for linking homes to main sewer lines.

Council's action follows an engineer's report Wednesday on a capital region sewage plan.

The report recommended the treatment plant be abandoned when the Brentwood population reaches 4,000 in 20 years.

Then a main trunk line could be built to move sewage from Brentwood and Saanichton to an outfall at Cordova Spit.

CLAY SOIL

Councillors all agreed that Brentwood, with lots as narrow as 43 feet, has septic tank effluent flowing above the clay soil into roadside ditches leading down to the beaches.

They felt the problem would have to be faced sooner or later and action should be taken within the next year to put the issue to Brentwood residents.

Coun. Philip Benn said he didn't like the idea of discharging effluent in the bay.

ALTERNATIVE PLAN

"I can't understand a firm omitting to provide an alternative plan," he said.

But Reeve Gordon Lee didn't think the proposed sewage project would have detrimental effects on Brentwood .

"The effluent is now flowing down to the beaches," he said. "The project would alleviate the problem as it would be taken well out to sea."

COMEDIAN TO 'LIMIT'

Bob Hope will have "the limit" by next weekend, say reports from the luxury yacht Campana which is cruising off Vancouver Island at Qualicum today.

The comedian, who visits here annually for fishing, has already caught a 14 and 15-pound spring salmon "and the Coho are biting nicely."

Car Hits Tree; Two in Hospital

Six people were taken to hospital early today after their car went out of control on Cedar Hill Road north of Parkside Crescent and rammed a tree.

None of the four men and two women were seriously injured in the mishap at the edge of Mount Douglas Park which caused an estimated $1,500 damage to the car.

In satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with unspecified injuries is John Wayne Hamilton, 22, of 3134 Mars St., believed to be the driver of the car. Also hospitalized and in satisfactory condition is Mrs. Della Knowles, 25, of 628 Garbally. She suffered head cuts and a broken wrist.

Treated at hospital for cuts and released were Mrs. Doreen Hamilton, 19, and Eugene Lupkoski, 20, of 628 Garbally.

The other two injured men were transferred to the Canadian Forces Base Hospital, Esquimalt, where they were reported today in satisfactory condition.

They are LAC Dermott Kowalski, 22, of RCAF Station, Edmonton, and LAC Leslie Earwaker, 21 of RCAF Station, Puncy Mountain, B.C. Both received head cuts.

In an accident Friday, Nikki Marios, 4, of 619 Raynor was treated for abrasions to her arm after she ran from behind a parked car on Craigflower and was struck by a passing auto driven by John Wood of 1659 Cedar Ave.

Driver Fined $350 On Impaired Charge

He was also prohibited from driving, except for business purposes for four months.

Newlyweds Selected Tourists of Week

Victoria Jaycees swooped down on a Winnipeg couple aboard the Queen of Saanich this morning and named them tourists of the week.

Pat Higgins, an Ex-Pawnbroker

He's Quit Dealing in Human Misery

By BOB DONAHUE

But he won't lend anymore.

He is an ex-pawnbroker who lost heart because he heard too many tales of woe—too many tales of woe that were lies.

It's been two years now since he wrote out his last pawn ticket in a cluttered shop at the lower end of Yates Street.

Yet still he wonders about all the authors and stories of their misfortune.

* * *

In the four years he traded trinkets and treasures for money he has stood behind the counter and watched life come in and out the door. The people with their eternal facility to attract or repel and sometimes nauseate.

"There was a guy came in here one day and pointed to a gun on the wall. He told me it was the same gun that shot his little boy in the basement of his home.

"He wasn't buying and he wasn't selling, he was just telling," says Pat Higgins who has heard enough sad stories.

"There was another time, in the middle of winter, a young girl came in with no stockings or coat.

"She wanted to sell her purse, but I saw a black onyx ring on her finger which she didn't offer to sell so I didn't think she was legitimate.

"I'll bet 90 per cent of those stories were lies and I'll bet 90 per cent of those people wanted money for liquor.

"That's 90 per cent of the problem—liquor."

He points to a stack of used books piled against one wall of the shop.

"I wish I could write," he says.

"I could fill up the pages of all those books with the stories I've heard. I've heard them all."

Mr. Higgins, the native son of a native son of Victoria, was a watch repairman before he started dealing in human misery.

And now he divides his business half-and-half, watch repairing and buying, selling and trading used goods.

"I would have a tough time making a living just buying and selling used goods."

* * *

He says the pawnbroking business was a lot better when he started six years ago at the age of 43.

"There was more of an army and a navy then and they used to come in here, pawn things, then came and pick them up.

"But then they cut the personnel and the alcoholics started coming in to pawn things which they never intended to redeem. Sometimes the goods were stolen.

"That's when I decided to quit the business.

Thank God It's Monday! Club Gains Foothold

The "Thank God It's Monday Club" seems to be gaining on the "Thank God It's Friday Club." Weekends nowadays are too much! Too much traffic, too much socializing, too much cooking, too much drinking . . . too much of many things. The people who go along with this "too much" theory quietly hope it will rain on weekends so they can stay home to read or watch television.

Today we have more leisure, more entertainment and more money to spend on weekend activities than any generation in history.

The first rule of the art of weekending is to: think of yourself. Weekends are not for catching up on social obligations, sun-tans or household chores.

The second rule, of course, follows automatically: stop worrying about wasting time. Do absolutely nothing for an entire weekend and see if the world really comes to an end because you didn't paint the porch or feed brunch to a crowd.

Rule three is to vary weekends. Use your imagination. Do some of those things you've been talking about for so long . . . and do some of those things which never struck you as being spectacular but sounded like "fun." Do anything you're not in the habit of doing!

Rule four? That's obvious. Never overplan. Do your weekending on impulse. Indulge in a bit of whimsy. Plain and simple, that's the art of weekending!

Chat Awhile, Relax Awhile In Alaska's Unique Race

What a way to run a race. . . .

Your getaway from the starting lineup is a leisurely stroll, eyes skyward to enjoy the birdlife which circles overhead. During your midway dash you stop frequently to enjoy the multitudes of wildflowers en route. Perhaps you even spread a picnic lunch.

Your final burst over the finish line proves even more relaxed — because you're deeply engrossed in conversation with another racer, about a goldrush relic you passed on the trail.

This is a race? It is. It's the Equinox Marathon, staged annually by the University of Alaska on the Saturday nearest the autumnal equinox, when day and night are of equal length all over the world.

In distance (26 miles, 385 yards) it equals the great track marathons of the world, including the famous Boston event. But in every other respect the Alaska version is strictly like no other.

Of course a number of racers do take the running seriously. They go the distance at breakneck speed. The record stands at three hours, 38 minutes, and 42 seconds.

However, most participants — and the University expects at least 500 for the September 24 running of the 1966 contest — are simply vacationers, students, faculty members, residents from nearby Fairbanks, even whole families who stroll and dawdle the distance with not the slightest thought about who may cross the finish line first or last.

U.S. Lost Battle To Gods

Pearl Harbor, the most important naval base in the Pacific, has as rich a history as all of Hawaii, according to the Hawaii Visitors Bureau.

Pearl Harbor won its name from the pearl oysters that once grew in this vicinity, and the Hawaiian name for them was "puuloa."

But to understand the folklore background of Pearl Harbor, one must begin with Kaaupahau, the benevolent queen of the shark gods and goddesses. A cavern in Pearl Harbor was her home and here she had lived for thousands of years. Legends stated that her whole shark family were friendly, protecting the islanders by chasing away the dangerous man-eating variety.

BLAST CHANNEL

The Hawaiian kingdom ceded Pearl Harbor to the United States in 1887. But America did nothing about developing it until 1902 — then workers began to clear an entrance. A coral and sand bar had to be blasted out to make a channel large enough to accommodate sea-going vessels.

At the moment this white-man activity began, the Islanders shuddered. They knew something was bound to happen when man intruded upon shark-god territory.

Still, the white man tried to deal tactfully with the situation. They handled all the sacred stones from a fish shrine at the harbor entrance with great care, moving them one by one to another location. (A god was often represented by some material object such as an image or an ordinary stone — that is, the stone served as a symbol of the god or spiritual force).

WORK LAGGED

Yet somehow the work lagged with all sorts of delays, annoyances and minor casualties. For instance, work was held up for months at one point when the dredger sank into the channel. Finally, after a year's efforts, the channel was completed.

Then the construction of the drydocks began. All might have gone well had they not chosen a spot directly over the caves of Queen Kaaupahau's son. Unheeding the import of this, engineers worked on the construction of the drydocks from 1909 to 1913. Then, when the cofferdam was emptied for the first time, the pressure of the water smashed the casing, and suddenly the drydock and four years work collapsed into the sea.

Islanders were not at all surprised, when the installation later was dug up and cleared of debris, to find the skeleton of a 15-foot shark lodged in the foundation.

Reconstruction was started later — but this time, the white men had the foresight to seek the aid of a kahuna (Hawaiian priest). Before the cofferdam was emptied, the kahuna scattered crackers on the water as an offering to the shark gods, meanwhile chanting and praying until the gods were appeased and gave their blessing to this project.

This time the docks stood and dedicaton was made in August of 1919. Pearl Harbor could now prosper and it did.

Northern Gold Rush Offered by Norway

The latest tourist attraction in Norway is a gold-rush. There is gold to be found on the Finnmark mountain plateau in the northernmost province of Norway — in the Land of the Midnight Sun, an unspoiled wilderness where night takes a holiday during the short and hectic summer months.

A veritable gold-rush took place here a generation ago, but the many prospectors who staked their claims, got rather meager profits, and the gold-rush was short-lived.

However, the present revival of old days is organized more for fun than for gold — although visitors may still be able to extract enough of the precious metal to make a wedding ring.

Visitors fly by SAS from Oslo to Lakselv and then by bus to Karasjok in one day. The trip from Karasjok to the camp takes about two hours by flat-bottomed Lapp river boat, and passes through some of the wildest and most unspoiled country in the whole of Europe.

Human habitations are few and far between, and Bruin is uncrowned king.

Meals will be prepared barbecue-fashion over an open fire, and the staple diet will be glorious fresh salmon, trout and red char straight from Karasjok river, and reindeer steaks provided by local Lapps.

Canadian Couturiers Look to Heritage

Damaske

Canada's centennial has caused many of our designers and manufacturers to look to our own heritage for fashion inspiration.

Our fashion industry will by no means ignore the trends of Paris, London, Rome and New York but "a pronounced Canadian flair" is the objective of the International Ladies' Garment Workers for the national collection next January.

For five years the Canadian national collection has presented bi-annually a fall and a spring showing.

Bernard Shane, ILGWU vice-president, feels the time has come to stress Canadian design and fabric rather than stressing the minute changes which occur seasonally.

The time has come to accentuate the Canadian aspect of ready-to-wear fashion.

Jennifer Lindsey, co-ordinator of the Union Label presentation, said the new policy will mean that fashion writers attending the National Collection preview "can expect to see more styles with a pronounced Canadian flair, designed by Canadians for the Canadian woman."

For the past few years following the Canadian showings in Montreal, fashion writers have been asked to vote for their favorite costume in several categories.

It has been difficult to share the real excitement of winning designs with women across Canada but now there are plans afoot to enlarge on the presentation and have it covered by a coast-to-coast television hook-up.

When plans are completed, interested women in Victoria will be able to see Canada's finest fashions and meet the talented men and women who are putting this country's fashions in the limelight.

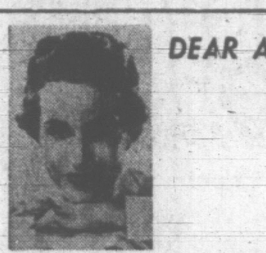
Canada's centennial inspired a collection of wedding fashions by Portrait Gowns of Montreal that seems to recapture the color, the silhouette and the splendor of fabrics cherished in those romantic days. The "directoire influence" of the 19th century is mirrored in Portrait's empire A-line. Mid-Victorian restraint re-appeared in the hour-glass shaping of the elegant princess line, while the fluidity of gowns that adhered to a natural easy waistline re-appeared this year after an absence of half a decade.

Portrait's two designers, Anna Knoll and Emile Selah, found Canada's historical inspiration practically untapped and were able to reach into the varied ethnic traditions that created this country.

Many designers, as they complete silhouettes for the centennial, look forward to having their collections shown at EXPO where Canadian fashion will be viewed by people of all nations.



DEAR ABBY . . .

Love Always Will Find a Way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who have decided to call it quits after 51 years of marriage? They have four married children, 13 grandchildren, and three great-granchildren. They were never exactly lovebirds, but it never came to a real separation before.

I am the eldest daughter and Mama called me and told me to come and get her as Papa moved to a motel and she wasn't going to stay in the house alone. It's been three days, and Papa is still holed up in tne motel.

My oldest brother called Papa and asked what he should tell people. Papa said, "Tell them I've entered my second childhood and I have the measles!" Then he slammed down the telephone. What should we tell people, and how can we get them back together?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Papa's explanation will do. Tell them nothing. "Love" will find a way.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, who served with the marine corps came home last month. As you can imagine, Don was pretty well tuckered out, so he just sat around the house resting and getting used to civilian life again. He also taught our parakeet how to swear.

Now, fun is fun, but you should hear what he taught that bird to say! What if the preacher drops in one Sunday afternoon?

DON'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Get another parakeet and teach it how to pray for the one that swears.

DEAR ABBY: I was born 35 years ago in a midwestern state at a home for unwed mothers. As an infant I was adopted by a wonderful couple, and we moved away. This fall my husband and I are planning a vacation to the midwest and find we will be near the city of my birth. My adoptive parents have both passed away, but my real mother is still living.

I have full information on how to reach her. Being a woman, I am naturally curious. I have not decided whether I would meet her face to face and identify myself, or whether I would arrange to meet her without letting her know who I was. Or should I just forget the whole thing?

I have no intention of intruding on her life or causing her any unhappiness or embarrassment. Perhaps you or one of your readers who have experienced something like this can help me decide.

JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: If you sincerely wish to cause your real mother no unhappiness or embarrassment, I advise you to forget the whole thing. It would hardly be worth the risk to merely satisfy your curiosity.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SEPTEMBER BRIDE: If you are concerned only with what you will get out of the marriage, your marriage will fail. You may never be divorced, but your marriage will fail nevertheless.

WED 50 YEARS

Sunday was a "red letter" day for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shawcross, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The couple was married in Ashford, Kent, England, on July 10, 1916. They lived in Regina, Sask., for 40 years, where Mr. Shawcross was chief engineer for the federal government for 25 years. They came to Victoria in 1957. The couple has three children, Maj. Charles S. Shawcross, Florida; Capt. Roy T. Shawcross, New Brunswick, and Mrs. Sylvia Lynn, Victoria. They also have 11 grandchildren. To celebrate their anniversary, the Shawcrosses held an "open house" in their Haultain Street home. Mrs. Lynn was hostess, and serviteurs were Mrs. H. McDonald and her daughter Susan. Presiding at the refreshment table, which was centred with a two-tier wedding cake flanked by evening primroses were Mrs. L. Simons, Regina, and Mrs. Stanley Shawcross. The affair was attended by 50 guests.

From Mainland

Approximately 38 "senoritas" of Sesame Zuanna No. 131, Ladies of the Orient, attended a patio party recently at the Brentwood Bay home of Mrs. G. Bone. The members, all wearing authentic Mexican costumes, enjoyed a buffet supper and an evening of games. A birthday cake was presented to Mr. George Bone, made by Mrs. D. Burkholder. ### SHOPPING GUIDE

Summer Wallflowers—Don't Be Shy of Sun

By Penny Saver

One of my neighbors just returned from a luxurious vacation in California. Needless to say, my little bit of tan looks lily white, compared to her copper glow. Being anywhere near her makes me feel like we are living in separate seasons. I must admit that I have been shying away from the sun, because the minute I step out, I squint, and remain with that distorting expression. As a result, when inside, I have the fanciest pattern on my face. Not only that, my eyelids dry, so I find myself plastering my eyes with creams and lotions.

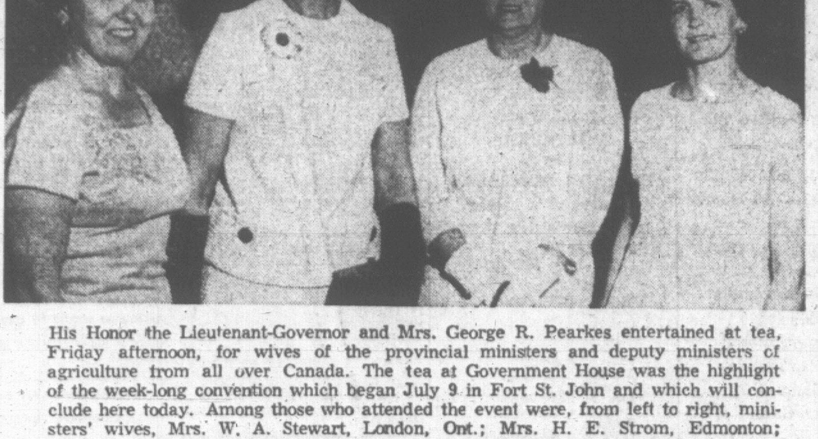
I must look like an 'outer space' woman with all my remedies to cure the blotched effects of an afternoon in the sun. I found one way to stop squint lines and dry eyelids before I go outside. It's a smooth cream that prevents the heat from drying tender skin, and it keeps away squint lines. It's a wonderful addition to your beach bag, priced at $2 the tube. Use it on sun-burned lids if you are like me, and fall asleep under the sun without any protective covers on your eyes.

Dyed lip tissue is another summer hazard. Not only does this condition make even lipstick application almost impossible, but it does nothing to enhance a browned complexion. Before your next date with old Sol, wear a shield of special cream that comes in a stick form, so easy to apply. One stick, enough for the whole summer and then some, sells for $2.

With summer inevitably comes summer sniffles from sudden temperature changes. No one wants to swing into the season with rough and tender skin under the nose, that makes you look like an off-season Rudolph. Use this slick stick that heals and protects—invisibly.

Be a beach beauty this summer by taking these precautions before you stretch out on the sand. Give Penny a call at 382-3131 and she'll tell you where she found these.

More than 300 guests gathered Friday evening in the combined Marie Maggiora Ballet Studio and J. C. S. Wilkinson Art Studio to mark the studios' official opening. The two are unique in the fact that they are combined in a building designed specifically for them. Seen discussing the new project with Miss Maggiora and Mr. Wilkinson, at right, are guests Mrs. Pat Martin Bates and Mr. Peter N. Cotton.



His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes entertained at tea, Friday afternoon, for wives of the provincial ministers and deputy ministers of agriculture from all over Canada. The tea at Government House was the highlight of the week-long convention which began July 9 in Fort St. John and which will conclude here today. Among those who attended the event were, from left to right, ministers' wives, Mrs. W. A. Stewart, London, Ont.; Mrs. H. E. Strom, Edmonton; Mrs. D. T. McFarlane, Regina, and Mme. Clement Vincent, Quebec City.

Groom's Mother Travels Here For Bowen-Byers Vows Today

Travelling from Pincher Creek, Alta., to attend the wedding, this afternoon, of Gail Patricia Byers and Colin MacKenzie Bowen was the groom's mother, Mrs. A. F. I. Bowen. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Byers, 3681 Kathleen Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ligada styled along empire lines. The bodice was highlighted with lace appliques studded with seed pearls and crystals. Two tiny bridal bows held the detachable train, and her hand-rolled veil of silk illusion misted from a rosette starred with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Canon T. W. Scott officiated at the ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church, which was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, pink snapdragons and summer lilacs for the occasion. Organist David Palmer played "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven."

SHADES OF BLUE

The bride's attendants were matron of honor Mrs. Jon S. Parker, and bridesmaids the Misses Barbara Byers, Priscilla Bowen and Deirdre Bowen, sisters of the principals. Their floor-length gowns of chiffon over taffeta were styled along empire lines, in mauve, turquoise, light blue and dark blue tones respectively. Bouquets were of posy-pink carnations and white stephanotis.

Jon S. Parker was best man, and Russell Porter, John Stanlake and Robert Stanlake were ushers.

Pink sweetheart roses topped the wedding cake at the reception following in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. W. J. Kitley was master of ceremonies, and E. M. Sinclair proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Washington and Oregon, the bride chose a dress and coat ensemble in white cotton plisse. She complemented her outfit with a pink floral hat and black patent accessories.

Highlights Of Lace

Lace appliques and sequins trimmed the scoop neckline of the floor-length gown of organza over satin worn by June Anne Muller, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Russell Brian Doyle. Similar highlights starred the hemline.

Her train, which swept back from a bow and rose at the waist, was highlighted by the same lace appliques. A headpiece of rosebuds and pearls held her four-tier veil. "Something old" was her grandmother's ring, and "something borrowed" from maid of honor Miss Grace Rooney was pearl earrings.

Rev. A. G. McLeod heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Muller, 4211 Belvedere Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Doyle, Regina, Sask. St. Aidan's United Church was decorated with baskets of carnations in pink, white and blue tones for the ceremony. Mr. Muller gave his daughter in marriage.

GIFTS OF PEARLS

The bride's attendants, her maid of honor and bridesmatron Mrs. M. McArthur, wore two-piece suits of pink and blue lace respectively, with wide-brimmed hats of organza en tone. Jewelry was the bride's gifts of pearl necklaces and earrings, and they carried colonial bouquets of white carnations and pink roses with blue net.

Deane Doyle was best man for his brother, and ushers were Ron Muller, the bride's brother, and Murray McArthur.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland, the new Mrs. Doyle chose a two-piece suit of hot pink wool. Completing her outfit was a matching hat and black accessories, and a corsage of pink and white roses.

Jewelry Accents 'Something Old'

GOWN OF FRENCH BROCADE

A strand of pearls belonging to her grandmother and her mother's rhinestone bracelet fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Rosalind Katharine Lillian Johnston, this afternoon, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Jack Charles Showers.

The jewelry accented the bride's gown of heavy white French brocade, which was styled on empire lines. Bodice featured a full train sweeping back from the shoulders and the skirt was A-line. A headpiece of iridescent white and silver iris held her softly misted shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of pink rapture roses nestled in velvet leaves.

PINK AND WHITE

Baskets of pink and white stocks and gladioli decorated Metropolitan United Church when Dr. J. Garden heard vows uniting the daughter of Mrs. Lillian Johnston, 1771 McRae Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Showers, 2295 Cranmore Road.

Soloist Mrs. Arla Rendle sang "The Wedding Prayer" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Const. Desmond Johnston, RCMP. During the signing of the register Mrs. Rendle sang "O Perfect Love" and "Bells From Belfry."

The bride's trio of attendants, maid of honor Miss Susan Foster, bridesmatron Mrs. Desmond Johnston and bridesmaid, Miss Deborah Barnett, were in empire-line gowns of peau de soie, shaded from American Beauty rose to deep pink. They carried bouquets of white carnations accented with white and silver net and wore similar flowers in their hair. Their jewelry was pink crystal necklaces, gifts of the bride.

RIBBON MARKERS

Dr. Howard Barnett proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in Holyrood House. A three-tier wedding cake, flanked by pink and white candles, roses and stocks, centred the lace-covered refreshment table.

The couple will make their home in New Westminster, following a honeymoon trip to California. For travelling, the new Mrs. Showers donned a soft green and white Swiss brocade suit, accented with a green silk linen blouson top. She completed the outfit with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

If you wonder why South rebid a four-card diamond suit instead of raising his partner's clubs, the answer is that they were using the Wolff convention. This provides that if a player who has responded one over one rebids to three clubs over his partner's two no-trump rebid, a three diamond rebid is required.

| Pass | 3♣ | Pass | 3♦ |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Opening lead—♦ 5

The idea of the convention gives a player who makes a horrible response, such as North's one spade, a chance to get off the hook. With a spade bust North would have continued to three spades and South would have had to pass. With his actual hand North simply dropped the bidding at three diamonds.

Of course if North had passed at one diamond South would have played the hand right there. This would have been fine in this case. On other occasions North's pass would allow East and West to get into the bidding successfully. Or, if South happened to have the right sort of hand for spades, the spade response would have led to a successful spade contract. In fact it is possible to set up plenty of South hands that will produce a spade game opposite North's collection of nothing.

South has several ways to make three diamonds. The simple way is to win the trump opening in his own hand. He takes his ace of hearts, ruffs a heart in dummy, comes back to his hand with a high club, ruffs his last heart and pauses for breath.

Then he plays trumps and eventually loses two clubs, one spade and the ace of trumps.

Dock Strikes Dogging Soviet Captain, Crew

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—There are no strikes in Russia and the master of a Russian freighter tied up here made it plain Wednesday that he wishes there were none in Canada. He's tired of capitalist labor disputes.

Said Capt. Anatoly Kuznetsov of the motor vessel Bratsk in an interview:

The Bratsk, owned by Russia's Baltic Steamship Co., left leningrad April 26 and was supposed to have been back home by mid-June. Maybe she'll make it by the end of August, the captain said wearily.

The Bratsk tied up at Quebec City for three weeks because of a dock strike. She finally made it to Toronto—on the day that Toronto's longshoremen walked out. She arrived here Sunday and on Monday, Hamilton's dock workers went on strike.

"In Russia there is a longshoremen's union but there are no strikes," said Capt. Kuznetsov. "You don't pass idle hours there waiting for men to go back to work."

38 Quebec Hospitals Strikebound

MONTREAL (CP)—Strike director Raymond Couture said today non-medical employees walked out of 17 hospitals at 7 a.m. to bring the number of strikebound Quebec hospitals to 38.

The extended stoppage began as night shift workers ended their spell. Picket lines were set up around the hospitals.

Mr. Couture said this brought the total of workers now out on strike to 12,000 from Friday's 7,000.

He also said negotiations had resumed at 8:30 a.m. today. No further hospitals would be affected by a strike Sunday but more would be brought out Monday. He did not yet know which or how many hospitals would be affected Monday.

TORONTO (CP)—The royal commission hearing on Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. Friday adjourned for eight weeks, after hearing 1,500,000 words of evidence and accepting nearly 3,000 exhibits. Staff inquiries will continue into the June, 1965, collapse of the Toronto-based financial company. Also, Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court will take evidence in Germany early in August, before public hearings resume Sept. 12.

Bigelow Second In Senior Meet

Times News Services

Jack Littler left the door open Friday at Brantford, Ont., but Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria was unable to take advantage of the opportunity to win the Canadian senior golf championship.

The Toronto golfer fired an 81 in the third and final round of the tournament and still managed to add a stroke to the lead he held after 36 holes.

Littler took the title with 232 for the 54 holes, three strokes ahead of Bigelow, who was two blows back after two rounds but slipped to an 82 Friday.

Alex Folk of Saskatoon was third at 240.

HOMENUIK LEADS

At Kingston Friday, Winnipeg pro Wilf Homenuik fired his second straight 68 to take the 36-hole lead in the 54-hole Ontario Open tourney.

Ontario ace Moe Norman, going one over par with a 71 Friday after an opening round 66, dropped one stroke behind Hoemnuik with 137.

In the final of the Manitoba amateur tourney at Winnipeg, hockey player Nick Mickoski finished strongly to take the crown with an 8-and-6 victory over Randy Brekke.

Mickoski was later named to Manitoba's Willingdon Cup team along with Bill Pidlaski, Barry McKenzie and Bob Dunbar.

Selected at Edmonton to the Alberta team were Bob Wylie, Keith Alexamder and John Kilburn. Tentatively selected for the fourth berth was Doug Silverburg.

Instalment Plan Living To Extreme

EDMONTON (CP) — Harry Zylenko has carried instalment-plan living to the point where his best friends concede he's a bit loose in the upper storey.

For more than two months, the 67-year-old farmer has occupied the upper floor of his house on the outskirts of Edmonton while the ground floor sits by the roadside 20 feet away.

Eventually the two halves will be reunited in Vegreville, 60 miles east of here, where Mr. Zylenko a widower with five married daughters, spent his boyhood on his father's farm.

The detached upper storey, precariously perched on four stacks of blocks, consists of a single room equipped with a double bed, carved dining table and wood stove, big enough for heating one pot at a time. There's a larger stove outside at ground level.

Mr. Zylenko will continue to climb a ladder to his little penthouse until adjustments are made to the lower half permitting it to be loaded on to a truck. Overhead wiring makes it impractical to move the house in one piece.

Mr. Zylenko hopes to be able to start rolling next week. Or the week after. Or possibly the week after that.

Spinning Car Strikes Tree, Youth Fined $300

A youth who said the car he was driving went out of control when he accidentally put it in reverse was fined $300 Friday when he was convicted of impaired driving.

David Cary, 22, of 3104 Richmond, was stopped by police after an officer on patrol at the Oak Bay Marina about 6 a.m. July 3 saw a car spin about at a curve in the road and sideswipe a tree, then drive off.

A police doctor who examined the accused said in his opinion Cary was impaired. The accused's own doctor examined him later and considered his condition relatively normal.

Fergy Says Thanks to All

To all those who remembered him, Fergy McPherson says "thanks."

About $3,000 was raised to help out the former Victoria minor hockey coach who was injured in an automobile accident near Portland. Of that total, about $800 was raised in Victoria.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McPherson have asked The Ttimes to "thank everyone."

Cycle Club Puts Accent On Pleasure

The Victoria Cycling Club plans to conduct a series of progressive tours under the supervision of experienced riders.

And you don't have to be a cycling whiz to participate.

All bike enthusiasts are invited to pack a lunch and pedal out to the Burnside Shopping Centre at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, when the group will start its first scenic cycling tour.

Farmers Facing Rebuilding Task

Winners of the B.C. juvenile grid title last year, Oak Bay Farmer Construction will start training Sunday for a new Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League season.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The Papua-New Guinea Folklore issue that came out recently is unusual to say the least. The four stamps to comprise the set all have motifs from the myths of the Elema people of the Papuan Gulf.

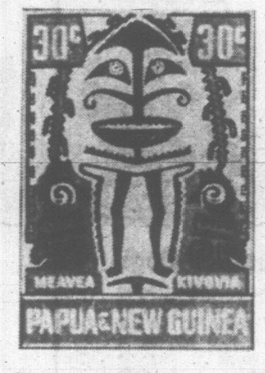
Strangely enough, it is due to the efforts of the Rev. H. A. Brown of the London Missionary Society that these have been preserved, as contact with civilization has caused the natives to drop many of their tribal customs.

As a rule it is the missionaries who are partly responsible for trying to influence the aboriginal inhabitants of a country to forsake their old myths and legends.

I believe this was the case in Easter Island where the records of their writing were destroyed, with the result that the key to their inscriptions has been lost for good.

The Rev. Brown has carried on his medical missionary work among the Papuans for 25 years and is highly regarded by them. He encouraged them to collect all the specimens of their artwork that could be gathered together before it was too late.

He has picked out four of the most typical motifs, and these form the basis of the stamp issue.



The preview of Canada's 1967 issue as shown in last Saturday's Times, looks as if it might turn out to be a very attractive series.

Presumably the stamps will be printed by photogravure instead of the usual intaglio process, in order to show the pictures of our Canadian artists in their natural colors.

The criticism might be made, I think, that the word "Canada" on the design is rather large for the size of the stamp.

The series will still lack a 40c value which would be so useful for the registered letter rate — it is strange the Post Office Department is so reluctant to issue a stamp for this purpose.

GRANDMA IS IN A PICKLE

Grandmother's pickle mixture is so popular that she has to make increasing amounts each year to supply her friends. She has a big old-fashioned kitchen in which to work, and loves cooking, so she is happy to see that none of her friends go pickle-hungry. In fact, she's more than pleased by their requests.

This time she collected 200 one-pound jars, and boiled up a mixture which contained six times as many pounds of cauliflower as cucumber, and the cucumber weighed a third of the onions. The onions weighed fewer pounds than the beans by two, but weighed half as much as the cauliflower. Grandmother thought this mixture would fill all the jars, but when finished three were left empty.

Ignoring loss of weight in cooking, how many pounds were there of each ingredient?

Solution: Cauliflower, ninety pounds; cucumber, fifteen pounds; onion, forty-five pounds; beans, forty-seven pounds.

ARE YOU UNDERHANDED, SIR?

A shady character who wanted to make a payoff covertly, wished to arrange a method whereby he could place a certain number of dollar bills into ten envelopes in such a way that he could take away any sum of dollars from 1 to 1,000, without splitting up the contents of any one envelope. What are the respective numbers of dollar bills the envelopes must contain?

Solution: 1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, 128, 256, 512.

REFLECT ON THIS FOR A MINUTE

Suppose a mirror and a window are of the same size and equally accessible. Why should most women prefer to wash the window?

Answer: A mirror has only one side.

IT'S SUM DIFFERENCE— TO BE SURE!

If a fifth of X is equal to a fourth of Y and a third of Z and if the difference between X and Z is 50, what are the three numbers, X, Y and Z?

Answer: X is 125, Y is 100 and Z is 75.

THINK BACK FOR HIS IDENTITY

He was one of the world's greatest composers. He was the father of three notable composers, and brother, uncle and grandfather of others. Just think back for his name.

Answer: He was Johann Sebastian Bach.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST

Put on your thinking cap and see if you can guide White side to victory in four moves in the checker contest at right. It's White's turn; moving up the board.

For your information, White's first move involves the man on square 18. This move presents two possibilities — and a crucial decision. Square 14 or 15, which shall it be?

Solution: White 18—14, Black 9—18. White 10—15, Black 19—10, White 28—24, Black 20—27, White 32—23—14—7—16.

Man Faces Murder Trial In Wife's Arsenic Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rene Castellani, a radio promotion man accused of the arsenic death of his wife Esther, was ordered Friday to stand trial on a charge of capital murder.

Magistrate James Bartman, at the conclusion of a three-day preliminary hearing, said Castellani "had both the motive and the opportunity."

Mrs. Castellani, 40, was admitted to hospital May 24, 1965, with abdominal pains and nausea, which dated back several months. She died in hospital July 11, 1965.

"Excluding the possibility of suicide, the only evidence before me is that this woman was murdered," said Magistrate Bartman.

"There is evidence the accused mentioned a weed killer to others but not to doctors."

Five witnesses testified they had conversations with Castellani prior to his wife's death in which he mentioned a garden spray or insecticide as a possible cause of her illness.

In evidence presented Friday morning, Robert Mauris, district registrar of vital statistics, said a marriage licence was issued on April 4 of this year to Castellani and Adelaide Anne Miller.

Castellani and Mrs. Miller are both former employees of radio station CKNW, where Castellani was in the promotion department.

Canada Birth Rate Lowest Since 1939

OTTAWA (CP) — Births in Canada declined in 1965 for the sixth straight year and the birth rate was the lowest since 1939, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

The number of marriages and deaths increased as total births declined to 418,595 from 452,915 a year earlier and the 1959 record of 479,275.

The birth rate per 1,000 population was 21.4. It was 23.5 in 1964.

The death rate held steady at 7.6 per 1,000, with actual deaths increasing to 148,939 from 145,850.

Half those who died during the year fell to disease of the heart and circulatory system. Cancer accounted for 17.5 per cent, accidents for 7.4 per cent.

These have been the three leading causes of death consistently since 1951.

The country had 145,519 marriages, 7,408 more than in 1964. The marriage rate was 7.4 per 1,000, up from 7.2.

Hellyer Stakes Post On Row with Admirals

Will Quit If Cabinet Retreats

EDMONTON (CP) — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Friday he has no intention of letting anyone, "even if he's an admiral," tell the government how to run the armed forces.

After making the statement at a press conference, the minister backed it up in a conversation later with local Liberal party officials when he said he would resign if his cabinet colleagues didn't give him full support in his battle with some top brass over integration of the armed forces.

If the federal government weakens in its support for integration—something Mr. Hellyer said he doesn't expect will happen—"they'll have to find a new minister."

Mr. Hellyer told an airport press conference on his arrival to speak to the Royal Canadian Air Force Association that the central issue in his public disagreement with four rear admirals over armed forces integration is civil control of the military.

And it's not only admirals who are giving him trouble, he added. Some top officers in the air force and army also were bucking integration.

Mr. Hellyer said in his conversation with local Liberal officials that he expects there will be further resignations from the armed forces over the issue.

According to law, he said, the armed forces are subject to civil control and "this is the way it will work, for a change."

"I don't pretend that support for my integration policy has been unanimous. I never expected that it would be. The

'NAVY BEFORE COUNTRY'

MONTREAL (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Jean V. Allard, who assumed duties today as chief of the defence staff, said Friday admirals who are dissatisfied with integration of Canada's armed forces "put navy before country."

"I knew it was coming," he said. "The admirals have never been able to accept integration. They were only in favor of it as long as it didn't touch them."

DON'T TRY U.S. AIRMEN, THANT APPEALS TO HANOI

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant made a public appeal to North Viet Nam today not to try American prisoners. He said any such trial would "generate still more intense escalation" of a war he said already threatens to become a third world war.

In a statement that a spokesman read to correspondents, Thant also appealed to all parties in the Viet Nam war to comply with the 1949 Geneva convention against mistreatment of war prisoners.

Finally, he repeated his three-point proposal for cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of all military operations in South Viet Nam and a willingness on all sides to negotiate with the Viet Cong rebels.

North Viet Nam has been talking about trying U.S. pilots shot down in bombing and reconnaissance missions over its territory.

Hanoi radio has promised a special announcement tonight, and there was speculation here it would deal with this subject.

Peace Journey By Wilson 'Sure to Fail'

Wilson arrived today ostensibly to visit a $5,000,000 British trade fair, but the main purpose of his three-day visit is to convince the Soviet Union that the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina should be reconvened in an effort to end the Viet Nam war. Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the conference.

But even before his scheduled Monday talks with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, the U.S.S.R. made it clear that it has no intention of initiating such a move.

'DANGEROUS'

Wilson, prior to his departure from London, was asked whether he had genuine hopes for a rousing Moscow's interest in a negotiated peace. He replied:

Wilson added: "The situation in Viet Nam is dangerous. Even if there were not the danger of escalation and the cloud it is casting over world affairs generally, the fact is it is a cruel war, every day of which means casualties which we all deplore.

"I hope there is going to be a change in that attitude."

SOVIET POLICY

Hanoi Must Request Peace Talks

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union will refuse to make any effort to arrange Vietnamese peace talks unless Hanoi asks it to, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India said today.

And North Viet Nam has not yet commented on her efforts to open the way to peace talks, Mrs. Gandhi said. She had appealed to the Soviet Union to call a Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

At a press conference before flying home after four days of talks with Soviet leaders, Mrs. Gandhi said she thought a precondition for peace talks "would be the stopping of bombing of North Viet Nam."

Talking separately to reporters, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said he had explained to Mrs. Gandhi "our position—that American aggression should be stopped and all foreign troops withdrawn.

"That is the only possible solution" in Viet Nam, Kosygin said.

DANGEROUS SITUATION

In a communique issued at the close of Mrs. Gandhi's visit, both India and the Soviet Union expressed their "particular concern" at what they called the dangerous situation that had arisen in Southeast Asia as a result of the intensification of hostilities in Viet Nam and the U.S. bombings in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Viet Nam.

"The two governments state once again that the bombing of the Democratic Republic of (north) Viet Nam should be stopped immediately," the communique said.

PASSIONS RISE

Trial to Loose Dogs of War?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator George D. Aiken said today that if Hanoi carries out its threat to execute U.S. airmen "the American people will demand the complete destruction of North Viet Nam."

Aiken, who has criticized acceleration of the war, thus put into blunter words the carefully phrased warning Friday of 18 self-styled Democratic "doves" that such action by Hanoi "would provoke the greatest reprisals and further blacken the hope for peace."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who endorsed the statement by the 18, agreed generally with Aiken's appraisal of prospective public demands for retaliation.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey, in a speech Friday at Fort Worth, Tex., also warned that the staging of trials would "set loose emotions very hard to control in this country."

BLAMES MOSCOW

In an interview, Aiken, a Vermont Republican, blamed Moscow for encouraging the North Vietnamese to step up their resistance.

"No person in the world wants to establish peace more than President Johnson," Aiken said. "The Soviets could help bring this matter to the conference table. But I fear they want to bog us down to the fullest extent in Viet Nam and put them-

Bombers Strike 121 Times

They struck at three oil depots to keep up the intensified drive against the Hanoi government's fuel reserves and also attacked six missile sites.

U.S. Navy planes evaded 10 Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles 45 miles southeast of Hanoi, but a navy A-4 Skyhawk jet was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, U.S. military headquarters said. The pilot bailed out and is listed as missing.

North Viet Nam meanwhile claimed seven U.S. planes were shot down over Viet Nam Friday, three of them in the vicinity of Hanoi. A number of Americans were captured, said the North Viet Nam news agency.

Suspected Nurse Slayer Linked by Fingerprints

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police Supt. O. W. Wilson announced today a suspect in the killing of eight student nurses had been identified through fingerprints. He identified the man as Richard B. Speck, 25. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

CHICAGO (AP)—An artist's sketch of the demented killer who slaughtered eight student nurses has brought a flood of new leads—and a burst of new confidence—to detectives determined to hunt the man down.

"We've been inundated with phone calls, tips and leads since we added the sketch to our description," said Michael Spiotto, deputy chief of detectives.

A police artist sketched the killer's face after closely questioning the only survivor of the massacre, who was roused from heavy sedation Friday after the long night of horror.

Detective Spiotto said the two-hour interview was more fruitful.

"Number one, we're confident we're going to get this guy," he said. "Number two, we know the girl can identify him."

The girl, 23-year-old Corazon Amurao, filled in details missing from her first, hysterical account blurted out to police when she finally fled the blood-splattered house of death at dawn Thursday.

Spiotto said he believed the killer was no stranger to the area.

BUT KEEP THEM COMING

Babies Get That All Shot Up Feeling

Babies and children — warm, winning and unpredictable before a camera — are the favorite subjects of many amateur photographers.

And because of this, pictures of them have been coming in thick and fast to the People of the World category of the Times Photo Contest.

But there's always room for more. That snapshot of baby splashing in his bath, or junior up to bat, might be the one that wins you some of the $50,000 available in prizes.

Backgrounds: It's important to remember your camera always looks beyond a picture subject, and so should you. A cluttered, "busy" background is distracting and will make most pictures look unattractive. When you see an unpleasant background in your viewfinder, usually it's only necessary to shift your position to acquire a less distracting one.

Distance: When taking pictures of babies or children, get as close to them as possible. However, it is desirable to have some reliable guide as to how close you can get. The distance for box cameras with a standard close-up attachment is about 3½ feet; for adjustable focus cameras it will be marked on the focusing ring. If your camera has no range-finder, you might want to cut a string the exact length of the closest focusing distance and fasten it to the bottom of the camera. It makes a handy device whenever you get into close-up range.

Sequence Shooting: When taking pictures of babies or children, it is often best to take a series of photos in rapid sequence. With a series, your chances of getting a really good action shot or expression are considerably increased.

Pictures most likely to win prizes are those in which children are caught in the act of being themselves. So keep your camera ready for that special shot.

Color snapshots are not eligible, but black-and-white prints made from color snaps or negatives will be accepted.

All entries should be sent to the Photo Contest Editor, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Fish Year 'Good' Despite Low Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will likely have an average fishing year despite below-average salmon runs in southern B.C. waters, cannery officials say.

The officials said large catches along the northern and central B.C. coast should offset the poor fishing in the south, particularly in the Fraser River.

Heavy pre-spawning mortality of Horsefly River sockeye salmon in recent years has resulted in a $15,000,000 loss to the salmon canning industry.

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, alarmed by the situation, has recommended a full biological and engineering study to find means to combat the losses.

An estimated $8,000,000 has been lost by fishermen because of the mortality.

Ford Dividend Declared

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. board of directors declared a 60-cent quarterly dividend this week. It is payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record July 28.

Ford has paid the 60-cent dividend since it was increased from 50 cents in the fourth quarter last year.

to avoid the storms that risk loss of investment capital. A mortgage investment already provides a substantial hedge against loss.

For example: The $5,000 Mortgage on a $10,000 property . . . it would take quite a drop in values to effect even one dollar's loss on the investment.

Think about it . . . and you could decide that an investment in a mortgage, or a mortgage company, will provide the worry-free investment you are looking for.

If so, get a booklet on Victoria Mortgage Corporation and learn about the security they offer on a 7½% investment. Interest paid or compounded quarterly. No acquisition cost. Phone EV 4-7128 to receive your booklet by mail.

Arthur Mayse

If you live in Fairfield-Beacon Hill and have a pooch in need of an airing, help is no farther away than your telephone. Call EV 2-9363 and ask for Beverley Flint, a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl who has established what may well be Victoria's first dog-walking service.

Your pet will be taken in charge at his home by a future veterinarian. He will then be escorted at his own pace along a route of doggy interest.

The fee, 75 cents an hour, is based on Beverley's rate for baby-sitting, an occupation which consumes much less shoe-leather. Matter of fact, it was one of the mothers on her list who suggested dog-walking as a summer occupation.

A student at Central Junior Secondary, she went job-hunting among the vets when vacation started. They didn't need her services (at her age, regular jobs are very hard to find) and a dog-grooming establishment had no spot for her either.

Beverley lives with her parents, brothers and sister at 1051 Pendergast. She is 15 years old today, and her gifts included sandals, a bathing suit, a long-play Paul Revere record and a dollar. To this list I hope will be added her first assignment as a dog-walker.

At 908 Alexander lives a one-woman whirlwind who is doing her best to puff away the sawmill smoke that, all too often, casts its dirty pall over her district.

Her name is Mrs. William R. Walters. She has protested, she has written letters, and will not cease her efforts, she insists, until those belching stacks are muzzled.

"They did it in England," says Mrs. Walters, "they've done it in Pittsburgh, and there isn't a reason in the world why they can't get rid of the smoke here!

"The Indians," she continued after the merest pause for breath, "have a perfectly beautiful reserve down there, and I think they could have something on it that would help them a lot more than a sawmill. Couldn't some interested group help them establish a marina? I'm sure they'd get far more benefit from it, what with renting boats and guiding, and perhaps providing waterfront cruises."

Somehow or other, we switched at this point to sewage disposal. Mrs. Walters had some notions for this field, too.

"When you take sawdust," she said, "and mix it with sewage sludge, you get a wonderful nitrogen-high soil dressing. I found that out by trying it. They reduce their sewage to sludge in Milwaukee, and there isn't a reason in the world why. . . .

". . . We can't do it here," I finished for her, making a mental note to suggest that this woman of vigorous ideas seek municipal office at the first opportunity.

Highways minister Gaglardi has loosed several wild swings since his department's aircraft expenditure has been questioned. The latest of these is aimed at our British Columbia bush pilots, a group of men who have bravely, faithfully and effectively pioneered provincial frontiers these many years.

There are any number of us on this Island and in this province who would be only too willing to speak up for the pilots who fly those aircraft.

As one of that group, I have flown my share of miles with them in weather both fair and foul.

They are skilled and conscientious. For the air-miles they fly and the country in which they operate, their accident-rate is amazingly low.

Their licenses are not earned easily, and like all other commercial pilots, they remain under searching Department of Transport scrutiny.

There is danger in flying, just as there is on any highway. But aloft in a float plane with a B.C. bush pilot at the controls, you can be assured that your safety is not being neglected.

No Bells in the Belfry . . . Just a Loudspeaker

The newly-installed carillon in the University School chapel in recent days has been dinged, donged and chimed through its first trial run.

Everything from dirges to Christmas carol, the full range of a musical apparatus that does everything but a tap dance, has been pealing across the school's green playing fields and into neighboring districts.

The carillon, donated by Old Boy and member of the board of governors R. H. B. Ker, will put bellringers out of business once and for all.

Although the two-octave, 50-bell carillon sounds, at its loudest and richest like Westminster Abbey, it uses transistors, tape recorders and amplifiers to gain that effect.

Those aren't bells in the belfry, but loudspeakers, wired to a cabinet of tiny teacup-sized bells in the chapel's vestry.

Weekday and Sunday services are all timed by a clock in the console. The music can be played inside, outside or both.

It even knows when Sunday is coming. The timing device, if properly set, switches from a weekday chimes to Sunday call-to-worship automatically.

School headmaster J. J. Timmis, who says the bells will be a "delightful addition to the school and the district," said they could even find use as timetable bells.

$15,000 IN GOODS RECOVERED

IWA 'Impatient' With Pact Talks

Another Walkout Feared by Officials

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Coast negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America pressed today for weekend meetings with management to forestall possible walkouts by loggers.

A brief statement by the 10-man negotiating committee said in part:

It was learned that the impatience is coming mainly from the 10,000 loggers in the coast industry. Many of them went on strike for a week before a mediator's report was ready, saying they were dissatisfied with delays.

One source said there is reason to believe that if the report isn't signed this weekend there will be "job action"—in other words, a walkout.

NO GUARANTEE

"We couldn't guarantee there would not be some action," added the source.

Key to the loggers' complaint is travel time.

The report recommended the existing 10-hour travel time period be reduced to 9½ hours "effective the Monday following the signing of a new collective agreement."

Union negotiators hope to have the new two-year contract signed today or Sunday so the benefit for loggers will start Monday.

The report also recommended reduction of travel time period to nine hours next June. At that time, employees away from designated marshalling points for more than 10 hours shall get time and a half.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

The mediator in the contract dispute, Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, said of travel time in his report:

"It was one of the most difficult and contentious problems put before me and I found no common ground between the parties."

He concluded that "immediate and substantial relief must be given the loggers at this time."

Hitch in implementation of the Nemetz report concerns the complicated system of giving specific points measurement to the content of jobs in the plywood industry.

Both sides have drawn up their interpretations of the judge's recommendations and they don't tally.

The short union statement accused employers of "haggling over every penny, but the committee is determined that the contents of the Nemetz report will be implemented in its entirety."

The report of Mr. Justice Nemetz was made public three weeks ago and accepted by the IWA, representing 26,000 workers in the coast wood industry, and Forest Industrial Relatons, bargainer for 120 companies.

It recommended a wage increase of 40 cents an hour over two years and a number of other items covering plywood workers, loggers and technological change.

YOUTHS FLEE AFTER CAR HITS MAN

A 72-year-old man received minor injuries Friday afternoon when he was knocked down by a car at Rose and Finlayson.

The car had previously been reported stolen. Three youths fled from it after the accident and have not been caught.

The pedestrian, George Wright of 3122 Rutledge St., was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for abrasions to his nose and a cut on his arm and released.

Police said the driver of the car was described as about five feet nine inches tall, with short blonde hair, wearing a white shirt and tan trousers.

Heated Mains Douse Marina Fire

A fat fire in the deep fryer of the Oak Bay Marina coffee shop at 8 this morning practically put itself out as the intense heat melted the copper water mains and flooded the area.

Firemen arrived in time to stamp out the last flickers of flame and assist in the mop-up operation.

Damage was mostly due to smoke and water and actual fire damage wah confined to the coffee shop itself. Marina president Bob Wright placed the damage at "less than $5,000."

The coffee shop was back in operation by noon and the restaurant will be open as usual tonight.

Newlyweds Selected Tourists of Week

Victoria Jaycees swooped down on a Winnipeg couple aboard the Queen of Saanich this morning and named them tourists of the week.

The couple, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Peterson, will be wined and dined and given a city tour, courtesy of Victoria merchants.

OPEN AGAIN is the free food stall, which distributes donated food to the poor of Greater Victoria. Stall closed four months ago when Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper retired for health reasons. New operator is Mrs. Joan Price (far left), with smiling helpers, and Ald. Cecil Parrott representing the city. Stall has been running for 13 years, providing food to welfare recipients.

'THATCH' MUSEUM

Old Craftsman Offers To Install New Roof

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A retired Saanich resident has offered to replace the thatch roof of the Maltwood Museum, formerly known as the "Thatch," at Royal Oak.

Eighty-four-year-old Cornish-born Archie Kitto, 1485 Mount Douglas Cross Road, who built the originaal thatch roof on the building in 1937, said he is prepared to do it again.

The thatch roof must come down sometime this fall because it leaks.

SHINGLE ROOF

It may be replaced by a shingle roof by the University of Victoria which received the building and its art treasures from the owner John Maltwood.

"I would do it," said Mr. Kitto, "if they would get the material. Most of that would have to come from England."

He learned the craft as a youth in England.

When the original roof was put on, the contractor had difficulty getting suitable straw, he recalled.

Wheat straw was first imported from England but the federal customs department in Montreal stopped its shipment because of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth desease in Britain.

'TOO BRITTLE'

"English straw, or reeds as we call it, should be used for thatching," he explained. "The straw grown here is too brittle, while the English material is pliable and bends without breaking."

Straw was finally imported from the eastern United States and the job took about six months.

"The straw arrived in bales wrapped in burlap," he said. "I made more money selling the burlap than on the roof."

OLD CORNISH FAMILY

Mr. Kitto comes from an old Cornish family. He was born in Porthleven, a fishing village, and graduated from the University of Cambridge.

But like many of his fellow Cornishmen, he preferred an outdoor life to being chained to a sedentary occupation. He has sailed in sailing ships and lived for a time on the Prairies when life there was less sophisticated.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the Criminal Code of Canada and how did it come into being? T. A.

A. The Criminal Code of this country is that body of legislation containing prohibitions and punishments, reflecting basically the accepted moral standards of the day. According to Crime and its Treatment in Canada (McGratin), the Code is British common-law ratified and restated by Parliament. The first Code was submitted to and enacted by Parliament in 1892. Amendments were constantly being introduced, until in 1955, a revised Code came into force. Oddly enough, the United Kingdom, does not have such a Code, but has set down its criminal law in more than 150 separate statutes.

SEWAGE STUDY APPROVED

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A detailed study on the construction of a sewage project at an estimated cost of $450,000 was approved at a council meeting.

The figure includes $250,000 for a treatment plant and $200,000 for sewer lines.

$65 A YEAR

Cost to the average home-owner would be about $65 a year, plus a $200 connection fee to be paid for linking homes to main sewer lines.

Council's action follows an engineer's report Wednesday on a capital region sewage plan.

The report recommended the treatment plant be abandoned when the Brentwood population reaches 4,000 in 20 years.

Then a main trunk line could be built to move sewage from Brentwood and Saanichton to an outfall at Cordova Spit.

CLAY SOIL

Councillors all agreed that Brentwood, with lots as narrow as 43 feet, has septic tank effluent flowing above the clay soil into roadside ditches leading down to the beaches.

They felt the problem would have to be faced sooner or later and action should be taken within the next year to put the issue to Brentwood residents.

Coun. Philip Benn said he didn't like the idea of discharging effluent in the bay.

ALTERNATIVE PLAN

"I can't understand a firm omitting to provide an alternative plan," he said.

But Reeve Gordon Lee didn't think the proposed sewage project would have detrimental effects on Brentwood .

"The effluent is now flowing down to the beaches," he said. "The project would alleviate the problem as it would be taken well out to sea."

COMEDIAN TO 'LIMIT'

Bob Hope will have "the limit" by next weekend, say reports from the luxury yacht Campana which is cruising off Vancouver Island at Qualicum today.

The comedian, who visits here annually for fishing, has already caught a 14 and 15-pound spring salmon "and the Coho are biting nicely."

Car Hits Tree; Two in Hospital

Six people were taken to hospital early today after their car went out of control on Cedar Hill Road north of Parkside Crescent and rammed a tree.

None of the four men and two women were seriously injured in the mishap at the edge of Mount Douglas Park which caused an estimated 1,500 damage to the car.

In safisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with unspecified injuries is John Wayne Hamilton, 22, of 3134 Mars St., believed to be the driver of the car. Also hospitalized and in satisfactory condition is Mrs. Della Knowles, 25, of 628 Garbally. She suffered head cuts and a broken wrist.

Treated at hospital for cuts and released were Mrs. Doreen Hamilton, 19, and Eugene Lupkoski, 20, of 628 Garbally.

The other two injured men were transferred to the Canadian Forces Base Hospital, Esquimalt, where they were reported today in satisfactory condition.

They are LAC Dermott Kowalski, 22, of RCAF Station, Edmonton, and LAC Leslie Earwaker, 21 of RCAF Station, Puncy Mountain, B.C. Both received head cuts.

In an accident Friday, Nikki Marios, 4, of 619 Raynor was treated for abrasions to her arm after she ran from behind a parked car on Craigflower and was struck by a passing auto driven by John Wood of 1659 Cedar Ave.

Driver Fined $350 On Impaired Charge

He was also prohibited from driving, except for business purposes for four months.

Pat Higgins, an Ex-Pawnbroker

He's Quit Dealing in Human Misery

By BOB DONAHUE

But he won't lend anymore.

He is an ex-pawnbroker who lost heart because he heard too many tales of woe—too many tales of woe that were lies.

It's been two years now since he wrote out his last pawn ticket in a cluttered shop at the lower end of Yates Street.

Yet still he wonders about all the authors and stories of their misfortune.

★ ★ ★

A frown wrinkles the face of the tall, greying man and he says: "Some of those stories must have been real."

In the four years he traded trinkets and treasures for money he has stood behind the counter and watched life come in and out the door. The people with their eternal facility to attract or repel and sometimes nauseate.

"There was a guy came in here one day and pointed to a gun on the wall. He told me it was the same gun that shot his little boy in the basement of his home.

"He wasn't buying and he wasn't selling, he was just telling," says Pat Higgins who has heard enough sad stories.

"There was another time, in the middle of winter, a young girl came in with no stockings or coat.

"She wanted to sell her purse, but I saw a black onyx ring on her finger which she didn't offer to sell so I didn't think she was legitimate.

"I'll bet 90 per cent of those stories were lies and I'll bet 90 per cent of those people wanted money for liquor.

"That's 90 per cent of the problem—liquor."

He points to a stack of used books piled against one wall of the shop.

"I wish I could write," he says.

"I could fill up the pages of all those books with the stories I've heard. I've heard them all."

Mr. Higgins, the native son of a native son of Victoria, was a watch repairman before he started dealing in human misery.

And now he divides his business half-and-half, watch repairing and buying, selling and trading used goods.

He says the pawnbroking business was a lot better when he started six years ago at the age of 43.

"There was more of an army and a navy then and they used to come in here, pawn things, then came and pick them up.

"But then they cut the personnel and the alcoholics started coming in to pawn things which they never intended to redeem. Sometimes the goods were stolen.

"That's when I decided to quit the business.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

LCB employee Bill Leggett and Victoria detective Lorne Johnson are among ex-navy types who probably smiled recently at news that Commodore Ralph "Spike" Hennessy was jumped over four rear-admirals to become a vice-admiral with a good chance of being next chief of staff for Canada's combined forces.

Aug. 13, 1942, the three were in the same ship, the destroyer HMCS Assiniboine. That day they tangled with a German sub in a surface battle. The U-boat's guns ignited the ship's motorboat gasoline and Assiniboine's starboard side was soon like a blast furnace.

AB Johnson

While Lieut. Cdr. John H. Stubbs (who later died in another ship in another action and whose name is commemorated in the school at Belmont Park) fought the sub at point blank range, his first lieutenant, Hennessy, led a party fighting the flames.

Despite being under heavy fire, Hennessy's men doused the blaze and Assiniboine twice rammed the sub, sinking her. It was a dicy time for Assiniboine's wounded who had been carried below decks. Had the fire got out of hand, their chance of survival would have been small.

And among the wounded that day, were Leading Seaman Leggett and Able Seaman Johnson.

Martin

Brown was the first director of Canada's National Gallery and a great influence in the life of the famous B.C. artist, Miss Carr. But there was scant background information to show Martin how the part should be played.

All that is solved now. A letter has come from Ottawa offering an intimate character study to assist the actor. It was written by Mrs. F. Maud Brown, widow of the man to be portrayed.

Nona F. Butts, 3001 Glen Lake Road, saw our recent article on Victoria's famed town crier of 100 years ago and thinks she might be a relative.

John was a bootlegger and a chicken stealer but he was a likeable rascal as the community realized after he was shipped out. His descendants needn't be ashamed, many of our pioneers probably were rascals.

A further note on John Butts tells how he enjoyed an expense-paid stay in jail, but he hated the chain gang, to which he often was assigned.

Once, when the weather was unruly, he feigned paralysis in order to stay in jail beyond his term. The community lamented when they took him to hospital. But the doctors were suspicious and sent John back. He remained "paralyzed," however, until a guard dumped a pot of ice water on him unexpectely. He took off like a rocket. And they tossed John Butts out of jail.

Some of the patients at Royal Jubilee have had patience enough to develop a scheme to make one rented television set do the work of four.

You may have noticed the sets, which rent for $1.50 per day, suspended from the ceiling. In a four bed ward two patients can share one, but the other side of the ward can't see the picture.

Then came the day when some schemer arranged his wheeled dining tray, which has a mirror built in, so that a reflection of the picture was cast across the ward. In a quiet ward with the volume on the individual speakers turned up, everyone can enjoy the show.

Incidentally, the rented TV's can be misery for a sick patient lying alongside one who is almost well. One patient suggests the large sets should be changed for the little eleven-inchers which can be viewed more privately.

Or perhaps the hospital should examine the system at North Vancouver's Lion's Gate Hospital. There every patient has an individual low-toned radio speaker, at no extra cost. And at the end of each floor is a TV viewing room, with no cost to the patient.

selves in a position to attack us. The situation never looked worse in our efforts to head off a nuclear war."

Meanwhile, Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman publicly warned Hannoi today that mistreatment of U.S. captives "will change the whole feeling of the war" which, he said, up to now has not been aimed against the people of North Viet Nam.

In the strongest words yet issued by a Washington official concerning threats to try American prisoners as war criminals, Harriman said:

"North Viet Nam still indicates that they believe that the United States will give up, just as France did some years ago, if they hold out.

"Now, if they think there is anything in this at all, one of the surest ways for it to assure that the American public will stick to this thing to the end, no matter how long it takes, would be their mistreatment of our airmen. . . .

BARBARIC ACT

"So far there has been no bitterness on the part of the American government or the American people against the people of North Viet Nam. But this barbaric act would heighten the temporal feeling and can only react against the interests of the North Vietnamese. . . ."

problems are from the very senior people only. The ones in the medium ranks are most enthusiastic and anxious for me to get on with it."

Mr. Hellyer said no leadership problems will be caused by resignations. There was a "wealth of talent" in the lower and medium ranks.

"I have met with the commanders several times and have told them if they cannot support my policy to let me know and they can retire gracefully."

Mr. Hellyer said Rear-Admiral William Landymore, chief of sea operations, has been asked for his resignation. He said Admiral Landymore's conduct in opposing integration has been "an obvious violation of regulations."

In addition, there had been "discussions as to the future employment" of three other senior naval officers, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, 51, of Esquimalt, B.C., commander of the Pacific fleet; Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, 59, deputy chief of operations; and Rear-Admiral H. C. Burchell, 45, of Ottawa.

Admiral Landymore, 50, said in Lawrencetown, N.S., Friday that he has been fired after refusing to resign.

The admirals and other high-ranking officers are after his head, Mr. Hellyer admitted candidly during his conversation with local party officials. He said the officers had moved only lately because earlier they didn't really believe integration would succeed.

DENIES CHARGE

At his press conference, Mr. Hellyer denied a statement by Douglas Harkness, former Progressive Conservative defence minister, that he had demanded a pledge of personal loyalty from senior officers of the forces.

"I have never in my life asked an officer for a loyalty oath," the ministers aid.

He also denied Mr. Harkness' allegations of discontent in the armed forces. He said his integration policy was suported by the majority of the staff of the armed forces and "I feel we have made wonderful progress and have moved farther and faster than any other country in the world."

In Edmonton, Air Marshal E. M. Reyno, chief of personnel for the armed forces, supported Mr. Hellyer's integration policy in an address to the RCAF association, which is holding its annual meeting here.

In his own address to the RCAF association, Mr. Hellyer reviewed the progress made so far in integration.

He said integration has highlighted but not caused inequities among the three services, and decisions will be made between now and Oct. 1 to correct these inequities.

"I think it is obvious to all of us that we could not undertake a reorganization of such magnitude without some problems arising regarding our personnel."

To date, integration had resulted in savings of more than $145,000,000 and for the first time in 10 years "we have reversed the curve of the amount of money spent for new equipment compared to the amount of money for operation and maintenance," he said.

Twice he had given senior officers who felt they could not support his policy the chance to "retire in honor" with full pension.

"No one took advantage of the offer. One or two elected to remain in the force and engage in passive resistance. In my opinion, this was reprehensible.

"I will continue to do my responsibility to see government policy is implemented," Mr. Hellyer said.

DID RIGHT THING

Ex-Admiral Supports Landymore

A retired admiral has come out in support of Rear-Admiral W. H. Landymore, who was fired Friday in a hassle over integration.

Former rear-admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes, now living in Victoria, said he would have taken the same stand as Admiral Landymore to maintain the navy's identity.

Admiral Landymore said he was fired when he refused to resign from the service in a dispute over defence department integration policy.

"I agree with Admiral Landymore entirely so if I had been in command I would have been fired too," said Admiral Finch-Noyes, a former flag officer, Pacific Coast.

"There is a lack of humanity in the way this is being carried out.

"I have the greatest admiration for Admiral Landymore. He had done more than anyone else to keep the navy together during the last three years."

Retired Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, another former Pacific Fleet commander, said "Admiral Landymore explained it very well. The loss is Canada's."

One of three other admirals involved in the shakeup, Pacific Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, will enter Naden Hospital Monday for surgery to a foot injury. He is expected to be in hospital two weeks.

Polio Victim Plans Swim Across Strait

Memories of the Juan de Fuca swimming craze 10 years ago will be recalled next month if a Quebec resident fulfils plans to make the cross-strait swim.

Robert Cossette, 35, whose right arm is paralyzed from a childhood attack of polio, said Friday night he is determined to make the swim from Victoria to Port Angeles.

He plans to make the 20-mile swim Aug. 10 or Aug. 12.

Cossette isn't a stranger to distance swimming.

He swam the English Channel in 1964 and has also made the 20 mile swim across Lake St. John near his home in Chicoutimi, north of Quebec City.

Cossette said he thinks he has an excellent chance of making it across the strait because he is used to swimming in cold waters.

Fall Campaign For Burn Unit

The local share of a planned $90,000 burns treatment unit at St. Joseph's Hospital must be raised before federal and provincial grants will be available.

"The project is contingent on us having the $40,000 local share," Pat Blewett, hospital assistant administrator, said Friday.

The procedure, he added, is the same as any other hospital expansion where local shares of the cost must be raised.

The Victoria Labour Council has approved as its Centennial project the raising of as much of the local share as it can through affiliated unions.

SUPPORTS CAMPAIGN

The Victoria branch, Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., will support the labor campaign and encourage individual contractors to contribute.

Because federal and provincial money is available to the project, it isn't eligible for Centennial grants.

Mr. Blewett said he is "extremely pleased" at labor's Centennial project because a burns unit will provide a service not available at the moment.

The five-bed unit, with elaborate sterilization and other equipment to keep it germ-free, would be built in a renovated wing of St. Joseph's.

BOAT COSTS LOWER IN CANADA

He Thinks Small in Big Way

By TERRY IZZARD

Think small!

It's more profitable that way.

This seems to be the case when it comes to boat building.

BUSINESS BOOMS

While the larger shipyards in Victoria and Vancouver experience increasing difficulties competing with eastern yards, Tom Fee's business is booming.

What was just a glorified potting shed back in 1930 is now a highly streamlined workshop, capable of turning some 40 boats off the assembly line this year.

While others have mourned rising wages and sinking profits, the 41-year-old Sidney man has kept up with the times.

The 30 employees in the boat works operate under similar conditions to factory workers in a car assembly plant.

Instead of one or two men looking after every operation in the building of a boat, each man is responsible for his own section.

And it has paid high dividends.

FLORIDA BOATS

Only this year, Mr. Fee was granted the first licence in Canada to build the well-established line of Bertram Boats, which in the past have been manufactured exclusively in Florida.

This has brought increased trade, including orders for eight of the 25-foot Bertram cruisers by the Canadian Hydrographic Survey service.

In addition, 12 of the vessels have been built for private owners and more orders are on the books.

Costing from $7,500 for a 20-foot to $75,000 for a 38-foot, the boats can be built here for 30 per cent less than in the U.S.

Although most of the parts are imported from the U.S., Mr. Fee's chief market lies in the Pacific Northwest states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and even Kansas, Montana and Alaska.

Renowned for high performance and quality, the deep-V type vessels are of fibreglass construction and powered by either inboard or inboard-outboard engines.

Said Mr. Fee: "The demand for pleasure craft has been increasing steadily over the years.

"And it's going to go on increasing.

"While B.C. wages are among the highest in North America, it's still possible to market these boats at competitive prices—if the right approach is taken.

CHIEF FACTORS

"Modernization of facilities and equipment are the two chief factors in keeping ahead of the problem."

Investors Take July Holiday

By LARRY DWORKIN

Trading was quiet on Canada's stock exchange this week as the recent boom in uranium issues faded and investors headed for their summer resorts.

At Toronto, a total of 16,466,000 shares changed hands compared with 14,212,000 last week.

One analyst said that market activity is usually quieter in the summer because "many investors turn their thoughts to vacations instead of the stock market."

SALES UNLIKELY

However, a spokesman for Eldorado Mining and Refining, the Crown corporation for marketing uranium, emphasized that no immediate sales are likely. And besides, such visits aren't unusual.

Other rumors that have helped push the price of the stocks higher include the lifting of the United States embargo on imports of uranium by 1970. The present embargo isn't due to expire until 1975.

At Toronto, Denison climbed 1c to 61⅞ although it reached a high of 65 before falling back. Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison shares, added ¼ to 15¼. Rio Algom, the country's second largest producer, dipped ¼ to 27.

Among other base-metal issues, Inco wa up 2⅛ to 98¼, Falconbridge ⅞ to 97 while Cominco dropped ⅝ to 40¾ and Noranda ⅛ to 53½.

Quebec Natural Gas, which was fifth in this week's most actively traded industrials, fell 1c to 13½ when discussions were broken off with Northern and Central Gas concerning the possibility of a takeover of the Quebec firm. Northern was up ⅛ to 13⅛.

Pipeline Work

CALGARY (CP)—A $2,500,000 contract has been awarded to Banister Construction Ltd. to build gas pipeline laterals from Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd., it was announced Friday.

Company President J. C. Mahaffy said the contract includes 30 miles of lateral line from the Provost, Alta., area to the Saskatchewan border.

He said construction is dependent upon Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. receiving approval from the National Energy Board to export gas.

CHILE HIKES COPPER PRICE

SANTIAGA (AP)—The Chilean government has raised the price of export copper to 70 cents a pound. Industry sources predicted the move would drive customers to cheaper substitutes.

The government copper corporation, which had raised the price to 62 cents in April, said Friday's eight-cent increase would go into effect immediately.

There were indications, however, the price increase might not last.

Profit Declines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Company president William R. Foster said Ocean Cement and Supplies Ltd. profits for the six months ended June 30 were $778,842, down from $807,463 in Jan.-June, 1965.

Fish Year 'Good' Despite Low Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will likely have an average fishing year despite below-average salmon runs in southern B.C. waters, cannery officials say.

The officials said large catches along the northern and central B.C. coast should offset the poor fishing in the south, particularly in the Fraser River.

Heavy pre-spawning mortality of Horsefly River sockeye salmon in recent years has resulted in a $15,000,000 loss to the salmon canning industry.

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, alarmed by the situation, has recommended a full biological and engineering study to find means to combat the losses.

An estimated $8,000,000 has been lost by fishermen because of the mortality.

Ford Dividend Declared

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. board of directors declared a 60-cent quarterly dividend this week. It is payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record July 28.

Ford has paid the 60-cent dividend since it was increased from 50 cents in the fourth quarter last year.

to avoid the storms that risk loss of investment capital. A mortgage investment already provides a substantial hedge against loss.

For example: The $5,000 Mortgage on a $10,000 property . . . it would take quite a drop in values to effect even one dollar's loss on the investment.

Think about it . . . and you could decide that an investment in a mortgage, or a mortgage company, will provide the worry-free investment you are looking for.

If so, get a booklet on Victoria Mortgage Corporation and learn about the security they offer on a 7½% investment. Interest paid or compounded quarterly. No acquisition cost. Phone EV 4-7128 to receive your booklet by mail.

WED 50 YEARS

Sunday was a "red letter" day for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shawcross, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The couple was married in Ashford, Kent, England, on July 10, 1916. They lived in Regina, Sask., for 40 years, where Mr. Shawcross was chief engineer for the federal government for 25 years. They came to Victoria in 1957. The couple has three children, Maj. Charles S. Shawcross, Florida; Capt. Roy T. Shawcross, New Brunswick, and Mrs. Sylvia Lynn, Victoria. They also have 11 grandchildren. To celebrate their anniversary, the Shawcrosses held an "open house" in their Haultain Street home. Mrs. Lynn was hostess, and serviteurs were Mrs. H. McDonald and her daughter Susan. Presiding at the refreshment table, which was centred with a two-tier wedding cake flanked by evening primroses were Mrs. L. Simons, Regina, and Mrs. Stanley Shawcross. The affair was attended by 50 guests.

The members, all wearing authentic Mexican costumes, enjoyed a buffet supper and an evening of games. A birthday cake was presented to Mr. George Bone, made by Mrs. D. Burkholder. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes entertained at tea, Friday afternoon, for wives of the provincial ministers and deputy ministers of agriculture from all over Canada. # Groom's Mother Travels Here For Bowen-Byers Vows Today

Travelling from Pincher Creek, Alta., to attend the wedding, this afternoon, of Gail Patricia Byers and Colin MacKenzie Bowen was the groom's mother, Mrs. A. F. I. Bowen. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Byers, 3681 Kathleen Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ligada styled along empire lines. The bodice was highlighted with lace appliques studded with seed pearls and crystals. Two tiny bridal bows held the detachable train, and her hand-rolled veil of silk illusion misted from a rosette starred with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Canon T. W. Scott officiated at the ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church, which was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, pink snapdragons and summer lilacs for the occasion. Organist David Palmer played "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven."

SHADES OF BLUE

The bride's attendants were matron of honor Mrs. Jon S. Parker, and bridesmaids the Misses Barbara Byers, Priscilla Bowen and Deirdre Bowen, sisters of the principals. Their floor-length gowns of chiffon over taffeta were styled along empire lines, in mauve, turquoise, light blue and dark blue tones respectively. Bouquets were of posy-pink carnations and white stephanotis.

Pink sweetheart roses topped the wedding cake at the reception following in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. W. J. Kitley was master of ceremonies, and E. M. Sinclair proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Washington and Oregon, the bride chose a dress and coat ensemble in white cotton plisse. She complemented her outfit with a pink floral hat and black patent accessories.

Highlights Of Lace

Lace appliques and sequins trimmed the scoop neckline of the floor-length gown of organza over satin worn by June Anne Muller, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Russell Brian Doyle. Similar highlights starred the hemline.

Her train, which swept back from a bow and rose at the waist, was highlighted by the same lace appliques. A headpiece of rosebuds and pearls held her four-tier veil. "Something old" was her grandmother's ring, and "something borrowed" from maid of honor Miss Grace Rooney was pearl earrings.

Rev. A. G. McLeod heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Muller, 4211 Belvedere Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Doyle, Regina, Sask. St. Aidan's United Church was decorated with baskets of carnations in pink, white and blue tones for the ceremony. Mr. Muller gave his daughter in marriage.

GIFTS OF PEARLS

The bride's attendants, her maid of honor and bridesmatron Mrs. M. McArthur, wore two-piece suits of pink and blue lace respectively, with wide-brimmed hats of organza en tone. Jewelry was the bride's gifts of pearl necklaces and earrings, and they carried colonial bouquets of white carnations and pink roses with blue net.

Deane Doyle was best man for his brother, and ushers were Ron Muller, the bride's brother, and Murray McArthur.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland, the new Mrs. Doyle chose a two-piece suit of hot pink wool. Completing her outfit was a matching hat and black accessories, and a corsage of pink and white roses.

Jewelry Accents 'Something Old'

GOWN OF FRENCH BROCADE

A strand of pearls belonging to her grandmother and her mother's rhinestone bracelet fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Rosalind Katharine Lillian Johnston, this afternoon, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Jack Charles Showers.

The jewelry accented the bride's gown of heavy white French brocade, which was styled on empire lines. Bodice featured a full train sweeping back from the shoulders and the skirt was A-line. A headpiece of iridescent white and silver iris held her softly misted shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of pink rapture roses nestled in velvet leaves.

PINK AND WHITE

Baskets of pink and white stocks and gladioli decorated Metropolitan United Church when Dr. J. Garden heard vows uniting the daughter of Mrs. Lillian Johnston, 1771 McRae Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Showers, 2295 Cranmore Road.

Soloist Mrs. Arla Rendle sang "The Wedding Prayer" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Const. Desmond Johnston, RCMP. During the signing of the register Mrs. Rendle sang "O Perfect Love" and "Bells From Belfry."

The bride's trio of attendants, maid of honor Miss Susan Foster, bridesmatron Mrs. Desmond Johnston and bridesmaid, Miss Deborah Barnett, were in empire-line gowns of peau de soie, shaded from American Beauty rose to deep pink. They carried bouquets of white carnations accented with white and silver net and wore similar flowers in their hair. Their jewelry was pink crystal necklaces, gifts of the bride.

RIBBON MARKERS

Dr. Howard Barnett proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in Holyrood House. A three-tier wedding cake, flanked by pink and white candles, roses and stocks, centred the lace-covered refreshment table.

The couple will make their home in New Westminster, following a honeymoon trip to California. For travelling, the new Mrs. Showers donned a soft green and white Swiss brocade suit, accented with a green silk linen blouson top. She completed the outfit with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

SHOPPING GUIDE

By Penny Saver

One of my neighbors just returned from a luxurious vacation in California. Needless to say, my little bit of tan looks lily white, compared to her copper glow. Being anywhere near her makes me feel like we are living in separate seasons. I must admit that I have been shying away from the sun, because the minute I step out, I squint, and remain with that distorting expression. As a result, when inside, I have the fanciest pattern on my face. Not only that, my eyelids dry, so I find myself plastering my eyes with creams and lotions.

I must look like an 'outer space' woman with all my remedies to cure the blotched effects of an afternoon in the sun. I found one way to stop squint lines and dry eyelids before I go outside. It's a smooth cream that prevents the heat from drying tender skin, and it keeps away squint lines. It's a wonderful addition to your beach bag, priced at $2 the tube. Use it on sun-burned lids if you are like me, and fall asleep under the sun without any protective covers on your eyes.

Dyed lip tissue is another summer hazard. Not only does this condition make even lipstick application almost impossible, but it does nothing to enhance a browned complexion. Before your next date with old Sol, wear a shield of special cream that comes in a stick form, so easy to apply. One stick, enough for the whole summer and then some, sells for $2.

With summer inevitably comes summer sniffles from sudden temperature changes. No one wants to swing into the season with rough and tender skin under the nose, that makes you look like an off-season Rudolph. Use this slick stick that heals and protects—invisibly.

Be a beach beauty this summer by taking these precautions before you stretch out on the sand. Give Penny a call at 382-3131 and she'll tell you where she found these.

More than 300 guests gathered Friday evening in the combined Marie Maggiora Ballet Studio and J. C. S. Wilkinson Art Studio to mark the studios' official opening. The two are unique in the fact that they are combined in a building designed specifically for them. Seen discussing the new project with Miss Maggiora and Mr. Wilkinson, at right, are guests Mrs. Pat Martin Bates and Mr. Peter N. Cotton.

Trial to Loose Dogs of War?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator George D. Aiken said today that if Hanoi carries out its threat to execute U.S. airmen "the American people will demand the complete destruction of North Viet Nam."

Aiken, who has criticized acceleration of the war, thus put into blunter words the carefully phrased warning Friday of 18 self-styled Democratic "doves" that such action by Hanoi "would provoke the greatest reprisals and further blacken the hope for peace."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who endorsed the statement by the 18, agreed generally with Aiken's appraisal of prospective public demands for retaliation.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey, in a speech Friday at Fort Worth, Tex., also warned that the staging of trials would "set loose emotions very hard to control in this country."

In an interview, Aiken, a Vermont Republican, blamed Moscow for encouraging the North Vietnamese to step up their resistance.

"No person in the world wants to establish peace more than President Johnson," Aiken said. "The Soviets could help bring this matter to the conference table. But I fear they want to bog us down to the fullest extent in Viet Nam and put them-

Bombers Strike 121 Times

They struck at three oil depots to keep up the intensified drive against the Hanoi government's fuel reserves and also attacked six missile sites.

U.S. Navy planes evaded 10 Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles 45 miles southeast of Hanoi, but a navy A-4 Skyhawk jet was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, U.S. military headquarters said. The pilot bailed out and is listed as missing.

North Viet Nam meanwhile claimed seven U.S. planes were shot down over Viet Nam Friday, three of them in the vicinity of Hanoi. A number of Americans were captured, said the North Viet Nam news agency.

He's the One Says Survivor

Times News Services

CHICAGO — A nation-wide manhunt was under way this afternoon for a seaman suspected in the mass slaying of eight Chicago student nurses.

Police Supt. O. W. Wilson said fingerprints at the blood-stained, disarrayed dormitory led to the identification of Richard B. Speck, 25, as a suspect.

The superintendent urged all citizens to be alert and to report any person who appears to match Speck's identification.

One tattoo on his upper left arm is a drawing of hat and goggles. On his right forearm is a tattoo of a dagger and sickle.

DESCRIPTION TALLIES

The accused man is six feet, one inch, 160 pounds and has brown blond hair slightly longer than a crew cut, and blue eyes.

Chief of Detectives Otto Kreuzer said that when the identity of the killer was determined Marline Johnson, Chicago FBI chief, at Kreuzer's request, had the Washington FBI office speed via messenger and airplane the FBI record and fingerprints of Speck.

Wilson praised the police work in the case, saying:

"Our detective division, aided by specialists from our crime laboratory, established the identity of the murderer and epitomizes the excellence our personnel and their determination to seek out criminals of this nature without regard to personal hours spent in this gruelling process.

Wilson said Speck was seen in Chicago as late as 9 p.m. Friday.

STAYED AT HOTEL

He was registered at a hotel on North Dearborn Street which has been staked out by detectives since Friday night.

"He may have left the city after seeing in the newspapers what was virtually a portrait of him," Wilson said, referring to the sketch made from the surviving nurse's description.

Thirty-two of Speck's fingerprints were found in the nurses living quarters, Wilson said. The one used by the FBI to make an identification was taken off the door of the bedroom where the nurses had been penned before being led to death.

Gas Threat Empties 500 Homes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five hundred homes on Vancouver's south side were evacuated early today after a 250-block area was turned into a powder-keg when 2,500 gallons of gasoline spilled into the area's sewer system.

IN ROW WITH ADMIRALS

Hellyer Staking Post

EDMONTON (CP) — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Friday he has no intention of letting anyone, "even if he's an admiral," tell the government how to run the armed forces.

After making the statement at a press conference, the minister backed it up in a conversation later with local Liberal party officials when he said he would resign if his cabinet colleagues didn't give him full support in his battle with some top brass over integration of the armed forces.

If the federal government weakens in its support for integration—something Mr. Hellyer said he doesn't expect will happen—"they'll have to find a new minister."

Mr. Hellyer told an airport press conference on his arrival to speak to the Royal Canadian Air Force Association that the central issue in his public disagreement with four rear admirals over armed forces integration is civil control of the military.

And it's not only admirals who are giving him trouble, he added. Some top officers in the air force and army also were bucking integration.

Mr. Hellyer said in his conversation with local Liberal officials that he expects there will be further resignations from the armed forces over the issue.

According to law, he said, the armed forces are subject to civil control and "this is the way it will work, for a change."

"I don't pretend that support for my integration policy has been unanimous. I never expected that it would be. The

DON'T TRY U.S. AIRMEN, THANT APPEALS TO HANOI

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant made a public appeal to North Viet Nam today not to try American prisoners. He said any such trial would "generate still more intense escalation" of a war he said already threatens to become a third world war.

In a statement that a spokesman read to correspondents, Thant also appealed to all parties in the Viet Nam war to comply with the 1949 Geneva convention against mistreatment of war prisoners.

Finally, he repeated his three-point proposal for cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of all military operations in South Viet Nam and a willingness on all sides to negotiate with the Viet Cong rebels.

North Viet Nam has been talking about trying U.S. pilots shot down in bombing and reconnaissance missions over its territory.

Hanoi radio has promised a special announcement tonight, and there was speculation here it would deal with this subject.
